NINE OTHER PERSONS PRESENT UNINJURED

Pistols Exchanged in Scuffle—Officer Gives Chase Despite Wound—Intruder Identified as Obtaining $48 on Previous Raid.

Patrolman James Powers, who is stationed in a Kroger store at 5402 Plover avenue to wait for robbers, was shot and slightly wounded last night by a robber. Clarence Richter, butcher at the store, also suffered a minor wound.

The robber, said by store employes to be the man who robbed the place of $48 two months ago, escaped after a chase.

Powers was shot in the forehead, suffering a scalp wound and Richter's left little finger was broken by the same bullet.

Powers was hiding in the rear of the store when the robber entered, produced a revolver and approached Richter, saying, "Stick 'em up, Butch." Richter obeyed and backed toward the icebox while William Neel, a clerk, slipped into the back room. Cecil Boyette, the manager, dropped to the floor behind the counter and seven customers, five women and two boys, huddled in corners when they saw what was happening.

The Policeman's Story.

At DePaul Hospital, where he was taken for treatment, Powers gave his account of the shooting. "I'd been sitting there about half an hour," he said, "when the young fellow came in all excited and said, 'He's out there. He's out there.' 'Who is?' I said, and he said, 'The robber.'

"So I jumped up and ran out and there he was. I said, 'Put up your hands,' but he didn't do it.

"Right then I could have shot him down like a rat and killed him, but I was afraid I would kill some of the customers. So I grabbed his hand that had the gun in it and just about that time he must have shot. We grappled and he pushed me back over a barrel, but I grabbed his gun away from him and while I was doing that he got my gun somehow.

"Then I jumped up and he ran. I chased him out the door and he turned north in Plover, me after him. But he got away from me and I lost sight of him after I chased him about a block.

Gave Chase, Despite Wound.

"It was getting hard for me to see, so I put my hand up to my forehead and it came away wet and then I realized I was shot. So I went back to the store and found the butcher was shot, too."

Patrolman Powers is 55 years old and has been on the force since 1908. He lives at 5657 Theodosia avenue and is attached to the Ruskin Avenue Station. Richter, 26 years old, lives at 2115 Gano avenue.

The robber was described as about 25 years old, with long, bushy black hair, a dark overcoat and no hat.

PAIR SEIZED WITH $41,000 IN BONDS REPORTED STOLEN

Arrest Made in Chicago Hotel Room; Man Says They Were Handed to Him.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—A man and a woman were arrested today in a hotel room with alleged stolen bonds totaling $41,000. They described themselves as Oscar Mohr of New York and Sally Wilson, 19 years old, a model. A charge of disorderly conduct against the girl was continued until Feb. 26, but no charge was placed against Mohr.

Police said the bonds, allegedly stolen in a New York robbery last Oct. 26, were found on a closet shelf in the hotel room. The package contained $1000 bonds, 27 issued by the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., two by the Canadian Pacific Railroad, four by the Electric Power & Light Corporation, and eight by railroad companies.

Mohr, police said, explained the bonds by saying that a man walked into his room and "handed me the bonds. That's all I know about it." Miss Wilson denied knowing anything about them.

JEFFERSON CITY'S FOUR BANKS TO BE CLOSED ALL WEEK

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 13—At a meeting of 300 Jefferson City business men tonight, it was agreed that the four banks here, two national and two state institutions, should remain closed through the coming week, three of them reopening Tuesday, February 23, after Washington's birthday.

The purpose of this nine-day moratorium in the banking business is to permit the absorption of the First National Bank of Jefferson City, the condition of which is impaired, by the Exchange National Bank, and to avoid risk to the Exchange National or the state banks in the process. The two state banks are the Central Missouri Trust Co. and the Cole County Bank.

The Chamber of Commerce called the meeting in the Public Library auditorium, and Hugh Stephens, president of the Chamber, presided. He announced that it had been found necessary, for protection of the First National's depositors, that the Exchange National should absorb it.

Must Charge Off $300,000.

He stated also that examination of the First National's assets, by a representative of the Comptroller of the Currency, had shown that about $300,000 would have to be charged off from its assets, as having little present value. This charge-off equals the capital stock and surplus of the bank, the capital stock being $200,000 and the surplus $100,000. The First National's stockholders, therefore, will have to depend for their future reimbursement on a return of value to the charged-off assets, and on assets which will not be taken over by the Exchange National in the absorption.

The First National's deposits are about $3,250,000, of which $200,000 are state funds, $50,000 municipal school board funds, and $3,000,000 general deposits. The general depositors are to be asked to subscribe $300,000 to be added to the present capital and surplus of the Exchange National, which now has $100,000 capital and $50,000 surplus. The plan is that the depositors shall pay at the rate of $150 for a share of $150 par value in the stock of the merged institution.

Stock subscriptions of depositors may be charged against their deposits. If all the depositors of the First National would subscribe for the stock of the enlarged Exchange National to the extent of 10 per cent of their deposits, the increase in capital and surplus, held to be necessary to finance the enlarged business and to offset the loss of the charged-off assets, would be provided. A meeting of the First National stockholders, for explanation and discussion of the stock subscription plan, has been called

OLD MULLANPHY HOSPITAL FREE LODGING HOUSE

It Will Be Opened Wednesday for Homeless Men and Will Provide Accommodations for 250.

TWO MEALS ARE TO BE SERVED DAILY

A free lodging house for destitute unemployed men will be opened Wednesday as an emergency measure, in the old Mullanphy Hospital, Montgomery and Coleman streets, by the Rev. John J. Butler, president of the Catholic Charities of St. Louis.

Homeless men unable to obtain accommodations because of the over-taxed condition of the Municipal Lodging House and other shelters, will be received at the emergency institution and given lodging, breakfast and evening dinner.

The institution will be operated along the lines of the Municipal Lodging House. Daily shower baths will be compulsory. Apparel of guests will be fumigated nightly and on their first visit guests must undergo vaccination. There will be a library and reading room, an auditorium for entertainment features, a recreation room and elevator service.

Two Meals a Day.

The building, which has been unoccupied since the opening 18 months ago of the De Paul Hospital at Kingshighway boulevard and Highland avenue, has been renovated. The courtyard has been transformed into an outdoor exercising campus and the verandas facing the courtyard have been put into good condition.

Breakfast will be served at 7 o'clock every morning, with dinner at 4:30 in the afternoon. After the evening shower, the men will place their clothing in a fumigatory and repair to their dormitories. Four men will be accommodated in each of the large, old-fashioned rooms, while the hospital wards have been converted into dormitories. There will be individual soap and towel for every man and permanent guests must re-register every third day. There will be accommodations for 250 men. This may be increased if necessity demands, Father Butler says.

The Police Department will provide retired officers as day and night superintendents and, to prevent the men from roaming the streets, the guests must receive permission to leave the grounds.

Father Butler will have an office at the shelter, as will the Bureau for Homeless Men. James McHenry, a former packer, will have charge of the commissary and store room, and Patrick Brogan, who was cook at Muscle Shoals, when the water power plant was under construction, will have charge of the kitchen.

Ozanam Shelter for Men.

The institution will be known as the Ozanam Shelter for Men, in memory of Frederick Ozanam, the French humanitarian; who, in 1833 organized a charitable group that developed into the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Father Butler completed his plans for the shelter after Archbishop Glennon had advised him to determine the need and fill it. Father Butler consulted Chief of Police Gerk, Comptroller Nolte, P. H. Byrns and E. G. Steger, Walter Hoy, secretary of the Bureau for Homeless Men, and Charles S. Wenneker, superintendent of the Municipal Lodging House.

The Sisters of Charity offered the use of the Mullanphy Hospital, erected in 1874. Father Butler purchased 800 wool blankets at half a cent apiece—a total cost of $4—from the War Department. Friends purchased 800 towels.

Officers at Jefferson Barracks advised Father Butler that the Army would turn over 400 cots to him on formal request by Gov. Caulfield, who agreed to make it.

In connection with the opening of the shelter, Archbishop Glennon said: "I was distressed to learn, through the press and other sources, of the large number of destitute men unable to obtain shelter because of the overtaxed condition of the Municipal Lodging House and other such shelters. It did not seem to be in harmony with the spirit of the great saint after whom our city is named to suffer so many gentlemen, out of employment through no fault of their own, to be forced to sleep outdoors on winter nights."

BIG CHINESE GUNS SILENT AS JAPAN LANDS 10,000 MEN

Great Loads of Munitions and Tanks Are Taken Off Seven Transports at Shanghai Docks.

DEFENDERS BRINGING UP REINFORCEMENTS

Neutral Zone Alarmed by Preparations for Big Drive to Start When Last Tokio Units Arrive.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Feb. 13.—The last units of army reinforcements will arrive in Shanghai early next week, and then, unless armistice negotiations are concluded, a big drive will start, a Government spokesman said today.

Diplomatic representatives of the United States, Great Britain and France, now in Shanghai, will be asked to present to the Chinese a plan for the creation of a neutral zone. If that move fails, the offensive will be launched.

A foreign office spokesman said that short of being "driven out," Japan would remain in the League of Nations even if China's demand for consideration of the conflict is brought before the full assembly of the League next week.

SHANGHAI (Sunday), Feb. 14.—Seven Japanese transports that steamed up the Whangpoo last night under the noses of silent Chinese guns at the Woosung forts began discharging 10,000 fighting men and great loads of war munitions on the Shanghai docks this morning.

The Japanese expeditionary force brought along a large number of tanks which will be used in an attempt to crush the Chinese machine gun positions in the network of trenches in Chapei.

These new transports, coming on the heels of six troop ships that arrived Friday, were convoyed by four cruisers, seven destroyers, and six torpedo boats. They were crowded to the rails with sons of Japan, equipped with every implement of modern warfare.

Guns Out of Commission.

The ease with which they entered the Whangpoo indicated one thing to military observers; although the Chinese still held the Woosung forts after tons of shells and airplane bombs have been rained on them, the long Japanese bombardment apparently put the guns of the fortress out of commission. Military commentators agreed that the Chinese scarcely would have permitted the big troop movement if their guns had been in shape to send the transports to the bottom of the river.

Firing was resumed at daybreak today in the Chapei zone. Quiet reigned at Woosung.

Sensational reports that Chinese forces at Woosung had killed or captured 1300 Japanese soldiers were circulated by Chinese sources, but they were unconfirmed.

Secrecy Covers Movements.

Japanese army officials undertook to cover the movements of their troops with as much secrecy as possible. They prevented all civilians from approaching the docks where the men came ashore.

Observation from outlying points, however, disclosed that large numbers of soldiers were being landed with full field kits.

Chinese sources said Japanese troops crossed Woosung Creek, two miles inland from the Whangpoo River last night, under a heavy smoke screen laid down by naval airplanes, but were driven back with heavy losses by machine gun fire. They were reinforced, again advanced and again were routed, the Chinese said, by two Chinese regiments. The reports lacked support from other sources, however.

Bluejackets Embark.

As the fresh Japanese troops landed, Japanese bluejackets marched to the docks, apparently waiting their turn to embark on the same transports, where they were destined to go was unknown to any but the Japanese, and they remained uncommunicative as to what was going on.

The area near the docks became a beehive of activity. Armed Japanese patrols swarmed the streets leading to the wharves to prevent any onlooker approaching the waterfront.

From the roof of a nearby warehouse could be observed an extensive scene of military activity.

Along the waterfront the seven Japanese troop ships lay in one long line. Emerging from each ship was a stream of soldiers, although the heaviest movement appeared to have been completed.

Secretary Hurley Denouncing Hawes' Philippines Bill

SECRETARY HURLEY of the War Department told SENATOR HARRY B. HAWES of Missouri at a hearing last week, that Hawes' bill for Philippine independence was cowardly. "Political chaos in the Orient is such that this is no time to deal with Philippine independence," Hurley said.

$7,100,000 LENT TO THE WABASH BY U. S. CREDIT BOARD

Money to Be Used to Pay Off Principal and Interest of Equipment Trust Certificates.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation tonight announced it had approved a loan to the receivers of the Wabash Railway Co. At the same time it was announced formally that several loans to banks in various sections of the country had been made or authorized.

Part of the loan to the receivers of the Wabash is for the purpose of paying the principal and interest of equipment trust certificates of the company now in arrears, and maturing prior to June 1, 1932.

Nat S. Brown, counsel for the receivers of the Wabash, said last night that the loan made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the railway company was $7,100,000. The receivers, on authorization granted last month by Federal Judge Davis, applied for a loan of $18,500,000.

"According to the notification received by us," Brown said, "the $7,100,000 loan is to take care of the needs of the receivers up to June 1. Our application remains on file, and the balance of it can be taken up later.

"The purpose for which the money will be used, beside the paying off of equipment trust certificates, as stated in the dispatch, is to pay bills for equipment, fuel, ties and materials."

The receivers, in their application for the $18,500,000 loan, proposed to deposit as security 258,929 shares of stock of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, holdings of stock in the American Refrigerator Transit Co. and in the New Jersey, Indiana & Illinois Railroad, and 50-year gold bonds of the Wabash.

PENSION BILL IS APPROVED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Widows and children of veterans of all United States wars would be granted uniform pensions under a bill approved today by the House Pensions Committee. It is estimated the measure would cost $35,000,000 the first year, and would reach a maximum of about $280,000,000 in five years.

Widows up to 40 years old who had lived with their husbands five years would receive $20 a month, upon becoming 40 years old, $30; 50 years, $40, and 70 years, $50. A pension of $6 a month for each child below 16 years old would be allowed.

MOST HOARDING BY WEALTHY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Most of the money in hiding is in big bills, a fact that led Treasury officials to surmise today that it is persons of comparative wealth that have mainly taken to hoarding.

An official compilation showed that in the 13 months ending with Dec. 31, there was an $808,000,000 increase in currency out in notes of $50 and above. The gain for $20 bills and below was $393,000,000. Officials have been unable exactly to trace the money hoarded, but the opinion was evident in expert quarters that amounts of $50,000 and $100,000 and more account for most of that in hiding.

GIVES PRESIDENT'S VIEWS ON TRUST LAW CHANGES

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13. — Warner S. Hays, president of the American Trade Association executives, who acted as chairman of the group of 125 business executives in conference in Washington this week in reference to obtaining a reinterpretation of the Sherman and other anti-trust laws, said today the next step would be to obtain the co-operation of Congress. In a statement Hays said the conference included presidents of 70 independent manufacturers and distributors.

"President Hoover," he said, "received our group very cordially and sympathetically. He fully appreciated, as we all did, that some revision or modification of these restrictive laws was necessary if the evils of cut-throat competition are to be cured. He pointed out, however, that any new interpretation of these laws must provide for the protection of the public against excessive and unreasonable prices.

"The President also pointed out that any plan to accomplish the result desired by the conference would only be workable if it provided for controlling the non-co-operating minority found in every business group and which, if not controlled, would destroy the effectiveness of any plan."

HURLEY AND KING CLASH AT HEARING, THEN MAKE PEACE

War Secretary Declares He Won't Be Called Liar and Leaves Session on Philippine Independence.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Secretary of War Hurley and Senator King (Dem.), Utah, were brought together in the office of Senator Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut, after clashing at a committee hearing today and each agreed to withdraw any statements he had made impugning the integrity of the other.

Hurley and King came into collision at a hearing of the Senate Insular Committee on the question of Philippine independence, which King advocates. After a series of sharp interchanges with King, Hurley exclaimed: "You have absolutely in every question you have asked me tried to distort what I have said." "I resent that statement as untrue, as some of your statements have been," retorted King.

"Well now, Senator"— Hurley began. "Proceed," ordered King.

"Of course," said Hurley, his voice rising, "you can conduct star chamber proceedings in here and call me a liar but you cannot say it and let me remain here, because you are a member of the United States Senate. And I have not stated an untruth and I decline to let you call me a liar." "I have not," said King.

"I will not remain before this committee and permit it," shouted Hurley. "All right," said King.

Leaping to his feet, Hurley exclaimed: "Now you can run your star chamber proceedings in here and browbeat your witnesses, but you must not call me a liar and expect me to take it. I have taken just about all I can stand from this committee. You won't permit the truth to be told."

The stalwart chief of the War Department was striding toward the door as he shouted: "I told you in the beginning that the objective of the United States was threefold; that it was the social, economic and political development of these islands for independence. Now you distort everything that I say, and then call me a liar. Now you can have your meeting. I will not appear before a committee where I have got to be called a liar." With that he left the room.

King turned to Chairman Bingham and said: "That ends this session, does it?" Bingham declared the hearings closed and the committee went into executive session.

Earlier, Secretary Hurley had been accused by Senator Cutting (Rep.), New Mexico, one of the advocates of independence, of making "a stump speech" in reply to a "simple question."

"When I say anything here," Hurley exclaimed, "if it appears in opposition to the profound wisdom of you gentlemen, it is a stump speech, but what you gentlemen say is the height of statesmanship."

DEFENSE ENDS IN KIDNAPING TRIAL; OFFERS NO EVIDENCE

CASE WILL GO TO JURY TOMORROW

Tucker, Confessed Accomplice Testifies for State—Circuit Attorney Says He Will Be Ready at Once to Try Richards.

Without offering any evidence whatever to controvert a convincing case presented by the State during the last four days, defense counsel in the trial of Charles Heuer, charged with the kidnaping of Alexander Berg, elected yesterday afternoon to entrust his fate to the mercy of a Circuit Court jury.

After the State had completed its case at 3 p. m. before Circuit Judge Ossing, Verne Lacy and former Circuit Attorney Sidener, defense counsel, took a 40-minute recess to prepare a demurrer to the State's evidence, on the strength of which Circuit Attorney Miller intends to ask the trial jury to impose the death penalty.

Judge Ossing overruled the demurrer, whereupon a conference was held at which counsel for both sides agreed to a recess until tomorrow morning when the case will be argued and given to the jury.

Richards' Trial Tomorrow.

Immediately after court had adjourned Circuit Attorney Miller announced that regardless of the Heuer case, he would be ready tomorrow to try Paul A. Richards, attorney and self-declared agent of the kidnapers, a co-defendant of Heuer. Lacy also told reporters he would be ready, in conformity with his pledge to begin the selection of a jury in the Richards case tomorrow.

Unless there is a change in plans, therefore Miller and Lacy will go directly tomorrow from Judge Ossing's room to the court of Judge Pearcy, immediately adjoining, and will begin selection of a jury in the second of the kidnaping cases to be brought to trial.

Before the conclusion of the State's case yesterday afternoon, Lacy had said he probably would have three or four defense witnesses. His announcement "The defense rests," after the demurrer had been overruled, came as a surprise therefore.

Originally it had been planned to hold a session last night so that the case might be given to the jury before midnight. After the defense rested, however, counsel told the Court they would need at least an hour and a half to prepare instructions to be presented for the Court's consideration.

Night Session Abandoned.

This, plus the necessity of allowing each side at least 90 minutes for argument, made it possible the case might not be ready for the jury by midnight. Under section 1863 of the Missouri statutes, court may not be in session on Sunday except for the reception of a verdict or the discharge of a jury. Confronted, therefore, with the possibility that the case might not be concluded even with a night session, counsel for both sides agreed to a recess until tomorrow.

The State's chief witness yesterday, and one of the most important in its case, was Charles Tucker, guard at the flat at 5084A Easton avenue where Berg, a wealthy fur dealer, was held prisoner for more than four days last November before being released on a promise of $50,000 ransom, which was not paid.

Tucker had pleaded guilty Friday afternoon, in the midst of the Heuer trial, to a charge of kidnaping for ransom, and his sentence had been deferred until March 31. His testimony not only linked Heuer directly with the detention and release of Berg, but also implicated two other defendants in the case, Edward Barcume and Curtis Medlock.

He did not mention the names of the remaining two defendants in the case, Richards, the lawyer, and George Peak who is alleged by the State to have pointed out Berg to the kidnapers as desirable quarry. Both Richards and Peak had previously been mentioned in connection with the kidnaping by other

HOUSE TO PASS 'LAME DUCK' BILL, REJECTS CHANGES

Measure, Similar to One Norris Has Long Championed, Abolishes Short Session of Congress.

ONE PROPOSAL FOR FOUR-YEAR TERM

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Congressional approval of the Constitutional amendment proposed by Senator Norris of Nebraska to abolish the short "lame duck" session of Congress was assured today when the House repeatedly rejected all suggestions to alter the resolution as reported by its own committee.

The House will vote on the proposed amendment Tuesday. The Senate overwhelmingly approved the measure for the seventh time last month.

The principal difference between the Senate and the House resolutions relates to the inauguration of the President and the convening of Congress. The Senate bill provides that the presidential term shall expire at noon on Jan. 15; the House bill stipulates Jan. 24. The Senate bill calls for session of Congress each year beginning Jan. 2; the House bill, Jan. 4. The period between the convening of Congress and the inauguration of President would enable Congress to receive the votes of the electoral college and, in case of a contest, to select the President.

The many amendments offered to the House resolution today were usually beaten by a two-to-one margin, although the preliminary viva voce votes indicated that the sentiment was about even. On the subsequent standing divisions, many representatives who had shouted for the amendments changed their votes.

An Unexpected Amendment.

Unexpected complications arose when Representative William B. Bankhead of Alabama, a leading Democrat, proposed an amendment extending the term of the representatives from two to four years. In the past, similar amendments have been ruled out on points of order, but when Representative A. L. Bulwinkle of North Carolina, who was in the chair, followed the precedents, Bankhead appealed from the ruling and was sustained by a vote of 56 to 106. More Republicans than Democrats voted to overrule the chair's decision. The Bankhead amendment, after much debate, was finally rejected by 65 to 112.

Representative James F. Fulbright (Dem.) of Missouri declared that the adoption of the Bankhead amendment would defeat the resolution. Similar statements were made by other representatives.

Representative W. H. Stafford (Rep.) of Wisconsin shouted, "If you want to kill this bill, vote for the Bankhead amendment." Representative John E. Rankin (Dem.) of Mississippi said that he was an ardent supporter of the Norris proposal but would be forced to vote against it if the amendment was accepted.

Dickinson Holds Attention.

Representative C. C. Dickinson (Dem.) of Missouri, the oldest member of the House, held the attention of the House when in a clear, ringing voice, he said that the Norris resolution had been delayed long enough and that the people should be allowed to vote for it in a form they understood and that its enactment should not be hampered by amendments. Before Dickinson spoke, the chair had been unable to keep the members in order, and the speakers could scarcely be heard from a distance of 20 feet.

An echo of last year's debate on the same resolution was heard when Representative Lindsay Warren of North Carolina, another Democratic leader, proposed that in even numbered years the congressional session end on June 4. Last year Speaker Longworth sponsored an amendment to end the even year sessions on May 4. The Longworth proposal, offered during the closing days of Congress, was one of the stumbling blocks in the conference between the Senate and the House. The Warren amendment was defeated by a vote of 54 to 98.

Representative C. L. Gifford of Massachusetts, the ranking Republican member of the committee handling the bill, then proposed to end the even year sessions on June 4, unless a later date was set "by law or concurrent action of Congress." This was defeated by a vote of 58 to 88.

Makes a New Suggestion.

After all amendments to change the substance of the resolution had been rejected, Representative C. W. Ramseyer of Iowa, a Republican leader, proposed a new section to the resolution providing that the proposed amendment to be effective must be ratified within seven years, and that he ratification be by legislatures elected after congressional approval of the measure. He explained that this would give the voters of the country an opportunity to elect state Legislatures with the Norris amendment in mind.

Representative Ralph F. Lozier (Dem.) of Missouri, opposed the Ramseyer proposal, declaring that if adopted it would make ratification of the Norris amondment more complicated and difficult. The proposal was defeated by a vote of 42 to 65.

The action today was taken by the House sitting as a committee of the whole. When Speaker Garner returned to the chair, Representative Bankhead stated that by agreement the entire resolution would come up for a vote on Tuesday almost immediately upon the convening of the House.

When the House approves the measure, the differences of dates in the Senate and the House bills will be ironed out in conference. There has been some objection to both resolutions because they stipulate specific dates rather than days, such as the first Tuesday after the first Monday. If days rather than dates were stipulated there would be no longer danger that the inauguration of the President or the convening of Congress would fall on Sunday.

CRITICISES JAPAN BUT SAYS ENGLAND CAN'T THROW STONES

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—George Lansbury, Labor leader in Parliament, criticised Japan's actions toward China in a speech tonight, but said Great Britain could not "throw stones."

"I want to say as a member of Parliament and a British citizen," he said, "that if the League of Nations is unable to restrain one of its members from the sort of conduct that Japan is guilty of, then you can say good-by to the League of Nations.

"If ever there was a cynical and brutal defiance of one's own signature by a nation, it is this by Japan of its signature to the Kellogg antiwar pact, the covenant of the league and the Pacific treaty. There has never been in my lifetime such blatant disregard of public morality and right.

"We cannot throw stones at her, knowing what the British Empire has done throughout the world in getting its own way. We have got to clean up our own doorstep and the first call for a cleanup is in India."

The glass plant and other property were sold by Melvin L. Peters of Kane, recently named receiver. Six hundred men normally are employed, but the plant has not operated for nearly two years.

SUIT OVER EARL REED REWARD

Would Divide $1000 Among 18 Idaho Residents.

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Feb. 13.—Division among 18 Idaho residents of the $1000 reward the St. Louis Police Department offered in July, 1929, for arrest and conviction of Earl Reed, wanted there on a charge of murdering a policeman, was sought in a suit filed today by W. A. Sears, Twin Falls officer, and 11 other persons.

Sears and his associates contend they with six other persons effected Reed's capture at Minidoka, Ida., in June, 1930. The defendants are the Metropolitan Police Department of St. Louis, Joseph A. Gerk, St. Louis Chief of Police, and six Idaho residents, including Minidoka and Twin Falls policemen.

MELLON IMPEACHMENT CHARGES ARE DROPPED

House Adopts Judiciary Committee Report Without Debate or Record Vote.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The House today formally dropped impeachment charges against Andrew W. Mellon as Secretary of the Treasury. Without debate or a record vote, it adopted a Judiciary Committee recommendation to discontinue further consideration of allegations that the veteran financier engaged in private business contrary to law during his 11 years in the Cabinet.

Chairman Sumners presented the report saying that before completion of the committee's investigation of the charges filed by Representative Patman (Dem.), Texas, Mellon had vacated his Treasury post to assume the Ambassadorship to Great Britain. It was read to the House by the Clerk, together with a minority report signed by four members — Representatives LaGuardia (Rep.), New York, and Browning, Tennessee, Condon, Rhode Island, and Tarver, Georgia, Democrats.

The minority said it concurred with the majority in the belief that the Patman charges were based on law providing "for action in the nature of an ouster proceeding," but added:

"It is our view that the Hon. Andrew W. Mellon, the former Secretary of the Treasury, having removed himself from that office, no useful purpose would be served by continuing the investigation of the charges filed by the Hon. Wright Patman.

"We desire to stress that the action of the undersigned is based on that reason alone, particularly when the law in question is not applicable to the office now held by Mr. Mellon."

The House was only sparsely attended when the report was adopted and the attitude of the members was in sharp contrast with the tenseness which prevailed when Patman stood on the floor a month ago and made his accusations. The Texan silently sat beside Sumners during reading of the report.

Mellon will carry to his new post in London the well wishes of the Chapter of the Washington Cathedral. The Chapter paid its tribute to Mellon, treasurer of its National Executive Committee, for his efforts in beautifying Washington. A resolution presented to him today by Gen. John J. Pershing on behalf of Bishop Freeman of Washington, said:

"The Cathedral Chapter is happy that Mr. Mellon's vision for a more beautiful national capital has comprehended the significance of Washington Cathedral as a symbol of the nationa's faith." It also wished him success in "further service to America and the world in the sphere of international affairs."

STOCKS CONTINUE TO RISE; SEVERAL AT NEW 1932 HIGH

Shorts Pay Severe Penalties, but Brokers Report Volume of Buying From Investors.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The stock market surged upward with increased vigor today in the most feverish week-end session in nearly two years.

Net gains in most leading issues ranged from $2 to $14.50 a share, and several issues in which bears found themselves painfully pinched went up even more spectacularly than they did during the upsurge on Thursday.

Price averages indicated a gain in quoted values of more than $5,000,000,000 during the two sessions of swift recovery, restoring the general level of prices close to the peak of mid-January. Several leading issues, including United States Steel and American Telephone, registered new high levels for 1932.

Various speculative interests, not only in the United States but abroad, which had been short on American stocks, paid severe penalties, according to brokerage house gossip, but while the retirement of the bear contingent provided much of the upward impetus, brokers said a volume of buying appeared from speculators and investors who once more hoped that the bottom had been reached.

One of the most spectacular advances was in Union Pacific, which shot up $21.50 to a price of $97.50, making wide leaps as bears found the market devoid of offerings anywhere near previous prices. It later fell back to close at $88.62, as the bear demand was satisfied. On the whole, however, the market closed near the day's best levels, despite late profit-taking. The action of American Telephone also hurt the bears, as it spurted up $15.75 a share to $134. It closed at $132.75.

Save for the indications of rapid progress through Congress of the Glass-Stegall bill to increase the flexibility of the Federal Reserve system, the market received little in the way of fresh news to aid the advance. Wall street was particularly impressed with further indications of returning banking stability, however, figures on bank suspensions this week making the most favorable showing in 12 months, coincident with the start of operations of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Some foreign currencies, notably the French franc, turned strongly against the dollar for a short time, but quickly subsided. International bankers felt that assurances that the Glass-Steagall bill was not inflationary were squelching bearishness trends on the dollar among foreign speculators.

The following table indicates the extent of the two-session advance in several leading issues, showing Wednesday's low prices, as contrasted to today's closing prices, as well as indicating today's net gains:

	Wed. Close.	Today's Close.	Today's Gain.
Allied Chemical	$62.75	$ 77.00	$ 7.75

On the Curb Market, Cities Service rose 50 cents to $6.50, Electric Bond & Share $1.37 to $12.50, Aluminum Co. $3.50 to $56 and A. O. Smith $5.75 to $46.87.

Heuer Defense Rests Without Offering Evidence

Tucker's Story of Kidnaping Closes State's Case.

Tucker, concluding the State's case, was the most important prosecution witness yesterday. A frail man, with coarse hair thinning at the forehead, and a high, faint voice that taxed the ears of the Court and jury, he sat composedly in the witness chair throughout the examination and cross-examination. He told his story simply and without effort at effect, and defense counsel failed to shake him in the essential details of his account of Berg's captivity.

After he had testified that he was 30 years old, a chauffeur by occupation, and lived at 1429 Arlington avenue, Defense Attorney Lacy asked that the jury be excluded, and when this request was granted, took over the witness to test his competency, largely on the strength of Tucker's record as a juvenile delinquent.

Tucker testified in response to questions by Lacy that he had never been treated for a mental condition, but recalled once undergoing some sort of a mental test at the House of Detention.

Mental History Inquired Into.

He had entered school at 7, quit at 14. He never had undergone a psychiatric examination, so far as he could remember, had never been subject to fainting spells, never had gone into a coma. Once he had taken a muscle reflex test at City Hospital. On that occasion, he recalled, he had been drunk and someone had hit him on the head.

Again in 1923 he had been examined at the City Hospital, but the next morning he was taken back to the Carr Street Police Station. His parents, he testified, had to his knowledge not arranged treatments for a mental condition for him.

At the close of the examination Lacy told the Court he intended later to try to impeach Tucker's testimony. In the meantime, he was accepted as a competent witness and the jury was recalled to hear his testimony.

Had Been Heuer's Employe.

Continuing, in the presence of the jury, Tucker said he had known Heuer about six months, at the time of the kidnaping. He had worked for him, he continued, at two or three places, including the fish market at 809 North Leonard avenue operated by Heuer and Barcume. For the last 18 months odd jobs, such as those he performed for Heuer, Barcume and other fish dealers, were his only occupation. He had lost his job as a chauffeur a year and a half ago.

On the Sunday before Armistice day, Nov. 8, he continued, Heuer came to the offices of the St. Louis Fish Dealers' Association, where Tucker was answering telephone calls. He was driving a Chevrolet coach belonging to Arthur Bateman, organizer of the fish dealers, who testified Friday against Heuer.

"Charlie asked me if I wanted to sit up with a fellow all night," Tucker continued in response to questions. "I said all right and he drove me to a flat down on Easton avenue. It was over a furniture store. He went in. There was a fellow in bed in one room and a fellow in a chair in another room.

"The fellow in the chair was Curtis Medlock. Charlie stayed about five minutes and then left. Before he went he said, "There's an old man in the other room.' Then Medlock went to bed and I sat in the room in his place."

Kept Guard Over Berg.

Tucker did not leave the flat again, he said, until Berg was released the following Tuesday night. He slept most of Sunday night, he said, while Medlock sat up watching Berg.

On Monday he heard plumbers working in the kitchen. Medlock spent about an hour with them while Tucker watched the prisoner. Heuer and Barcume, he continued, came to the flat about 10 a. m., Monday, stayed two hours and departed together. Then Medlock went out and Tucker stayed on alone.

At 6 o'clock Heuer and Barcume, the witness said, came back and remained all night. Medlock went home, returning the next morning before Barcume and Heuer had awakened. At 11 o'clock Heuer and Barcume left, separately.

Huer came back first at 5 o'clock, the witness recalled. Barcume returned a little later, "and we all sat around until about 10:30 p. m. Then we started to get ready to leave."

"What conversation was there about this activity?"

"Someone said, 'Let's get him ready.' And so he got shaved—he shaved himself in the bathroom—and then we were ready. We were supposed to leave at 11:30, but someone said, 'Let's leave earlier,' and so we did. We got him ready. I helped him on with his coat."

Tells of Blind-Folding Captive.

"Was Mr. Berg blindfolded?" "Yes, I took a piece off the sheet in the front room and Medlock blindfolded him. He put some smoked glasses on him, too. Then I took him down the back stairs. We waited about three minutes until a car came down the alley.

"It was a Ford sedan. Medlock was driving. I got in the back and Medlock leaned over and helped Berg into the front. The car was facing east. We drove to Wells and Academy avenues and slowed up for a Chevrolet that was parked there."

"Do you know who was driving the Chevrolet?" "Yes, Charlie Heuer."

"What did you do then?" the Circuit Attorney asked. "From there we drove to Goodfellow on Wells avenue, and then turned north. We were about 30 feet behind the Chevrolet. We drove west again after a while and turned on Hamilton alongside that rope company. It was about 15 minutes after 11 o'clock."

Here the witness identified a photograph of the scene of Berg's release, Hamilton and Kennerly avenues, a few steps from the A. Leschen & Sons Rope Co. factory. He pointed out the approximate spot where Berg was released, but was unable to name the east-west street.

Release of the Prisoner.

"The Chevrolet stopped and we stopped, too," he continued in response to further questioning. "We were on the west side of Hamilton facing south. We stopped 30 to 50 feet back of the Chevrolet. It was raining.

"I let Berg out and I got out behind him. I left Medlock in the front seat of the car. I had been in the back seat. I set Berg down and faced him north on a sort of a dirt walk.

"Then I got back in the car and we pulled away. I don't know what ever became of the Chevrolet. Medlock let me out at Blackstone and Easton and I went home. Medlock still had the bedclothes in the car."

"How was Mr. Berg treated while he was held prisoner?" the Circuit Attorney asked. "Well, he was treated pretty good," Tucker replied. "Food was brought in from a restaurant I think. Medlock brought some and Heuer and Barcume brought some in, too. Berg ate at a table in the dining room."

"At times when you were in the room with Berg did you attempt to conceal your face from him?" "Yes, we always tried to keep handkerchief or a towel over our faces."

"At the time that Heuer asked you to come to the flat, did he offer you any money?" "No, he didn't say anything about money at that time."

Got No Pay for His Work.

"Did you get any pay?" "No."

"Was there any conversation about ransom in your presence?"

Lacy objected that the question was leading and was sustained.

Circuit Attorney Miller then asked: "Were there any other conversations at the flat that you haven't told us about?"

"Yes," said Tucker. "I had a conversation on Tuesday. Heuer told me I was supposed to get $2000. Later he told me, 'You can go to Medlock's tomorrow and get the money and I'll pay him back.'"

"Did you see any revolvers while you were in the flat?"

The witness replied in the affirmative and identified one of the State's exhibits, a pearl-handled revolver with adhesive tape over part of the handle, as a weapon which he had carried about the flat with him. When he took Berg out to the car, he said, the revolver was lying on the rear seat, and when he alighted, after Berg had been released, it was still there.

Tucker Cross-Examined.

On cross-examination Tucker testified he was arrested on Nov. 11 in a grocery on North Ninth street owned by Medlock's brother. He was questioned at once by the police and Assistant Circuit Attorney Lennon, and when the examination was completed, after two hours, his statement was put in writing by a police stenographer and he signed it.

Lacy showed in cross-examination that Tucker, held in city jail after his indictment, was removed two weeks ago and lodged in a room at Police Headquarters, more comfortable quarters than a cell, although he declared he received jail food, except for the delicacies brought to him twice a week by his family.

For testifying in the case he admitted he expected "better treatment," but he declared he had no idea what sentence the Court would impose on him. He declared the police and Circuit Attorney had given him no advice concerning his testimony except to tell the truth.

Tucker was followed on the witness stand by Chief of Detectives Kaiser, who testified briefly that he knew the defendants in the kidnaping case, and had ordered their arrest. With that the State rested at 3 p. m.

HOWELL SAYS MISSOURI WILL HAVE 36 VOTES AT CHICAGO

Delegates to Convention Will Be Chosen From Present Districts, He Thinks.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 13. — The opinion that Missouri will be entitled to 36 votes in the Democratic National Convention and that two delegates may be chosen from each of the present 16 congressional districts was expressed tonight by Charles M. Howell.

He rejected the suggestion that the failure to redistrict would make it necessary to elect the entire delegation from the State at large. In addition to two delegates from each of the 16 districts, Howell said, eight delegates at large, each with half a vote, should be named by the State convention as in the past.

In support of his opinion he cited a resolution recently adopted by the National Committee. He said it stated that unless a convention representation, the State shall be entitled to votes equal to twice the number of representatives in the present Congress and four additional delegate-at-large votes.

RELATIVES SEEK FACTS ON DEATH OF WOMAN AT SEA

Miss Elizabeth Cook, Boston, Expired After Getting False Message That Fiance Was Dead.

HER BODY BURIED AT GIBRALTAR

She Would Have Come Into Legacies on Reaching Her 21st Birthday, Her Uncle Says.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Feb. 13.—Relatives are seeking an investigation into the death of Miss Elizabeth Barrett Cook, 20 years old, a member of one of Boston's oldest families, who died on a steamer in the Mediterranean a short time after she had received a cablegram falsely reporting the death of her fiance, St. George Arnold, 29 years old. The hoax was revealed when Arnold, a graduate student of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, sent a message of condolence to Miss Cook's mother.

Dr. Francis E. Carroll, an uncle of Miss Cook, disclosed that Miss Cook would have come into possession of two considerable legacies on her twenty-first birthday.

Mrs. Albert E. Carroll, the girl's aunt, said Miss Cook once before had received a false cablegram. At that time, last June, Miss Cook was on her way from Paris to Naples when she received a cablegram saying her mother was ill. Mrs. Carroll also disclosed that the cablegram which was received by Miss Cook just prior to her death was signed with the name "Helen James." She knew of no such person.

Both Dr. Carroll and his brother, Albert, said they were determined to find out who sent the cablegram to Miss Cook which said Arnold was dead and advised her "on no account to return."

They were also interested in the manner in which Miss Cook died. Her death was first ascribed to pneumonia, but now is the subject of investigation. The Carrolls said they were not aware of Miss Cook's engagement to Arnold.

Arnold was at his apartment today with his mother awaiting reply from official sources to his plea that they investigate the cablegram. A soon as he learned of the false cablegram he appealed to the American Consul at Gibraltar, the State Department and Senator Carter Glass of Virginia for aid.

Arnold was graduated from Randolph-Macon College in his home town of Ashland, Va., in 1926 and came to Massachusetts Institute of Technology for a graduate course. He worked his way through college. His mother is Mrs. B. W. Arnold, wife of a professor of history at Randolph-Macon. He now is employed by an electric company.

Both Arnolds were puzzled by the case. Mrs. Arnold said she knew and approved of her son's engagement to Miss Cook, but could assign no reason why anyone should send Miss Cook such a message. Her son was equally puzzled.

Miss Cook was at Naples planning to sail for America on Feb. 4, when, just before the hour for sailing, she received the message telling of Arnold's death and advising her not to return home. She sailed regardless aboard the steamer Chinese Prince, but died when the ship was nearing Gibraltar, where she was buried. With her mother she had spent most of the last five years abroad. Her father, H. M. Cook of Hornell, N. Y., died five years ago.

Mrs. Arnold was informed tonight by the state department that the coroner's inquest at Gibraltar had been adjourned pending a report of an analyst. This Arnold interpreted as meaning that organs of Miss Cook had been subjected to chemical analysis, despite the statement of steamship officials that the girl died of pneumonia.

At that time, last June, Miss Cook was on her way from Paris to Naples when she received a cablegram saying her mother was ill. Mrs. Carroll also disclosed that the cablegram which was received by Miss Cook just prior to her death was signed with the name "Helen James." She knew of no such person.

Both Dr. Carroll and his brother, Albert, said they were determined to find out who sent the cablegram to Miss Cook which said Arnold was dead and advised her "on no account to return."

They were also interested in the manner in which Miss Cook died. Her death was first ascribed to pneumonia, but now is the subject of investigation. The Carrolls said they were not aware of Miss Cook's engagement to Arnold.

Arnold was at his apartment today with his mother awaiting reply from official sources to his plea that they investigate the cablegram. A soon as he learned of the false cablegram he appealed to the American Consul at Gibraltar, the State Department and Senator Carter Glass of Virginia for aid.

Arnold was graduated from Randolph-Macon College in his home town of Ashland, Va., in 1926 and came to Massachusetts Institute of Technology for a graduate course. He worked his way through college. His mother is Mrs. B. W. Arnold, wife of a professor of history at Randolph-Macon. He now is employed by an electric company.

Both Arnolds were puzzled by the case. Mrs. Arnold said she knew and approved of her son's engagement to Miss Cook, but could assign no reason why anyone should send Miss Cook such a message. Her son was equally puzzled.

Miss Cook was at Naples planning to sail for America on Feb. 4 when, just before the hour for sailing, she received the message telling of Arnold's death and advising her not to return home. She sailed regardless aboard the steamer Chinese Prince, but died when the ship was nearing Gibraltar, where she was buried. With her mother she had spent most of the last five years abroad. Her father, H. M. Cook of Hornell, N. Y., died five years ago.

Arnold was informed tonight by the state department that the coroner's inquest at Gibraltar had been adjourned pending a report of an analyst. This Arnold interpreted as meaning that organs of Miss Cook had been subjected to chemical analysis, despite the statement of steamship officers that the girl died of pneumonia.

TWO ACCUSED MEN CAPTURED AFTER FARMER'S QUICK WORK

Wentzville Poultry and Egg Seller Recovers Sedan After Co-operating With Police.

Quick action by Louis A. Hoss, a Wentzville farmer, coupled with the efficiency of the police radio system, resulted in the capture of two men yesterday whom Hoss identified as those he had seen driving away in his sedan loaded with chickens and eggs he had come to the city to sell.

Hoss saw his car being driven away as he emerged from a house in the 1200 block of Tamm avenue. He ran back, telephoned police, enlisted the aid of a passing motorist and set out in pursuit. He followed the car as it went east on Clayton road. The men abandoned it, running across Oakland avenue just as a police scout car, summoned by Hoss' call, approached. The policemen gave chase, overhauling one man and later capturing another.

Both were booked suspected of larceny of a motor vehicle. Hoss resumed peddling his chickens and eggs.

JUDGE SUSPENDED FOR SHIELDING DAUGHTER

North Carolinan Accused of Altering Records in Embezzlement Case.

By the Associated Press.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 13.—John H. Harwood's commission as a Judge of the North Carolina Superior Court bench was suspended by Gov. Gardner today and soon afterward warrants were served on Harwood charging he tampered with the records in criminal and civil cases against his daughter, Miss Lola Harwood. Gov. Gardner said Harwood had asked that his commission be suspended.

Miss Harwood is under an indictment charging she embezzled $4828 when she was a clerk in the State Department of Revenue. The State also has filed a civil suit against her to recover that amount.

Attorney-General Dennis G. Brummitt reported to the Governor several days ago that records in the cases had been altered. Harwood as a Superior Court Judge had access to them.

Both warrants served on Harwood charge him with tampering with the records and one in addition charges he was an accessory after the fact in the alleged embezzlement by his daughter.

Gov. Gardner said Harwood denied he had altered the records.

$75,000,000 SUIT FILED BY PIPE LINE CONCERN

H. L. Doherty Defendant in Missouri-Kansas Co. Anti-Trust Action.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The first important suit to be brought under the Sherman anti-trust law affecting the natural gas industry was filed today in the Federal Court. The Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. seeks damages of $75,000,000 from Henry L. Doherty & Co., individually and trading as Henry L. Doherty & Co., the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, the North American Light & Power Co., Christy Payne, a director of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, and Louis E. Fischer, vice president and director of the North American Light & Power Co.

While the papers filed gave no details, it was inferred in Wall street that Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. was seeking redress for alleged wrongs suffered at the hands of backers of the Continental Construction Co., a competing natural gas producing and distributing company, in which the defendants named are part owners.

The Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. was organized in 1928 and in that year its stocks were in the forefront of the active speculation which marked natural gas securities. More recently, however, the company and its president, Frank P. Parish, have received considerable publicity as a result of Federal inquiries at Chicago into the methods used by the company in selling stock.

The principal asset of the company is a 50 per cent ownership of the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co., which owns a natural gas pipe line extending from the Panhandle field in Texas to Indiana.

Other Suits Are to Be Filed, Statement Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Additional suits against some of the defendants named today by the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. were predicted in a statement issued here under the name of Frank P. Parish, president, and the directors.

Conspiracy to prevent the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. from constructing the Panhandle-Eastern natural gas pipe line by raiding the company's common stock in June, 1930, was charged in the suit.

U. S. CHECKS FOR BUILDING SITE

Total of $292,951 for 13 Remaining Parcels of Land.

Checks totaling $292,951 for 13 remaining parcels of land on the site of the new Postoffice annex at Eighteenth and Market streets were received yesterday from the Treasury Department by John C. Dyott, Special Assistant Attorney-General. The money will be turned over to the Clerk of the Federal Court here in order that the Government may proceed to acquire the property through condemnation.

The major portion of the money for the site, $997,678, was turned over to Dyott in January. The amounts are based on estimates of what the viewers will award for the property. The site covers the block bounded by Eighteenth, Market, Seventeenth and Walnut streets and the block bounded by Seventeenth, Market and Moore streets and Clark avenue.

ESKIMOS LOSE LIVES IN SEVERE FLOODS

Seven Villages Destroyed Before Christmas Near Nelson Island, Alaska.

By the Associated Press.

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 13.—Delayed reports reaching here today said severe floods destroyed seven Eskimo villages just before Christmas, with the loss of many lives, in the isolated country on the mainland east of Nelson Island.

After the waters subsided, freezing weather set in and the bodies of many of the victims were found encased in ice. The number of dead was not given.

With no communication system in that section of Alaska, news of the tragedy was carried overland to Hamilton, near the mouth of the Yukon River, and sent here by letter.

The stricken district lies 150 miles south of the mouth of the Yukon River.

The mainland in the vicinity of Nelson Bay which is separated from it only by narrow Baird inlet, is made up of flats and low lying country and serious floods have occured there before.

The whole district, from Nelson Island north to Cape Romanoff, was flooded, with high ocean tides, overflowing the shore and adding to the destruction, the letter said. With little high country into which to escape, the Eskimos were trapped.

At about the time of the disaster floods occurred here and along the Southern coast of the Seward peninsula and all along Norton sound.

With the Bering Sea more or less free from ice as late as Jan. 1, high tides, sea ice and flooded streams forced the abandonment of numerous villages and camps all along Norton Sound and drove the inhabitants to seek higher ground.

FOUR-MINUTE MEN BEING ORGANIZED FOR RELIEF DRIVE

Will Speak Before Theaters, Clubs, Employers and Workmen on Need for $600,000 Fund.

Formation of a body of four-minute speakers, like those who served in wartime, to speak in theaters, at clubs and before groups of business men and employes, will be a part of the Crisis Campaign, to be conducted next week, for the raising of $600,000 for emergency unemployment relief.

The Crisis Committee will meet tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. in Mayor Miller's office, with J. D. Perry Francis, general chairman, presiding. About 100 men and women, named as members of the Crisis Committee in the original list Wednesday, or added since, have been summoned to the meeting.

Radio stations and billboard companies have been asked for time and space respectively for publicity in the Crisis Campaign, in which no overhead expense for advertising or clerical help is to be incurred.

Volunteer employes at campaign headquarters, in City Hall, yesterday began sending out letters to 2000 business men today, summoning them to the meeting of firms, to be held at 2:30 p. m. Friday. Because of the number invited, this meeting will be held not in the Mayor's office, but on the ninth floor of the new Courthouse.

How Money Raised in November Is Being Used.

Sidney Maestre, president of the Community Fund, last night issued a statement replying to questions as to the use made of the money raised for relief agencies in the $3,000,000 joint campaign in November of the Community Fund and the Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment. The statement was made at the suggestion of Jules R. Field, general director of the Crisis Campaign, who has been asked this question by several persons. Maestre said:

"As the public knows, we failed to reach our goal of $3,000,00. The net results of the drive, after deducting the incidental expense, was $2,239,809.42. Under the agreement by which the Citizens' Committee was to receive 25 per cent of the net amount raised, the sum of $559,952.35 goes to that organization.

"We have already turned over to the Citizens' Committee $198,000, from the money which constitutes its share. Since Community Fund pledges are paid quarterly, the balance of the money due the Citizens' Committee cannot be paid until it is collected during the year. We anticipate that the next money due them will be $107,000 on April 15. This is based upon our experience of past years in collecting quarterly payments.

"The budget committee of the Community Fund has $1,620,000, to divide among the 51 agencies which belong to the fund, after deducting the amount necessary to take care of deficits, and a small administrative expense during the year. Of this amount the agencies rendering family aid and other direct relief will receive $688,000, the agencies giving hospital and other health care, which is of vital consequence in our whole relief problem, will receive $438,500; and the agencies which render special services in citizenship, including neighborhood and day nursery work, much of it direct relief benefit, will receive approximately $450,000. The balance, or approximately $44,500, is the budget of the Community Council and the central bureau which serves the relief agencies. In other words, about 75 per cent of the money expended by agencies belonging to the Community Fund, goes for various forms of relief work.

"In view of the emergency, however, the executive committee of the Community Fund has already advanced to member agencies devoted entirely to direct relief work, the sum of $129,950, ahead of their regular budget allowances for the year.

"No organization realizes the serious situation facing our city better than the Community Fund. We know what it will mean if the Crisis Campaign should fail. It is inconceivable that our citizenship will permit it to fail. I trust this statement will assist the public in obtaining the clear understanding of the problem facing our leaders in relief work."

Total attendance at the twenty-fifth annual St. Louis Automobile Show, which closed last night at the Mart Building after a week of exhibition, was 108,661. Robert E. Lee, show manager, said the figure was about 12 per cent above last year's show.

With the exception of Monday, which barely fell short of the mark, each day was well above 10,000.

Sales, Lee said, were about 40 per cent greater than at last year's show. Removal of the exhibits was started at 11 p. m., preference being given to those models which were to be shipped to Kansas City for exhibition there. By 3 a. m., the building was virtually clear.

$1000 RANSOM SENT FOR KIDNAPED MAN

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Resident Abducted From Lake Placid Club Thursday.

By the Associated Press.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Feb. 13. —Relatives tonight awaited word from an effort to free Harry H. Blagden, 45 years old, wealthy sportsman and former Yale student, from kidnapers who took him from the exclusive Lake Placid Club at the height of the winter Olympic activities.

Blagden, proprietor of a camp for boys on Upper Saranac Lake, registered at the Lake Placid Club last Thursday night. On the following morning he was to meet Mr. and Mrs. E. Roland Harriman of New York, and with them he was to attend the games. Harriman is a son of the late E. H. Harriman, railroad builder. Blagden was missing Friday morning. His bed in a first-floor room of a cottage had not been occupied. Outside a window were many footprints in the mud and snow.

Today August Blagden Jr., brother of the absent man, received a letter in his brother's handwriting, demanding $1000 ransom. The captive said he wrote the letter with a pistol at his head. The communication bore a Utica postmark.

Police Invoked Silence.

Information of the details of the kidnaping and ransom demand leaked out without the authority of the New York State Police, who directed the search for Blagden. Later they invoked a silence order, declaring circulation of the information already had endangered the life of Blagden and thwarted a plan to capture the kidnapers. Conservation Department Guards, county and city officers joined the troopers in searching the wooded Adirondack Mountains.

Harry H. Blagden is one of five brothers who won honors at Yale. Tom, the eldest, was captain of the Yale four-oared rowing crew of 1904. Augustus Blagden Jr., son of another brother, was captain of last year's Yale crew. The others are Douglas and Donald. Augustus is head of an Ambler, Pa., asbestos company. Tom was vice president of White Motors until a few years ago. He now lives here. Donald is a member of a real estate firm in New York and Douglas is head of a New York construction firm.

Last Seen Thursday Night.

Edward D. Cady Jr., cousin of the missing man, saw him at the Lake Placid Club Thursday night. Blagden said he was tired and prepared to retire. An empty wallet was found on a bureau the next day; the lights in the room were burning, and the man's reading glasses lay across an open book on a table. Blagden had about $150 in the wallet.

Friends did not at first report the disappearance, thinking he had returned to Saranac Lake because of business.

The camp that Blagden operated was largely patronized by the sons of wealthy parents. It was called Camp La Jeunesse.

Investigators think that Blagden may have been mistaken for Harriman. They cannot, however, understand the smallness of the demand for ransom, $1000.

GREENEBAUM FIRM NOT IN RECEIVERSHIP

Erroneous Statement Appeared in Account of Suit Against Hotel Company.

In last Thursday's Post-Dispatch it was stated erroneously that Greenebaum Sons Investment Co. of Chicago was in receivership.

Attention to the error was directed yesterday by Edgar N. Greenebaum in a telegram.

The error appeared in an account of a suit filed against the Heiss Hotel Co., which holds title to the Lennox Hotel at Ninth street and Washington avenue. That suit, brought by Leo Jaudes, holder of $4000 in first mortgage bonds secured by the hotel, asked that a receiver be appointed for the property. The petition included the mistaken allegation that "Greenebaum Sons Investment Co. of Chicago has become insolvent and has been placed in receivership."

The Greenebaum Co. underwrote the $1,500,000 first mortgage bond issue which financed construction of the hotel and M. E. Greenebaum was named trustee under the mortgage. Ownership of Greenebaum Sons Investment Co. is identical with Greenebaum Sons Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago, founded in 1855 and said to be the oldest banking house in Chicago.

In connection with the Lennox receivership suit, M. Ernest Greenebaum Jr. and the Central Republic Trust Co., trustees under the first mortgage, yesterday filed objections to the petition. Their motion states that as trustees they are entitled to notice and a hearing before any action is taken and Jaudes' petition, they declare, makes no allegations which would justify and Court in appointing a receiver.

Municipal Opera to Spend $400,000 Next Season

Twelve Productions Will Be Presented—"Things to Be on Bigger and Finer Scale," President Kiel Says.

The Municipal Theater Association announced yesterday that the 1932 season, as usual, would consist of 12 productions, each shown for one week, beginning June 6 and ending Aug. 31.

The budget calls for the expenditure of $400,000 at the open-air theater in Forest Park, with employment for more than 400 persons during the summer.

Choice of the repertory has not been completed, pending selection this week of the general productions manager. The Municipal Opera's executive committee announced it was in negotiation with "one of America's foremost theatrical executives who will be engaged as productions manager for the 1932 season." While the association did not disclose the identity of the executive, it is understood that J. J. Shubert, the New York producer, was likely to be in charge again this season, as he was last year.

$150,000 Guarantee Fund.

A guarantee fund of $150,000 will be raised for the season to finance the productions. This work is to be done by a committee of the association of which M. E. Holderness, vice president of the First National Bank, is chairman. Guarantors again will advance one-half the amount of their subscriptions in order to finance the earlier phases of opera production. As is known, they receive their advances back at the close of the season unless there is a deficit. Only twice in the opera's history—the first and the twelfth seasons—has there been a deficit. Both have been repaid in full—the last out of the receipts from the 1931 season.

Discussing the season's plans, former Mayor Henry W. Kiel, president of the association, said:

"We shall take advantage of the general tendency toward lower prices. We shall be free from the overhanging shadow of the debt of $30,000 we repaid at the close of last season. We shall be able to do things on a bigger scale and a finer scale, partly because of the general downward trend in every department of production costs. Our study of the field of artists available for 1932 convinces us that we can have casts of a higher standard than the Municipal Opera has ever been able to offer—and that we can do this at a saving which will make available a greater sum than we have ever before had to devote to other phases of production activities."

Kiel pointed to the success of last season as a warranty for higher artistic standards and bigger productions in 1932. "Despite the fact of the general economic depression; despite the chaotic conditions in the theater in general, Municipal Opera last season established an all-time box-office record, simply because it continued the policy of artistic advance which has been the cornerstone of the opera's success from the beginning," he said. "At the season's close we were enabled to return to our guarantors the $30,000 which was owing to them for their advances to make good the deficit of the 1930 season. What is more, we were enabled to provide for many improvements in the theater plant, making for the comfort and convenience of our audiences and for more elaborate presentations in the theater this year."

Record Interest for 1932.

Because the opera has kept financial as well as artistic faith, Kiel pointed out, volunteer guarantors have already offered themselves for the 1932 season. "We have never known," he said, "a greater interest than is being manifested in Municipal Opera's plans for 1932.

"While we have not been able to determine the repertory because of the difficulty to find works of high artistic standard suitable for production in Forest Park, we know that it will be made up of many new works with some of the greatest favorites of past seasons, and we have definitely determined that there will be 12 productions. In this decision the Execu ive Committee was in part guided by the fact that to extend the run of an opera for two weeks means so much less employment for St. Louisans—since of the labor and material costs in each production practically every cent is distributed in St. Louis."

The Executive Committee for 1932 consists of President Kiel, Director of Public Welfare Harry L. Salisbury, vice president; Max Koenigsberg, chairman of repertory; Arthur Siegel, chairman of cast; Nelson Cunliff, chairman of stage and settings; Charles M. Talbert, chairman of costumes, and Park Commissioner Fred W. Pape, chairman of auditorium and grounds. Co-operating with the Executive Committee in an advisory capacity are Walter B. Weisenburger, divisional director of administration and finance; M. E. Holderness, divisional director of publicity; Otto E. Rugg, divisional director of concessions, and Paul J. Wielandy, divisional director of welfare.

immediately in front of the wharves were several thousand Japanese soldiers, awaiting orders. Their arms and equipment, stacked in military precision, were on the ground about them. There also were many cavalry horses.

In one corner 500 Japanese soldiers, awaiting orders in the grounds of a Japanese school, played with a half dozen Japanese children. They swung the children on the playground equipment. The youngsters and the soldiers alike laughed in high amusement as the fighters awaited their turn to proceed with the business of battle.

Within view were many artillery pieces. How many guns were there it was impossible to tell, but a large square adjacent to the waterfront was filled with them, while a nearby plot was given over to tanks.

Patrols on Guard.

Along the fringe of this wide area containing Japan's newly arrived forces, armed patrols of infantrymen and machine gunners walked guard against any possible intrusion.

Possibly 5000 soldiers could be seen. What had become of the others was not definitely established.

Most of them, however, appeared to have moved down the Whangpoo shore toward the extreme eastern boundaries of the international settlement in the general direction of Woosung. Another portion had marched into Hongkew, where they were expected to relieve Japanese bluejackets who had been on continuous duty there for many days.

A party of 15 Japanese, commanded by a sergeant, made a quick raid from their position on the west bank of the Woosung. The raiders crossed the stream on a frail foot bridge. Sharp rifle fire from the Chinese lines forced them to retreat hastily, but they effected the capture of one Chinese soldier. The captive, taken to headquarters, said he was 20 years old, had been in the army two months, and enlisted "to get something to eat."

Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, poet-warrior commanding the defenders, rearranged his front lines and reserves in order that he might be prepared to meet the impending Japanese thrust. Gen. Tsai declared he had 25,000 men ready for action.

Lieutenant - General Kenkichi Uyeda, who is in command of all Japanese land operations, arrived Saturday with his staff aboard the Mikasa Maru a short time before the seven transports. Leaders of the Japanese community, including Mamoru Shigemitsu, Tokio's Minister to China, and Consul-General Karamatsu Murai, turned out to welcome him. Additional transports are nearing Shanghai.

Japanese leaders declared they still had hopes that Gen. Tsai and other Chinese leaders would accept an armistice which would make their big push unnecessary. Chinese circles expected Gen. Uyeda to deliver an ultimatum, and they asserted this expectation had stiffened the determination of their Nineteenth Army to fight it out.

The Chinese declared they had advance knowledge of Japanese reinforcement movements and increased their own strength accordingly. A dispatch from Peiping said the valor of the Nineteenth had stimulated recruiting to such an extent that more than 200,000 volunteers had offered themselves for Shanghai service.

New American Protections.

The American troops raised new protections against shells and air bombs. Sand bag emplacements along Soochow were made higher and thicker. Officers also took steps to keep their men warm. Brick ovens were installed in the posts for the benefit of sentries on duty during these cold, wet nights.

They pointed out that a heavy Japanese drive would endanger the Marines, who are in position just behind Chapei and in line with the Japanese artillery in Hongkew Park. A little miscalculation in range-finding might mean that Japanese shells would overshoot their objectives.

Japanese Minister Shigemitsu said his last message to the Chinese authorities was sent Thursday and he had not received a reply. In this message he proposed that the Chinese withdraw 20 miles from Chapei and the Japanese withdraw from Hongkew.

GENEVA, Feb. 13.—The Chinese Government today issued a solemn declaration of its intention to resist the Japanese "invasion and slaughter of Chinese people."

"Despite the failure so far of pacific agencies," the statement said, "the Chinese Government adheres to its faith in world justice, but it cannot passively submit to Japan's invasion of Chinese territory and slaughter of Chinese people.

"Therefore it solemnly declares to the world that China will continue to resist in self-defense Japanese attacks at all points and with all the force at its command."

SUIT FILED TO PUT HANDLAN-BUCK CO. IN RECEIVERSHIP

Three Heirs of Late President of Concern Allege Mismanagement and Ask for Accounting.

An order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for the Handlan-Buck Manufacturing Co., makers of railway supplies at 212 North Third street, was issued by Circuit Judge Nortoni yesterday, upon filing of a suit by three heirs of the late Alexander H. Handlan. The order is returnable Feb. 23. The suit charges mismanagement.

Mr. Handlan, who died in 1921, was president of the company. His sons, Alexander H. Handlan, now president, and Edward H. Handlan, vice president, are made defendants in the suit, which asks for their removal from office.

Plaintiffs are Mrs. Kathryn Handlan Trautz, widow of M. J. Trautz; Mrs. Lillian Handlan Lemp and Mrs. G. A. Buder Jr. Mrs. Trautz and Mrs. Lemp are sisters of the defendants and Mrs. Buder is Mrs. Trautz's daughter. Mrs. Trautz resides with Mrs. Buder at 29 Crestwood drive, Clayton. Mrs. Lemp was the divorced wife of the late William J. Lemp Jr.

Litigation Over Estate.

The receivership suit, which also asks the Handlan brothers for an accounting, follows protracted litigation over the estate of the late Mr. Handlan, in which members of the family took sides.

Mrs. Trautz, Mrs. Lemp and Mrs. Buder each owns 100 of the 2500 shares of the $250,000 Handlan-Buck company, Mrs. Buder having inherited hers from her uncle, Eugene W. Handlan. Two other daughters of Mr. Handlan, Mrs. Marie H. Hornsby and Mrs. Vella H. Bisbee, also own 100 shares each. Mr. Handlan left 1550 shares in a trust fund, which figured in recent litigation. The remaining 450 shares are owned by Alexander and Edward Handlan.

After their father's death, Alexander and Edward Handlan took control of the business, the receivership suit alleges. The brothers, being a majority of the trustees under the will, obtained domination of the business by wrongfully registering the trust fund stock in their own names and that of their deceased brother, the petition charges.

"As a direct result of the incompetency and of the wrongful, fraudulent and unlawful acts and omissions of the individual defendants (Alexander and Edward Handlan) "the prosperity of the company has been destroyed," the petition asserts. The business suffered losses during a number of years of the brothers' management, it is alleged.

A surplus of more than $400,000 of the company's funds has been invested in securities not needed in the business, whereas it should have been distributed among the stockholders, the petition goes on, and only one dividend, of 3 per cent, has been paid on the Handlan-Buck stock since the brothers have been in charge.

Accounting Asked For.

An accounting for more than $300,000 for alleged excessive payments in salaries, bonuses and other accounts is asked of Alexander and Edward Handlan, and also an accounting of the profits of the Handlan Appliances Corporation, which the brothers are said to have organized. The suit asserts that Alexander has drawn a salary of $13,500 a year and Edward $7500 a year since 1922. They are alleged to have received bonuses to which they were not entitled and to have used the company's money for personal expenses. The petition mentions alleged investments of $15,854 in the Current River Hunting and Fishing Club in 1926 and of $9625 in the Wilkes Land Co.

The suit asks that the alleged sale of a Plum street warehouse to the company by Alexander Handlan in 1928 be set aside. The company had been renting this at $6000 a year, but it is alleged that Alexander Handlan bought it for $50,000 and sold it to the company for $150,000. This is one of the items covered in the request for an accounting.

Hugo Monnig Jr. of the law firm of Taylor, Chasnoff and Willson, counsel for the Handlan-Buck Co., said yesterday that the suit would be contested. Alexander Handlan is out of town. Edward Handlan could not be reached.

The litigation over the late Mr. Handlan's estate included a partition suit by Mrs. Trautz and a suit to construe the will by Mrs. Lemp. The various proceedings were consolidated in a case finally decided by the Supreme Court of Missouri six weeks ago, the Court upholding the trust provisions of the will. Mrs. Lemp and Mrs. Buder were among the beneficiaries of the trust, which included the 1550 shares of Handlan-Buck stock. The Court ruled that this block of stock, claimed by the Handlan brothers, must be returned to the trust. A motion for a rehearing of the case was overruled by the Court a week ago, Attorney Monnig said.

Police Court Clerk Fired.

Harry C. Teppe, clerk in Police Court No. 1 since 1922, was discharged Thursday, Thomas C. Hauk, clerk of the City Court, announced yesterday. His salary was $160 a month.

5179 DRY LAW ARRESTS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—A total of 5179 arrests for prohibition violations were reported today by the prohibition bureau—a decrease of 656 from the preceding month, but an increase of 679 over January, 1931.

Cases completed in Federal courts during the month exceeded new cases placed on the docket by 1294. This reduced the number pending to 21,748, the smallest on hand since last August. There were 2125 stills seized during January, compared with 2098 in December and 1924 in January, 1931. Seizures of beer totaled 177,753 gallons, an increase of 46,318 gallons over the preceding month.

Snowslide Buries Two Men.

By the Associated Press.

KELLOGG, Idaho, Feb. 13.—Carl Areander and Henry Lund, miners, were buried late today in a snowslide which crushed their cabin. Rescue parties believed they had perished. An avalanche of snow 50 feet deep swept over a bluff at Big Creek Gulch to bury their little home. Rescue crews tore desperately at the snow bank, saying the men had a bare chance for life if they had reached a nearby mine tunnel.

KIRKWOOD POWER COSTS LESS

Reduced power costs in Kirkwood became effective this month in the form of an increase in discount from 10 to 16 2-3 per cent on electric bills, due the first of the month, if paid on or before the 11th, the last discount date.

W. J. Donworth, City Clerk, said the reduced cost was made possible by the increase in the volume of business and slightly lower operating costs. The method of increasing the discount, he said, was simpler than changing the rate, which remains the same. Kirkwood buys its power from the Union Electric and distributes it from its own plant. A reduction in water rates last fall also was made possible by increased consumption.

Missouri Mine Operator Admits He Is Fugitive From North Carolina.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 13. — George Presnell, 59 years old, sought since 1903 for the slaying of Lewis Buchanan at Bakersville, N. C., when arrested yesterday at his home a few miles north of here, where he operated a coal mine under the name of George Miller, readily admitted his identity to Sheriff Clyde Ballew. He said he was not certain he killed Buchanan, but said that if he did, he killed him with a knife.

Since leaving Bakersville, Presnell has lived the life of a law-abiding citizen, he said. At Oskaloosa, Ia., where he resided for 15 years, he remarried, although he had left a young wife in North Carolina when he fled.

When officers arrested him at his home, the second Mrs. Presnell was shocked and said they had the wrong man. "No, dear, you do not understand, this is an old charge," he told her. When the murder charge was explained, she replied: "George, you have been good to me always, you have been a good husband, and I am going to stick to you and if you do go to prison, I will be waiting for you when you come out."

Presnell said the trouble with Buchanan, whom he described as a "sort of overbearing fellow," began when Buchanan insulted his wife. He told officers when he called Buchanan's attention to it, the latter kicked him in the face and knocked two teeth out. Presnell said he, Buchanan and a third man named Garland began fighting, but he didn't remember its outcome.

When asked why he left immediately, Presnell replied he knew charges would be filed against him.

Presnell went to Atlanta, then to old Indian Territory, then to Missouri. Sheriff Ballew said Presnell frequently went to Moberly when he worked in the mines north of here in 1903, 1904 and 1905, and has drifted in and out of there recently while operating a mine near Prathersville.

Presnell said he finally settled down in Oskaloosa, Ia., bought a farm, married and became fairly well-to-do. As a law-abiding citizen there, Presnell told how he served on juries 13 times, once sending a wife murderer to the gallows. He served as a road overseer and a member of the School Board. Presnell returned to Moberly for a short time before moving near here.

His arrest followed interception of letters to relatives in Bakersville, N. C. Members of his family have been trying for years to have him give himself up and face the charge against him. A brother visited him last summer and he said an attorney at Bakersville had written him about returning.

Presnell said yesterday he had been thinking seriously of going back and believed he would have returned before next fall.

Jailer, Recalling Killing, Says There Was No Third Man.

By the Associated Press.

BAKERSVILLE, N. C., Feb. 13. —When Sheriff J. M. Gouge was notified yesterday that George Presnell, wanted by Mitchell County authorities on an indictment charging the murder of Lewis Buchanan in 1903, was in Columbia, Mo., J. W. Bryant, county jailer, said he recalled the slaying of Buchanan, although it was 29 years ago. Buchanan died of his wounds within 30 minutes of being stabbed once with a knife after he had made some remarks to Mrs. Presnell, which were resented by the latter's husband, the jailer said. Presnell's reported statement that a third man was involved was not borne out by Bryant's recollections of the incident. The stabbing occurred on Big Rock Creek, about 12 miles from Bakersville.

Bryant said Mrs. Presnell was still living in this county. So far as he knew, she had never obtained a divorce from her missing husband, he added. There were no children. Bryant said one of the two witnesses to the Buchanan slaying, as named in the original bill of indictment, was still living. He is Obediah Bates, now residing in Johnson City, Tenn.

County Clerk for 32 Years Dies.

By the Associated Press.

TUSCOLA, Ill., Feb. 13.—Charles A. Hawkins, 71 years old, who was County Clerk of Douglas County for 32 years, died when eating lunch this noon.

LEGION CAMPAIGN FOR ODD JOBS WILL OPEN TOMORROW

A campaign to obtain odd jobs for unemployed men will be opened tomorrow under auspices of the American Legion, with volunteer workers soliciting pledges from property owners and others to employ at least one man for 10 weeks at a minimum of 50 cents a week. For every 30 such pledges obtained in this manner, a man will be put to work.

George W. Curran, vice chairman of the National Employment Committee of the Legion is directing the campaign, part of a national movement sponsored also by the American Federation of Labor and the Association of National Advertisers. It is hoped to put 2500 men to work here, he said.

The following ward captains will aid in procuring promises of employment: V. C. Kellogg, R. W. Sudemeyer, William E. Allem, Joseph Morgan, M. M. Silver, Albert Greb, G. E. Hanratty, G. H. Pollard, Dr. A. R. Shreffler, Perry Joyce, G. V. Schelester, J. N. Godsfroid, Edward Roche, Peter Hughes, R. L. Reitter, Ira Preswheat, G. C. Glenn, A. J. H. Portman, T. F. Coleman, W. M. Power, Col. Paul Werner, Otto Fink, Jules Blattner, Frank Cannito, J. H. Maguire, E. A. Warren, J. P. Hamilton and Noah Alper.

BECKER'S REPUTED RURAL STRENGTH FAILS TO SHOW UP

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

There were two outstanding developments in Republican state politics at the gathering of Missouri Republicans in St. Louis Thursday for the party state committee meeting and Friday for the annual Lincoln Day banquet of the Young Republicans' Association.

One was the dissipation of the effects of the propaganda assiduously circulated for nearly a year in an effort to convince Republican voters that Secretary of State Charles U. Becker's strength in rural counties was so great that he would sweep virtually every county in his campaign for the nomination for Governor.

The other was that the Republicans are facing a last-ditch wet-and-dry fight of city vs. country over the 13 nominations-at-large for Missouri's representation in Congress.

At the beginning of his campaign early last year Becker, seemingly hoping to frighen away all opposition and in an attempt to convince party committeemen in St. Louis and Kansas City that if they would be with a winner they should line up with him, began to promote the idea that out-State Republicans were virtually unanimously favorable to his candidacy.

Loses in Two Contests.

Rural party newspapers, to which for 11 years Becker has been distributing official printing of a value ranging from a few hundred dollars to $2500 each election to each of the favored papers, were used in the campaign, which had made noticeable progress until Republicans from all counties had the opportunity to meet and exchange views as to sentiment.

The strong evidence of the comparative strength of Becker and his opponent, Lieutenant - Governor Winter, came, however, in two official party actions, one the selection of the city in which the Republican State convention is to be held April 12, and the other the election of Congressman David Hopkins to the presidency of the Young Republicans' Association.

The selection of the convention city, though possibly not of major importance in the governorship contest, provided something of an indication of the strength of the candidates. Becker is reputed to be stronger in Springfield and Greene County than in any other county in the State. Springfield had been scheduled to get the State convention, but shortly before the committee met a group of Winter's active supporters at a conference decided they would prefer to have the convention in a city where the Becker influence would not be as strong as in Springfield. They decided on St. Louis, and St. Louis won by a vote of 42 to 11.

It is not unlikely that St. Louis would have been chosen over Springfield if the governorship fight had not entered into the contest, for, as a general rule, the out-State Republicans prefer to go to a larger city, but the majority for St. Louis would not have been as large.

Vote on Presidency.

It was really the vote on the presidency of the association which gave the real test. Winter and his followers supported Hopkins. Becker and his followers supported Mercer Arnold of Joplin. Hopkins won, 22 to 10.

The election was by the 32 vice presidents of the association, two, one man and one woman, representing each of the 16 Congressional districts in the state. Three of these districts were in St. Louis and 13 outside of St. Louis. The Winter forces in this election received the support of both vice presidents from 10 Congressional districts outside of St. Louis, and split two districts with the Becker forces.

The six vice presidents from St. Louis voted for Arnold, but according to a state official who had a leading part in managing the campaign for Hopkins, the St. Louis votes were influenced by Cleveland A. Newton, who, this official said, interested himself becuase of a close personal friendship of many years with Arnold and not because of a preference for Becker.

The conclusion which must be drawn from this election is that the Becker influence in the rural section is not sufficiently strong to control the actions of those chosen by the Republicans of at least 10 Congressional districts for important party offices.

William Sacks of St. Louis brought before the State Committee the virtual certainty that prohibition will be the deciding factor in the Congressional primary.

Wet Slate Threatened.

Sacks was not in the least hesitant in telling the Committee that unless steps were taken by the party organization to agree upon a slate of 13 candidates, a slate of 13 wet Republican candidates would be made up in St. Louis and every possible effort would be made by the St. Louis Republicans to nominate those on it, and to defeat dry candidates from outstate.

He told the committee that St Louis was determined to have representation in Congress and that the Republicans here were not disposed to take any chances on the nomination of a congressional ticket, all from outside St. Louis and possibly all dry. He suggested that the committee pick 13 candidates, three from St. Louis and 10 from outside St. Louis, and give the slate the powerful backing of the State organization in the primary.

Under such a plan, he said, St. Louis would not be hoggish and would support the slate, even though it might have on it several candidates who were known drys. He even suggested that Congressman Hopkins of St. Joseph and Congressman Manlove of Joplin, both drys, be included.

"If this is not done and if St. Louis Republicans are not convinced that three St. Louis wets will be nominated, they will make their own slate, and I feel certain you know it will be a slate of 13 wets, and with the big Republican vote of St. Louis concentrated as it will be for the slate, its success is virtually certain."

Committee Votes to Adjourn.

The antagonism between city and country, between wet and dry, was immediately apparent in the committee. Rural members protested that the voters would resent any slate-making by the committee. The subject was discussed for an hour and then was stopped when a rural committeeman offered a motion to adjourn the meeting. It was carried, the outstate committeemen outvoting those from St. Louis.

There is no doubt that Sacks presented a matter exceedingly disturbing to the party leaders. Approximately 43 per cent of the vote in the Republican primary is cast in St. Louis and 11 wet counties. This vote could be concentrated without much difficulty on a wet slate, while the remaining 57 per cent, scattered through 103 counties would be difficult of control against the slate, and possibly would be spread among 20 or 30 candidates.

During the discussion of Sacks' proposal, there was a suggestion that the State convention might more properly make up a slate of 13 candidates, apportioned geographically to give all sections representation; that, in effect, the State convention might nominate a congressional ticket subject to ratification at the primary. The convention will include delegates from all counties.

While men active in the Republican organization were unwilling to express opinions as to whether an agreement satisfactory to wets and drys could be reached, they did not hesitate to say they were disturbed by the situation, and that undoubtedly conferences would be held in an effort to prevent a sharp party division over liquor.

Carload of Flowers for Dog.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Feb. 13.—A carload of floral offerings accompanied the body of Pell, 13-year-old favorite police dog of William B. Leeds, to the Scarsdale animal cemetery today. A tomb is to be erected over the dog's grave. Pell was killed in a fight with its own son and another police dog given to Leeds by Alfred E. Smith. The body was embalmed and placed in a satin-lined casket. It lay in state in the Leeds home until burial today.

SAYS MEN WON'T CONSIDER CUT IN BUILDERS' WAGES

Secretary of Trades Council Declare Workers "Don't Care What They Do in Other Cities."

ASKED TO TAKE ONE-THIRD SLASH

Leader of Contractors Asserts Representatives of Individual Unions Have Taken Up Proposal.

Maurice J. Cassidy, secretary of the St. Louis Building Trades and Labor Council, asserted last night that local building labor interests were not considering and would not consider a 33 1-3 per cent wage cut which had been requested by the Associated Building Interests, composed of general and sub-contractors claiming to employ 80 per cent of the building workmen of the city.

"I'm speaking for all the crafts in the building trades council," Cassidy said. "We are not considering a wage reduction and we will not consider it. When it was brought up last fall, we rejected it. We're against all wage cuts. We don't care what they do in other cities, we won't accept a cut here."

R. L. Murphy, manager of the Associated Building Interests, informed of Cassidy's statement, said: "That's what I expected. The council rejected our wage-cut proposal last fall. Since then, however, and up to several weeks ago we had been meeting with representatives of various unions individually and they have agreed to consider it.

"Mr. Cassidy may not be informed of the fact that the various unions are considering acceptance of a wage reduction, but that is the fact. There will be a meeting next Tuesday of all employers of union building mechanics to discuss this matter."

Statement Sent to Workers.

The proposed reduction, according to Murphy, is necessary to enable contractors employing union labor to compete with open shop contractors. He said the suggestion was made in the expectation that a wage cut would act as a stimulus to the construction business.

The formal request, presented to the Building Trades Council, an organization of 17 building unions, with a membership of 18,000 men, reads in part as follows:

"Living costs have decreased, rents have been reduced, and the general public feels that wages should be lowered. In case this is not done, the union workmen and the closed shop contractor will be unable to compete with the open shop contractor and the nonunion workman. The only recourse the closed shop contractor will have open will be to trade direct with his men, and work them as cheaply as possible. This is an underhand method, and we hope it will not come to pass."

Wages Here High.

The suggested reduction would be for a period of 18 months, it is explained, and is to be considered only as an emergency measure. Attention was called to the establishment of similar temporary reductions in other cities—20 per cent in Chicago, Cincinnati and Indianapolis, $2 a day in Cleveland, $2 a day for carpenters in Boston, and a proposed reduction of 25 per cent in New York.

According to statistics of the National Association of Builders' Exchanges, wages of building workmen in St. Louis are among the highest paid. The hourly scale of several of the principal crafts follows: Bricklayers, plasterers and iron workers, $1.75; electricians, $1.65; plumbers and steamfitters, $1.62½; carpenters, asbestos workers, painters, sheet metal workers, stonemasons, tilesetters, $1.50; laborers, 87½ cents.

The value of building permits in St. Louis has dropped from $54,900,000 in 1925 to $16,619,000 in 1931. Union leaders admit that approximately 70 per cent of their membership is unemployed. Contractors, however, estimate that only about 15 per cent of the union men are working at present.

MODEL OF VATICAN PLANNED FOR CHICAGO FAIR NEXT YEAR

German Catholics Said to Be Preparing to Build Exhibit Covering City Block.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Catholics in Germany are reported to be planning the erection of a model of the Vatican at a cost of nearly $1,000,000 as an exhibit at the Century of Progress Exposition next year.

This was disclosed after a meeting of the exposition's religious committee which discussed a nonsectarian exhibit to be housed in a separate building. Under present plans the Vatican exhibit would cover an entire city block and show every one of the 1000 rooms in the Papal Palace. Reports said backers of the project have obtained the co-operation of Papal officials in making copies of many Vatican art treasures, including works of ancient sculptors and renaissance artists.

URGES TWO BILLS MAKING KIDNAPING FEDERAL OFFENSE

C. W. Gaylord for Chamber of Commerce Writes Asking Members of Congress to Support Them.

The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce has sent letters to all chambers of commerce in the country and to Senators and Representatives in Congress urging them to support two bills which would give the Federal Government jurisdiction in prosecuting kidnapers.

One of the measures, introduced by Senator Patterson, would make it unlawful to transport a kidnaped person from one state to another. The second, introduced by Representative Cochran, would make it a crime for a kidnaper to demand ransom by mail.

The chamber's letter, signed by C. W. Gaylor, chairman of its directors, referred to an alarming increase in the number of kidnapings. It cited a survey made by the St. Louis Police Department in which 502 cities reported 282 kidnapings last year. In 28 cases ransom was paid, in 13 the victims were murdered. Only 69 kidnapers were convicted.

"Big Business of Crime."

"As a racket of the big business of crime," Gaylord wrote, "kidnaping has become more and more a favorite. It is easy big money and gives employment to from eight to 10 criminals to a job, and crime rings are as much concerned with employment and profit-sharing these days as is business.

"Only one power deals effectively interstate, and that is the Federal Government. Today, it is a Federal offense to transport a stolen automobile from one state to another; it is similarly a Federal crime to take a woman from one state to another for immoral purposes; or to steal from interstate shipments. But it is not a Federal offense to steal a child—a living, breathing, priceless human being—from its mother's arms and run to the safety of another state.

"Legal Neglect."

"The legal neglect in this respect is intensified by the fact that such dastardly criminals can then with perfect freedom, torture, with threats of death, the parents or other loved ones with demands for ransom, using Uncle Sam's mails to do it—and that's no crime either. But an automobile, or stealing from a freight car, that's different—that's a Federal felony.

"It has been aptly said that the ability of gangsters to invent evasions faster than present legal machinery could cope with or prosecute has been the backbone of the wide increase of crime. These two bills will be the gre test single stop-gap to the alarming increase of kidnaping. With this objective, the cause is so urgent that little campaigning seems necessary to put over a measure so obviously vital."

ROOSEVELT ASSAILS SHOUSE'S SUGGESTION

Sending Delegates Uninstructed Would Mean "Barter and Trade," He Says.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 13.—Gov Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose presidential aspirations now stand at the center of a rapidly-developing Democratic controversy, said today that the rank and file of the party and not a process of "trade and barter" by a handful of leaders should determine who is to be the nominee.

Discussing directly the question whether instructed or uninstructed delegates should be sent to the convention the Governor declared the proposal to avoid prior pledges to candidates would "nullify and destroy" a fundamental principle of the party.

He did not directly mention his own candidacy, now facing in many states the challenge of an opposition which argues it would be unwise to foreclose the nomination in advance. He replied by name to only one of those who have presented such a view—Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee.

Would Disenfranchise Voters.

"I am sure Mr. Shouse could have had no ulterior motive," said the Governor, "for proposing a plan which if carried out would disfranchise the great body of Democratic voters."

Touching briefly on one feature of the campaign in his behalf, Roosevelt made it clear that while he has appointed no campaign manager, he has not changed the arrangement by which James A. Farley alone acts for the Roosevelt movement.

When he was asked directly for his views on the no-pledge proposal, most conspiculously espoused recently by Chairman Shouse, he said: "While every good Democrat is appreciative of the fine publicity work which my friend Jouett Shouse has conducted in Washington at Democratic headquarters during the past three years, his suggestion that all delegations go to the national convention uninstructed is unfortunately contrary to the principles of the party and the intent of the laws and party rules of almost every state.

Trading Post Idea.

"More than a generation ago there existed widespread disapproval of the kind of national convention which became merely a trading post for a handful of powerful leaders and where the nomination itself had nothing to do with the popular choice of the rank and file of the party itself.

"As a result and in keeping with the historic traditions of the party, primary laws and party rules were enacted in practically every state for the purpose of permitting the party voters themselves to express a choice for candidates.

"I am sure that Mr. Shouse on second thought will recognize the unsoundness of and party damage in his suggestion."

Louisiana Selects Uninstructed Democratic Delegation.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 13.—An uninstructed delegation from Louisiana will go to the Democratic National Convention in Chicago in June pledged to vote as a unit on a decision of a majority of the delegation. The delegates were chosen today at a meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee. Twenty-four were named, two from each of the eight Congressional Districts with one full vote each and eight delegates at large with a half vote each, making a total of 20 votes for the Louisiana delegation. Senator Huey P. Long was re-elected National Committeeman and Mrs. Emile Bienvenu was chosen National Committeewoman to succeed Mrs. Stella Hamlin.

Upsurge of Prices on Glass-Steagall Bill Which Is Urged as New Antidote to Deflation Resembles Those of National Credit Corporation and War Debt Moratorium Proposals.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Securities and commodities were again yanked out of the quicksands of depression onto higher ground this week.

The Glass-Steagall bill to increase the flexibility of the Federal Reserve System, as a new antidote to deflation, appears as stocks and some of the leading commodities were sinking into new depths for the bear cycle.

The upsurge of prices, particularly of stocks, resembled that of October, when the National Credit Corporation was proposed, and of last June, when prices were given a powerful boost by the war debt moratorium.

In the hope that increased freedom of the Federal Reserve System in placing credit where it is most needed, together with the operations of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, would at least effectively strengthen the banking structure and restore public confidence, Wall Street was able to overlook the low state of industry and trade. Fresh hopes that the last serious barriers to recovery in this country were being removed diverted attention from the troubles of Europe, and the continued hostilities in the Far East.

The Reconstruction Corporation started to function during the week, and has already made loans to banks. Simultaneously, bank suspensions for the latest week, as calculated by the "American Banker," dropped to 17, the lowest in 12 months. At the same time, there were seven reopenings. There was also substantial improvement in the commercial insolvency record.

Short Covering a Factor.

While sudden upsurges in securities in the previous course of the depression have only served to arouse false hopes, Wall Street bankers expressed the hope that the latest proposals were at last coming to the real roots of the problem. Much of the upswing in stocks was at the expense of the short interest, but there was also active buying in the hope that the bottom had been reached. Gains as measured by averages were the sharpest since the October recovery. After touching a new low for the bear cycle on Wednesday at 59.5, the price index of 90 stocks surged up to 69.9, a net gain of 8.6 points for the week. Bonds responded less spectacularly, but were impressively strong at the close of the week. The index of 60 corporate issues sagged .8 of a point in the first half of the week, then recovered 1.2, closing at 74.7.

Although U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage statement on Monday showed a further shrinkage to a new low since the record has been kept, and steel mill operations dragged on at the depression lows, announcement that the Ford Motor Co. was going into active production in near future encouraged both the steel and automotive industries generally. Union Pacific's ordering of its regular quarterly dividend of $2.50, after widespread forecasts of a reduction, also added to the upward impetus of the stock market.

Big Upturn at Week-End.

The market made the most of its better spirits today, racing merrily upward in a rally that improved on Thursday's gains and that produced the largest Saturday turnover since May 3, 1930. Transactions amounted to 2,626,120 shares.

Although the average rise of 5.4 points was only fractionally better than the previous session's, many issues showed much wider advances, largely because shorts whose position had been rendered acutely serious were forced to cover.

The upward push was also accelerated by traders anxious to be on the winning side, but whatever the forces behind the drive were, its results were hardly open to argument.

Those who had felt new legislation for widening Federal Reserve eligibility might spell inflation were told over the holiday that such was not the purpose of the measure's sponsors. Nevertheless, there seemed to be a feeling that if deflation was to be arrested, some change, however mild, in the other direction was likely, and that security prices should anticipate this expansion.

It was a strong, lively market from the opening and it closed near the top. Net gains in sizeable number of stocks were reckoned in two figures, while advances of 3 to 7 points were common. Union Pacific outstripped Auburn with an extreme rise of 21½ points, nine of which it gave up. The small floating supply of American Telephone was actively bid for and the stock clambered to 134, compared with Wednesday's low of 109¾. Its close was 132¾, up 14½.

U. S. Steel Near 50.

U. S. Steel came within an eighth of 50. The 5-point net gain was approximated by du Pont and Westinghouse and exceeded, to the extent of a point or two, by Allied Chemical, Coca Cola, Western Union, Consolidated Gas and American Can. Santa Fe and People's Gas closed about 10 points higher. Auburn's contribution was a net rise of 13¾.

New York Central, able to show 49 cents a share for 1931 despite the last quarter deficit, rose 5¾ and finished a point under the high. Southern Pacific, with a dividend meeting scheduled for next week, was less energetic.

Ford's manufacturing program, involving the recall of many workmen, was announced at a strategic moment, it is believed; certainly it gave the steel industry needed encouragement. Youngstown district plants will start next week at 36 per cent of capacity against 35 per cent from last Monday.

Advices from abroad indicated that the proposed expansion of the Federal Reserve credit base had been received with general favor, although some uncertainty appeared to exist in France. Foreign exchange rates have not acted as though Europe was greatly troubled by rumors of inflation here. There has been some hardening against the dollar, but nothing to compare with the strength that accompanied discussions of our anti-deflation program when the policy was in its first stages.

BUOYANT MARKET IN NEW YORK BONDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13. — Although eclipsed somewhat by spurting stock prices, the bond market today joined the ascending markets and gave what dealers described as an exceptionally good account of itself.

In the buoyant brief session various issues added from 1 to 6 points to their recent rallies and trading was the most active since Dec. 19, with sales totaling $9,635,000. The average for 60 corporate securities advanced 7-10 of a point.

Virtually all classes of mortgages joined in the move to higher levels, but rail liens occupied the center of interest. The higher priced carriers, however, were not neglected and a number of these showed gains of from fractions to 2 or more points.

Advances were especially noticeable in some bonds of Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, Canadian Pacific, New York Central, New Haven, Nickel Plate, Boston & Maine, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Erie, Denver & Rio Grande, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, Northern Pacific; Frisco, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Wabash.

The utilities and industrials were somewhat more restrained than the rails, but many of them exhibited pronounced strength, especially loans of the communication companies.

The United States Government list recorded moderate gains throughout. The foreign section also displayed a firm tone. German Government issues were up around 2 points. South Americans advanced as a whole and Japanese liens were steady.

LARGEST SATURDAY TRADE SINCE SEPTEMBER ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The Curb Market took a new lease on life today as buying power steadily broadened until a total of 350,000 shares of stock changed hands in the abbreviated two-hour session.

The day's turnover was the largest for any Saturday since last Sept. 19, when 500,000 shares were bought and sold.

Practically all issues shared in the brisk advance with a number of representative leaders rushing up 2 or more points.

Electric Bond & Share, the most active stock on the list, advanced 1¾ points to 12½. Aluminum Corp. raced up 3½ points to 56. Gains of 1 point or more were made by American Gas & Electric, American Hardware, American Light & Power Traction, New Jersey Zinc and Standard of Indiana.

Gulf led the oil stocks with an advance of 4⅜ points to 32. Singer Manufacturing ran up 5 points. A. O. Smith was up 5¾ points.

Although Commonwealth Edison's report for 1931 showing a decline of 4 per cent in electrical output compared with 1930 had just been made public, it did not deter buyers who bid up the stock 4⅜ points.

Ford Motor issues, although representing Ford's foreign enterprises, moved up.

Copper Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Copper prices today reflected the better feeling displayed by commodity and security markets and there was a moderate advance in prices.

Customs smelters raised the quotations for foreign shipments at 6⅜ cents a pound, against the previous price of 6⅛, and the domestic to 6¼ cents. In the domestic market the metal has been selling for 6 cents a pound.

Copper Exporters, Inc., the co-operative sales organization of the producers, which has recently held to an "official" foreign price of 6⅝ cents a pound, dropped its quotation to 6⅜ cents to be in line with the domestic smelters. Due to a revision of the Exporters, Inc., regulations, producers have had a right to undersell the "official" figures in order to move surplus stocks.

WHEAT HAS GOOD UPTURN AND CLOSE IS STRONG

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Big export business in wheat added to the impetus of stock market buoyancy today, and took all grain values aloft.

It was estimated 3,000,000 bushels or more of North American wheat had been bought for shipments overseas, including substantial quantities of United States hard winter wheat to go to France and Greece.

Wheat scored a maximum gain of 2½ cents a bushel, and closed strong 1¾@2⅛ cents higher than Thursday's finish, corn 1¼@1½ cents up, oats ⅞@1 cent advanced, and provisions showing a rise of 17 to 25 cents.

Earliest at hand was word that the Liverpool wheat market anticipated a fresh advance in quotations here, and had made a sharp upturn. Then came announcement that France had again broadened her wheat import quota, and would permit French millers to use 20 per cent of foreign wheat instead of only 3 per cent, the recent limit. On top of these bullish factors and treated as of far greater significance, were the soaring of security values and the indications of broad export demand for North American wheat.

In spite of heavy profit taking sales on bulges, price reactions were of the briefest character, and were followed by rallies that quickly hoisted the market higher and higher. A feature was that foreigners who previously had been conspicuous on the selling side, made haste to reverse their market position. Contributing to the momentum of price advances were predictions of colder weather, suggesting new chances of crop damage to domestic winter wheat unprotected by snow.

Corn and oats shared in wheat strength. There was active buying of corn future deliveries. Country offerings of corn were smaller, in spite of higher prices.

Provisions duplicated the action of securities and cereals, notwithstanding that hog values were lower.

WHEAT HAS GOOD UPTURN AND CLOSE IS STRONG

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Big export busi- ness in wheat added to the impetus of stock market buoyancy today, and took all grain values aloft.

It was estimated 3,000,000 bushels or more of North American wheat had been bought for shipments overseas, including substantial quantities of United States hard winter wheat to go to France and Greece.

Wheat scored a maximum gain of 2⅛ cents a bushel, and closed strong 1⅜@2⅛ cents higher than Thursday's finish, corn 1¼@1½ cents up, oats ⅜@1 cent ad- vanced, and provisions showing a rise of 17 to 25 cents.

Earliest at hand was word that the Liverpool wheat market anticipated a fresh advance in quotations here, and had made a sharp upturn. Then came announce- ment that France had again broadened her wheat import quota, and would permit French millers to use 20 per cent of for- eign wheat instead of only 3 per cent, the recent limit. On top of these bullish factors and treated as of far greater sig- nificance, were the soaring of security values and the indications of broad ex- port demand for North American wheat.

In spite of heavy profit taking sales on bulges, price reactions were of the briefest character, and were followed by rallies that quickly hoisted the market higher and higher. A feature was that foreigners who previously had been con- spicuous on the selling side, made haste to reverse their market position. Con- tributing to the momentum of price ad- vances were predictions of colder weather, suggesting new chances of crop damage to domestic winter wheat unprotected by snow.

Corn and oats shared in wheat strength. There was active buying of corn future deliveries. Country offerings of corn were smaller, in spite of higher prices.

Provisions duplicated the action of se- curities and cereals, notwithstanding that hog values were lower.

MAKING vs. SAVING

SINCE 1893

It is not the ability to make money that counts so much in achieving financial independence. We have only to look about us to see those who have made fortunes but have died poor. No, it's not just in making it.

The important thing is saving money. The man or woman who is careful, who saves a part of his or her income and invests those savings where they will be safe and profitable, is the one who will be financially independent. That is not a mere statement! It is an established fact.

The Farm and Home plan of investment saving is ideal for those who aspire to financial security because:

The stability and security of this institution have been firmly established during the 38 years of its existence.

Its ability to earn profits for its members is proven by the record of earnings . . . $27,000,000.00.

Its attraction as an institution for the safeguarding of savings is attested by the fact that more than 50,000 men and women are now members of Farm and Home.

If you are interested in saving money and making those savings multiply by sound investment, then let us explain in detail the Farm and Home plans. There is one exactly suited to your own financial position. Just write or phone the nearest office. There is no obligation.

145 TAKING TRAINING AS BOY SCOUT LEADERS

Four Classes to Accept New Members at Second Meeting This Week.

A total of 145 scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters and troop committeemen enrolled in the four training courses in Boy Scout and Cub leadership started by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council last week. All four courses, which form the main part of the council's spring leadership training program, will still accept new members at their second meeting this week.

Nearly two-thirds of the entire enrollment, or 85, was in one class, that in the elements of scoutmastership, the course on which all the council's training has been based for several years. This class has been held every spring and fall since training started, for men new to scouting and for leaders of little experience. The present class, which is organized as a scout troop, meets at Michael School on Monday evenings, under leadership of Field Executive J. J. Case.

Thirty men, all graduates of a provision elementary course, have joined a class in first aid being conducted at Washington University Medical School, also on Monday evenings. Deputy Commissioner Aubrey C. Lindsley is director of this class, but most of the actual instruction is done by Dr. Raymond F. Barnes.

The two specialization courses remaining, in swimming and cub leadership, both have 15 members. The swimming class meets at Principia pool Wednesday evenings, under direction of Commodore Flint, while that in cub leadership meets at Michael School Tuesday evenings. This latter class, which is conducted by Cub Director S. C. Reaves of the St. Louis Council, is intended primarily for men interested in leadership of Cub packs, but is open to Boy Scout leaders interested in cub work.

All courses start at 7:30 o'clock.

Central District.

Troop 177 of Compton Heights Christian Church attended church in a body, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Daugherty and the entire troop committee, last Sunday. Troop 52, under Scoutmaster Doyan, also attended the services as visitors. The Rev. J. H. Coil preached on Character and Citizenship.

Troop 189 of Shaw Av. Methodist Church was awarded a Standard Troop streamer at a Troop Court of Honor and Parents' Night held by the troop a week ago Tuesday evening. Twenty-five scouts and 110 guests witnessed the evening's program, which, in addition to the Standard Troop award, consisted of an Investiture Ceremony, a playlet, talks and the presentation of second class badges, merit badges and a Star pin. The Investiture Ceremony was built around the Washington Bicentennial. Field Executive J. J. Case spoke on the Standard troops of the council, and then presented Deputy Commissioner Brown, who made the Standard Troop award. The playlet, "School Daze," which was given by the scouts, was followed by refreshments served by the Parents' Club of the troop. Deputy Commissioner Percy Shull was in charge of the program. Scouts Lee Hall, Kenneth Jost and Robert Martin gave a short play, "Washington—Boy Scout," at the meeting last Tuesday.

Scouts and parents of Troop 242, St. Francis de Sales Church, went on a tour of the new Globe-Democrat building a week ago Friday evening. The trip was arranged by the troop committee.

North District.

Eight scouts, three officers and one visitor were present at the regular meeting of Troop 3, Grace Holy Cross Church, last week. There was an inspection and talks were made by the scoutmaster, assistant scoutmaster and senior patrol leader.

Final plans for a Troop Court of Honor Feb. 25 were made at the meeting of Troop 88, Salem Church, last week. Scouts Fred Ahrens and Vernon Nickols went on a hike last Saturday.

Troop 149, St. Paul's Methodist Church, attended Sunday School in uniform last Sunday and took charge of the program. The church service which followed was dedicated to the scouts. The troop will help at a Fathers' and Sons banquet at the church Friday evening.

The Eagle patrol won a contest from the Beavers at the regular meeting of Troop 161 at Webster School a week ago Thursday. A flag ceremony and inspection were held. Two troop committeemen were present at the meeting, in addition to scouts, scoutmaster and assistant.

South District.

Troops 139, 157, 178, 180 and 247 will be guests of Troop 76 at a special Scout Service at Winnebago Presbyterian Church at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Each troop will carry its American and troop flags, which will be massed in front of the church. The Rev. Jerrie Johnson, pastor, will preach a special scout sermon.

The scouts of Troop 20, Holy Family Parish, will receive communion in a body at a 7:15 o'clock mass at the church this morning. The observance is in celebration of Scout Sunday.

Special scout services for troops of Carondelet will be held at the Zion M. E. Church, headquarters

SCOUT BOARDS OF REVIEW TO MEET IN EACH DISTRICT

Candidates for First and Second Class to Be Examined This Week.

Boy Scout Boards of Review, to examine candidates for the ranks of first-class and second class scout, will be held in each of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council districts this week. The reviews will be held as follows:

North District, Farragut School, Monday evening; South District, Fanning School, Monday; West District, Ben Blewett Junior High School, Tuesday; Central District, Gallaudet School, Wednesday; Inter-racial District, Banneker School Tuesday; Suburban District, Webster Groves High School, Wednesday.

Scouts appearing before the boards must have with them evidence that they have passed all required tests, a statement to that effect signed by the scoutmaster, and other required material such as bankbooks, hike accounts, maps, field notes, and articles of handicraft. A scout may attend the review of any district.

of Troop 174, at 7:30 o'clock this evening. In addition to Troop 174, Troops 73, 215, and 232 will attend the services. R. A. Waite, associate director of the American Youth Foundation, will give a talk.

Two new scouts, Elwood Postlewaite and Russell Colbert, were admitted into Troop 244, of Kennard School, as the first new members obtained by the troop in a membership campaign. Every scout in the troop, accompanied by the scoutmaster and three troop committeemen, attended a special scout service at St. Luke's M. E. Church last Sunday.

West District.

Troop 17 of the First United Presbyterian Church; spent its last meeting mending church song books as a troop good turn. Committeeman Boeckman supervised the work. The troop will hold a court of honor in its new headquarters room next week. The room will be open for inspection by parents of the scouts.

Arrangements for a troop court of honor, to be held next week, were made at the regular meeting of Troop 94 of St. Barbara's Church, last week. The court will award merit badges and badges of rank achievement to scouts who passed the December Board of Review.

Nineteen merit badges, one first class, one second class, and one tenderfoot pin were awarded at a troop court of honor conducted by Troop 101 of West Park Baptist Church last week. Arthur Boroughs received seven merit badges, Walter Swistowicz three, Scout James Stoddard three, Gene Nelson two, Paul Bode two and William Brown and George Boggot one each. Herbert Albrecht received a first class pin, Vernon Bode a second class, and James Cassidy a tenderfoot pin. Troop Committeeman Kirchner read a poem, "Keep on Trying," and Committeeman Staber spoke on merit badges.

Suburban District.

Troops Home Heights 1, Marvin Park 1, Mount Pleasant 1, Overland 1, Overland 2, and Thomas Station 1, of the new Ritenour division, attended a joint Scout Sunday celebration at the Marvin Park Community church last Sunday. The Rev. M. H. Statts talked on "Success."

The scouts of Home Heights 1, led by Scoutmaster John Norris and accompanied by committeemen Silver and Howell, visited the German Protestant Orphans' Home last week, and presented a model troop meeting program. Boys of the home joined in a game with the scouts. The troop is sponsored by the Home Heights Parent-Teacher Association.

Belleville Area.

Belleville 6 of Humboldt School will reregister this month for another year. Fourteen scouts, Scoutmaster Fred Stock and Assistant Scoutmaster Leroy Schaufler attended the meeting last week. Scout John Raab's patrol has planned a hike to Committeeman Schaeffer's farm. Scout Fred Stock's patrol will give a signaling demonstration at the next meeting.

Scouts Fred Koenig, Melvin Kastel and Marion Gundlach of Belleville 11, Franklin School, received awards at a troop court of honor at the school a week ago Wednesday evening.

Troop 12 of St. Paul's Hall is planning to visit St. Louis today to see a workman who makes model engines, locomotives and motors. The troop will be under the leadership of Scoutmaster George Kuhn. The troop attended a special scout service at St. Paul's Church last Sunday.

Two new tenderfoot scouts, Jerome and Sylvester Geolat, were admitted into Belleville 13, Christ Church Hall, at the last meeting. Scout Saeger is building a duffel cabinet for the troop. Plans are being made for a hike.

The Silver Oak patrol, with 530 points, is leading in an interpatrol contest of Belleville 14, Franklin School. The Owl patrol is second with 520 points, the Flying Eagles third with 440. Each patrol has built a totem pole and each is working on a patrol flag.

Party at School for Blind.

Pupils of the craft department at the Missouri School for the Blind entertained the younger students at a Valentine Party Friday night. They made the valentines and prepared the refreshments themselves. Mrs. Georgia McAdams Clifford told appropriate stories. The program was directed by Miss Faith Koch, teacher of home economics at the school.

LAUSANNE PARLEY ON REPARATIONS TO MEET IN JUNE

It Will Seek 'Lasting Settlement of Economic Difficulties Responsible for World Crisis.'

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—A lasting solution of the world's economic and financial ills is the program set for the adjourned Lausanne Reparations Conference which, it is officially announced today, will meet in June.

In authoritative quarters it was expected that the conference would be shifted to Geneva.

"The object of the conference," the foreign office announced, "will be to agree on a lasting settlement of the questions raised in the report of the Basel experts and on measures necessary to solve other economic and financial difficulties which are responsible for, and may prolong the present world crisis.

"This decision was reached in the hope it will ease the international situation."

It is expected that more details concerning the June meeting will be made public tomorrow when Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, returns to London from Geneva.

The foreign office declined to make any comment on its communique.

The new date for the conference resulted from Franco-British conversations on the reparations issue which have been in progress since January. Belgium, Germany, Italy, Japan and Great Britain have joined in recommending the new conference, with an enlarged scope, to the other Governments concerned.

No mention was made in official circles of the part the United States might play but it is recalled that Washington representatives would have been welcomed at the meeting that was to have been held several weeks ago at Lausanne.

AGENT SUES "RUSS" COLUMBO

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Suit for an injunction and an accounting from Russell (Russ) Columbo was begun today in the United States District Court by Jack Gordeau Agency, Ltd., a booking concern. Besides Columbo, a Californian temporarily residing in New York, Russco Corporation, the National Broadcasting Co., Lambert Pharmacal Co., Paramount-Publix Corporation and Skouras Theaters Corporation are named defendants.

The booking concern states that June 21, 1931, Columbo signed a contract giving it exclusive control of his services as a singer and theatrical performer. It asserts the contract is still binding, although Columbo since has made contracts with the other defendants under which he is performing.

FEDERAL RESERVE CREDIT EXPANSION BILL TO BE RUSHED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The House will take up Monday the Glass-Steagall bill to broaden the rediscount powers of the Federal Reserve System.

Representative Rainey of Illinois, the Democratic leader, forecast that this administration-sponsored bill would be expedited under suspension of the rules if unanimous consent for its consideration could not be obtained. A two-thirds majority is required to suspend the rules. Chairman Steagall of the House Banking Committee said if this procedure failed, a legislative rule giving the bill right of way would be adopted and the measure passed Tuesday. Speaker Garner indicated he favored quick action.

The Senate Banking Committee also has approved the bill and action in that branch next week is probable.

A formal report of the banking committee was filed by Chairman Steagall, which said:

"It is believed that this bill without undue expansion, will result in easier credit which will aid in ending bank failures and in improvement of business conditions generally."

The bill's purpose, the report says, is to afford a means of relief to banks that find themselves in urgent need of accommodations, referring to the provision that permits Government securities to be accepted by Federal Reserve banks for re-discount purposes, it says:

"The substitution of Government obligations for commercial paper simply carries out the policy expressed in the original Federal Reserve act.

"The purpose of the measure is to broaden the credit facilities of the Federal Reserve System to afford relief from the distressing conditions that now exist. Provision is made for loans to a group of member banks not less than five in number who find themselves without collateral now eligible at Federal Reserve banks.

"The loans may be made upon time or demand promissory notes. Groups of banks applying for loans are required to put up with a trustee selected by them such collateral as they may agree upon. No such loans may be made upon foreign securities, nor for a longer period than one year and must bear a rate of interest not less than one per cent in excess of the prevailing rate. It is thought that this will afford a practical method by which banks may merge their collateral and their credit resources and obtain relief for temporary emergencies."

Steagall said the bill would release $750,000,000 in gold by permitting the use of Government bonds as a basis for currency. At present he said, the $2,900,000,000 in Federal Reserve notes was backed by $2,000,000,000 in gold and $900,000,000 in eligible rediscount paper.

It was never contemplated, he said, nor was it considered desirable that more than 40 per cent of gold should be carried as protection for currency.

French Financier Says American Bill Means Monetary Inflation.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—Lucien Lamoureux, financier and reporter for the budget committee in the Chamber of Deputies, today described the American proposal to broaden the rediscount basis of the Federal Reserve System as monetary inflation, inasmuch as it would increase the currency in circulation. "In normal times," he said, "this would not present any danger, first, because the proposal does not change the legal Federal Reserve gold coverage; second, because this inflation will be guaranteed by a supplementary gold reserve in proportion to the legal coverage; third, because advances to banks will be guaranteed for the Treasury by collateral demanded with each advance, and fourth, because this inflation would not be made to aid the Federal budget."

In a period of economic and financial crisis and of a budgetary deficit, said Lamoureux, the American proposals presented certain psychological dangers for American money.

"From the economic standpoint the bill seems useful," he said, "as I understand it, it opens credit to banks which in turn will pass it on to industrial and commercial clients. The present crisis, for various reasons, is characterized by restricted credits, which paralyze business. It is against this condition that the American measure apparently is directed. In this respect the measure means inflation, but fruitful inflation, and I think all countries should follow the results closely."

E. B. M'LEAN APPEAL FAILS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13. — An appeal from a ruling of the District of Columbia Supreme Court enjoining Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, from prosecuting divorce proceedings in Mexico was dismissed today by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

The Court granted a motion for dismissal which termed the appeal "frivolous." It was made by attorneys for Mrs. McLean.

Hampden is now taking "Cyrano" on a coast-to-coast tour for the first time and touring with "Cyrano" is really a tremendous physical undertaking—and financially hazardous—because the production is unusually massive and the play has no less than 121 speaking roles, requiring a cast of 75 actors, so that a special train of seven cars is necessary for transportation of scenery, company and mechanical accessories.

IT'S an Al Jolson without burnt cork who returns tonight to the Shubert Theater—after five years in the goldfields of Hollywood—in that continental combination of musical comedy, drama and revue, "The Wonder Bar," which also marks the return of Morris Gest, who is producing the piece in association with the Shuberts.

Jolson heard about "The Wonder Bar" when it first achieved its great success in Berlin. Descriptions of its action aroused Al's interest, for it gives the head man of the cast plenty of opportunity to wander up and down the aisles and gag with the audience. In his old Winter Garden days in New York Jolson seldom left the stage but there was never a friendlier comedian. All his greetings and gag inventions were done on the other side of the footlights. "The Wonder Bar" has no stage or footlights, which gives it the appearance of something made to order for Jolson.

In the big cast of principals supporting Jolson will be Claire Windsor, Luana Alcaniz, Walter Armitage, Patsy Kelly, Auguste Aramini, Leonid Kinskey, Antonina Fechner, Dagmar Oakland, Renee Cartier, Frank Green, Clayton Estes, Laura Pierpont, Viola Gillette, Jay Williams, Frank Jerome, Ernest Lambert, Clarence Harvey, Manchi Brothers, Al Segal, Michael Dalmstoff and many others.

GETTING back to Walter Hampden, it may be well to recall, briefly, for the benefit of the present generation of theatergoers who never saw Richard Mansfield's performance of "Cyrano," that the story of the poetic drama concerns the life and great love of De Bergerac, poet, philosopher, swordsman and adventurer, and was one of the Cadets of Gascoigne in the service of King Louis XIII of France. Cursed with an enormous nose which gave him a grotesque appearance, he shunned women, although he was secretly in love with his beautiful young cousin, Roxane.

Cyrano, ashamed of his unfortunate appearance, makes love, by way of letters and poems, to Roxane through a young cadet, the fair-haired Christian de Nouveillette. Not until the end of the play when Cyrano dies in her arms does Roxane realize that she has loved the real letter writer and poet and not the younger man.

The tale is told in five acts, the last one taking place 14 years after the start of the story.

JOLSON, the man who made "Mammy" a cross between coon-shouting and grand opera, turned the talking pictures into the nation's third biggest industry, and who is generally held responsible for the "Sonny Boy" nightmare, brings, as said before, "The Wonder Bar" to the Shubert tonight.

Before he departed for a sojourn of almost five years in Hollywood, Jolson was one of the wisest birds in show business. He followed the lines of least resistance, and got away with it for the simple reason that he didn't try to go against the wishes of old Mr. and Mrs. John Public, the couple that pays the freight.

The first Jolsonian song hit was a ditty entitled "My Jersey Lily," penned by Harry Von Tilzer. As a boy of 14 he sang this as a "gallery been using the voting places to be abandoned must go to the nearest polling place to vote at the next election. Two Stars Widely Apart

Walter Hampden Comes to the American in His Revival of the Classic "Cyrano de Bergerac" for Three Nights While Al Jolson Enters Upon a Week of "The Wonder Bar" at the Shubert—Maude Adams and Skinner to Arrive Next Week.

AFTER a considerable rest the American and Shubert Theaters reopen, for a short period at least, this week with two big offerings which will appeal to two widely different types of audiences, for Al Jolson begins a week's visit to the latter house tonight in the Continental musical affair, "Wonder Bar," and tomorrow evening Walter Hampden comes to the American for three nights and a single matinee with his revival of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Both "legit" theaters put up the shutters for a while after that. The American will have a seven day dark period before Maude Adams and Otis Skinner arrive, a week from next Wednesday, in "The Merchant of Venice" which will be followed, on Feb. 29 by "The Green Pastures" which comes in for a two weeks' visit. The Shubert, with several shows in the offing, notably "Grand Hotel," now set for March 14, announces that Fred Stone's "Smiling Faces," originally booked for Feb. 29, has been postponed.

Mr. Hampden's evening performances of Edmond Rostand's famous heroic poetic comedy will begin promptly at 8 o'clock and the curtain will ring up on Wednesday's matinee at 2. That "Cyrano de Bergerac" will be one of the highlights of the local theatrical season can hardly be doubted, for there are few plays of quality so fine before the public today. There is ample evidence to support this high claim—evidence in the popularity of the play in all the countries of Europe for a third of a century, and the extraordinary success achieved in it by Mr. Hampden in New York and other large eastern cities during the past eight years.

Hampden is now taking "Cyrano" on a coast-to-coast tour for the first time and touring with "Cyrano" is really a tremendous physical undertaking—and financially hazardous—because the production is unusually massive and the play has no less than 121 speaking roles, requiring a cast of 75 actors, so that a special train of seven cars is necessary for transportation of scenery, company and mechanical accessories.

The first Jolsonian song hit was a ditty entitled "My Jersey Lily," penned by Harry Von Tilzer. As a boy of 14 he sang this as a "gallery plant" for Miss Aggie Behler as they traveled over the burlesque routes. Later he was a member of Mr. Dockstader's celebrated minstrel group and afterward went to the Shubertian fold, where he still remains when not enmeshed in the tinsel of Hollywood.

THIS "Wonder Bar" business is said to be a distinct novelty. The theater is transformed into a cabaret or night club, the idea originating in a cafe in Vienna. The canny Mr. Jolson will preside in the box office from 8 to 8:30 p. m., and will hold an informal finale at 11:15.

It is amusing to note that blatant poster announcement, "Al Jolson in Person." Time was when Broadway and the key cities were seldom Jolsonless, but that was before the talkies took both Brother Al and his ancient Manhattan home, the Winter Garden, to their bosoms, shouting: "Thar's gold to be got out of these new-fangled contraptions after all."

Director Stevens in Lectures on Theater

The first of a series of six weekly lectures entitled "The Theater From Athens to Broadway" will be given Tuesday evening by Thomas Wood Stevens, director of the Little Theater, at the Artists' Guild Building, Union boulevard and Enright avenue, at 8 o'clock.

The lecture series is presented by the Cryptic Club of St. Louis and will include discussions on "The Classic Theater," "The Medieval Theater," "The Comedy of Masks," "Elizabethan Days," "The Theater of Moliere" and "The Modern Theater."

Musical Comedy in German.

"Studententage in Heidelberg" (Student Days in Heidelberg), a musical comedy describing German student life in Heidelberg, by R. Bendix, will be given tonight by the German Theater stock company in the German House Auditorium, 2345 Lafayette avenue. This play is similar to the well-known "Student Prince," the principal difference being that it does not deal with the love affairs of a Prince and a waitress, but of a poor student and a seamstress.

The Week's New Films

—:— By NIE —:—

EVERYTHING in the line of good old surefire hoke has been crowded into the story of "Emma," in which Marie Dressler is the star at Loew's this week, and Miss Dressler gets a chance to make the customers laugh and cry pretty persistently throughout the film. You see Emma was the housekeeper in a motherless home, where she raised the children and looked after their father, who happened to be a millionaire. Everything went along smoothly until the kids grew up and broke into society. Then they began to look upon Emma as a drawback and were their faces red when their old man up and married her, went to Niagara Falls on a honeymoon and died in Emma's arms to provide a lot of the tears. Then Emma is charged with his murder, but everything turns out OK towards the end and if "Emma" isn't another "Min and Bill" by any means it is good enough to please the fans who like their drammer old-fashioned.

What a Man.

WILLIAM POWELL, the high-collared, suave man about town in past films, steps out of his favorite character to become a rough and ready Wallingford in the amusing "High Pressure" at the Ambassador. This time Bill is a promoter who divides his time between selling worthless stock and making love to Evelyn Brent and the story is thoroughly entertaining from start to finish. George Sidney, who has been a screen star in his own right now and then, provides a lot of the fun, too. On the stage at the Ambassador Pola Negri is appearing in person in a dramatic playlet which went over very nicely at the opening show.

It Takes a Thief.

AND speaking of stage shows, the Fox will have to lean very heavily upon its variety bill this week for the picture, "Cheaters at Play," is a not very thrilling button-button-whose-got-the-button film about some stolen emeralds on a steamship with Tom Meighan and Charlotte Greenwood doing their best to make it seem real. Ben Lyon, cinema star, and Gladys Baxter, Municipal Opera favorite of last summer, are quite likely to pull the Fox out of the hole, however. Miss Baxter, who got a great reception yesterday, sings delightfully and Mr. Lyon has a pleasing monologue, so that the shortcomings of the picture can be overlooked.

Pleasant Paris Evenings.

ANOTHER bad boy is "Murders in the Rue Morgue" at the St. Louis, a pretty crude attempt to put Edgar Allan Poe's shocker into celluloid. The production is rather amateurish and even some dainty and charming little scenes in the Paris morgue failed to prove exciting enough to provide any business for a staff of nurses stationed in the lobby of the theater where they waited, in vain, for fainting and screaming customers.

Murder at the Missouri.

THE Missouri Theater has its crime mystery, too, in a good back stage story called "The Deceiver" which is all about a matinee idol who is not above blackmailing his lady friends and who gets stabbed in the back for his double dealing. The film peters out a little as it nears the end but most of the way it is excellent meller. Nancy Carroll and Richard Arlen are the stars in the other Missouri picture, "Wayward." This is also an entertaining screen play although the plot is not very new, telling, as it does, the story of a Broadway chorus gal who marries a small town bank clerk and is unable to make the grade, socially, until reel 8.

Harold Lloyd Will Star Eddie Quinlan

Harold Lloyd, who has produced none but his own pictues since forming his company eight years ago, has decided to branch out.

Negotiations between the Harold Lloyd Corporation and Eddie Quillan, youthful movie comedian, which will make Quillan the only other player in the organization, probably will be completed this week.

There is a two-fold reason for putting Quillan under contract, by having other pictures to make, Lloyd will be able to keep his company intact the year around. He feels Quillan is the most promising of the younger comedians.

The signing of Quillan does not mean that Lloyd is planning to retire and is grooming Quillan to take his place. Three, possibly four, pictures will be made each year. Quillan has been featured in pictures for about five years.

Pola Negri in Person at the Ambassador.

St. Louisan's Work A Feature of the Symphony Program

Orchestra Will Play John Kessler's "Poeme" for First Time at This Week's Concerts at the Odeon.

A "POEME" for orchestra, by John Kessler, young St. Louis composer, finds a place of honor on the program Vladimir Golschmann will conduct for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's regular concerts at the Odeon Friday afternoon and Saturday evening of this week. It is the first time Kessler's music has won a place on the subscription concert programs, although his "Suite Miniature" was presented by Rudolph Ganz as one of the "Pop" concert offerings of seven seasons ago.

Kessler, a son of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Kessler, was born in St. Louis and has spent his life here except for study in Chicago and abroad. His "Poeme" was composed in Chicago and is one of three pieces inspired by Lake Michigan. In the suite which they compose it is entitled "The Lake at Evening." It is an impressionistic tone-picture, using the colors of the modern orchestral palette.

Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas" overture, and Florent Schmitt's "The Tragedy of Salome," neither of which have been heard here for several seasons, complete with Kessler's "Poeme" the first half of an all-orchestral program, the major work, Brahms Symphony No. 3 in F major completing the program's offering. The latter has not been heard here since Emil Oberhoffer conducted in early in the season of 1928-29.

Burton Holmes in Talk on Hollywood

In his lecture on Hollywood life and manners which is to open his annual season of pictured travel talks at the Odeon tomorrow night, Burton Holmes will make a contribution to popular knowledge concerning that great American phenomenon, the "talking pictures." It will give an account of the things everybody wants to know about the city and the industry which grew from a camera invention to a world of escape for hundreds of millions of people.

Little Theater Group Preparing Production Of "Berkeley Square"

REHEARSALS are now in progress at the Little Theater of St. Louis, Union boulevard and Enright avenue, for John L. Balderston's widely-discussed play "Berkeley Square," which the Little Theater group will present for nine days beginning Thursday evening, Feb. 25.

"Berkeley Square" is the love story of a present-day American, who is unceremoniously thrust into the bewigged and powdered life of eighteenth century London, and an English girl, who has been dead more than 100 years before his birth. The play achieves a pleasurable, lovely mood, a rarity of spirit and a freshness of stage theme, all of which tend to make it one of the most talked-of pieces of the current drama.

Neal Caldwell, associate director of the Little Theater, will appear as leading man in the play, which is also under his personal direction. Others in the large cast include George Wendling, Adelaide Tarrant, Doris Grady, Charity Grace, Gordon Sommers, Sarah Selby, Isaac Watkins, Jane O'Reilly, Mary Jane Reach, Bruce McFarlane, Grace Dunn, Kathryn Cravens, Samuel Westheimer and Louis Westheimer.

"Berkeley Square" will be open to the public for a week beginning Monday evening, Feb. 29.

Dickie Moore to Star.

Dickie Moore, aged 5, will be starred in "From Rags to Riches." Maude Fulton is preparing a modernized version of this story of American boyhood. Dickie has a big part in "Old Man Minick," the new "Chic" Sale picture which is soon to be released.

Mel-Harmonic Club.

Lila and Mary Head Back

Miss Lee Making Her Third Fight for Success In the Films While Miss Pickford Determines To Regain the Hold She Once Had Upon Picture Audiences the World Over — Latter Will Return to "Wholesome" Type of Story.

BACK in the early days of the films when the Missouri Theater was the outstanding cinema cathedral of St. Louis and Bill Goldman was building dazzling stage shows for that house with nothing but local talent for his headline acts, Lila Lee was one of the up and coming camera stars. Maybe you remember her in "Blood and Sand," "Male and Female" or "Back Home and Broke." Be that as it may Lila climbed almost to the heights—and toppled over. Two years ago she tried a comeback and had it in her grasp. Now she is having another try at fame and fortune.

Ill fortune has beset her since overwork, demanded by the very success of her first comeback, sent her to an Arizona hospital to ward off tuberculosis. Bad luck remained at her heels on her return to the film center not long ago to begin again.

A chance to be in a new picture was lost when a contract star changed her mind and decided to take the role, after all. A second part was hers—and she became ill, not seriously, but too long for the production to wait. Now, taking tests, looking for the strong dramatic roles in which she hopes to effect a return, she is still optimistic.

Romance, for the present, is out of her life. Her career occupies her whole mind. When she came back recently from a South Sea voyage with Mrs. Tay Garnett—Patsy Ruth Miller of St. Louis to you—she announced that her engagement to John Farrow, screen writer, was ended.

"We are friends and I still think him a charming fellow," says Lila. "But his work was carrying him to other parts of the world, while mine was taking me back to Hollywood.

"No, I won't go melodramatic and say I'm through with love. I think it's grand—being in love keeps you young. But I'm not in love now."

○ ○ ○ ○

SHE has spent all but the first five of her 26 years in public life. At five she was "discovered" by Gus Edwards, vaudeville impresario, playing around her father's hotel. A chubby little girl with big dark eyes and black hair in braids, Augusta Appel became Lila Lee and as "Cuddles" was famous on the stage.

When 13 Lila went to Hollywood and the movies. When she was 18 she married James Kirkwood, more than 20 years her senior, and at 19 became the mother of James Jr.

With Kirkwood she went to New York and the stage, then returned to Hollywood and private life.

After separating from Kirkwood she began fighting her way back to the screen. In her absence had come the talkies, and Lila met discouragement everywhere. But Bryan Foy, directing Texas Guinan in "Queen of the Night Clubs," gave her an opportunity.

From that beginning Lila went on, making one talkie after another, sometimes two at a time, so great was the demand for her. Even when overwork sent her to Arizona and enforced inactivity, for months afterward the name of Lila Lee was flashing from theater marquees. Now she is ready to try it all over again.

AND, at the same time Mary Pickford, who has reigned longest as a star on the American screen is quietly at work again, preparing for her fourth sally at the bulwarks of talkie fame.

While Douglas Fairbanks, between golf games, plans for his second film travelog tour, this time to the South Seas, "Our Mary" considers the numerous problems facing a star with her self-imposed responsibilities, including choice of a story and a director and selection of the "unknown but experienced" leading man whom she has signified she wishes.

No story has been definitely selected to date, although one entitled "Happy Ending" is highly regarded. But in the type of story she desires is reflected her views regarding present public appetite in entertainment, and her decision to go back, at least in part, to something like the wholesome simplicity of the silent pictures which made her "America's Sweetheart."

She will not wear curls again, of course, but the tragedy of "Coquette," the Shakspearean slapstick of "The Taming of the Shrew," and the slight naughtiness of "Kiki" are to be abandoned.

"My next story," says Mary, "will be so fundamental and down-to-earth that it could appear under the title 'Potatoes' or 'Beefsteak'—a vehicle of strong dramatic values, vital and with a strong human interest appeal, into which a great deal of natural comedy can be injected."

HER search for such a story, based on what she interprets as the current desire in film entertainment rather than on her own past success, has occupied her for months. She watches current literature closely, besides employing one or two readers whose sole duty is to aid in that search. She has considered "originals" from several foremost screen writers. She believes in taking her time.

In selecting that "experienced unknown" for her leading man, Miss Pickford plans to accomplish this by a process of elimination. Inconspicuous bit-players, even extras whose faces flash on the screen but momentarily, she is mentally cataloging as she watches other stars' pictures. She plans to make tests of all candidates who seem likely, in pursuit of her desire to give the opportunity to some young unrecognized actor already in Hollywood.

Her casting department and her director, yet unchosen, will aid in her search for this "Potential Star." Perhaps someone else's suggestion will bring her the right person, as was the case with Douglas, she explained, when on his director's recommendation he decided upon Lupe Velez as his leading lady for "The Gaucho."

Nancy Carroll in "Wayward" at the Missouri

Pola Negri, Ben Lyon, Gladys Baxter Here

Personal appearance tours have brought three celebrities to St. Louis this week. Pola Negri and Ben Lyon, screen stars, are in town and Gladys Baxter, former star of the Municipal Opera, is also on view.

German Talking Film.

"Die Grosse Sehnsucht" (The Great Passion), a musical satire on Germany's talkie industry, featuring a burlesque of several current international hits, will be given, starting today, at the German Film Theater, 2345 Lafayette avenue. The "Flute Concert at Sansouci" is satirized and the current run of Viennese operettas is gently chided. Altogether, 33 well-known German stars participate in this talking picture.

Buck Jones Drops Spurs.

Auto Show Best Since 1928 Exhibit

Unprecedented Number of Important Improvements in 1932 Cars Jolt Motorists Into Realization That Older Models Are Suddenly Obsolete—Big Sales Increases Reported on All Sides at Local Exposition.

Judged from every angle, the St. Louis Automobile Show, which concluded last night, was the most successful since 1928; when final reports are in, it may be found that the 1932 exposition equaled even that of the boom year from the viewpoint of the industry.

Reports from the distributers who exhibited in the show told of sales in the first two or three days exceeding those during the entire 1931 show. One distributer handling two lines and its dealers sold 50 cars at the show. Eighty of another make were sold.

None of the distributers or dealers had really expected show visitors to display such very keen enthusiasm over the new cars. They expected, of course, that there would be much interest, but the response of motorists surprised, even startled, veteran automobile men.

Comment from merchants in other lines indicated that they, too, were greatly encouraged by the success of the auto show.

Veteran Auto Men Startled.

One fact which seemingly had much to do with the tremendous interest in the 1932 cars is that the vast majority of automobiles running on the streets are four years old and older. Their engines are knocking, their fenders and bodies are shabby and shaky. They are definitely obsoleted by the new models as never in any previous year. They are made obsolete not only in style and general appearance, not only in comfort features, but also in ease of handling and control as well as power and speed.

Motorists have been realizing this gradually. But it was driven home to them suddenly and overwhelmingly when they visited the show. They found cars that are three years ahead of last year's cars, autos with 10, 20 even more advanced comfort and mechanical features, whereas in years past a single real improvement or, at the most, a couple, was something for a motor car manufacturer to trumpet about.

Comment on the Show.

How the distributers and dealers feel about the auto show is indicated by the following comment:

E. E. McIndoo, Oldsmobile zone manager: "Actual retail sales of Oldsmobile cars at the show exceed those of last year's show. Five times as many prospects were obtained as registered in 1931. We have enough business lined up to keep Oldsmobile dealers busy for the next 60 days."

H. S. Henry, sales manager for L. M. Stewart, Inc., Chrysler distributer: "We had a 30 per cent increase of sales at the Auto Show as compared with sales made at the 1931 exhibit. This increase, we feel, was due to introduction in the 1932 models of automatic clutch, floating power, silent gear selector and other features exclusive with the Chrysler Corporation."

Joseph A. Schlecht, chairman of the Auto Show Committee of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association: "The auto show closed last night was one of the best held in St. Louis for a good many years. A principal reason was that it was held in the downtown business section and so we had a large attendance every afternoon of business men and women who have offices near the show building.

"I met several of our Judges at the show. We sold to one of them a Dodge eight-cylinder sedan after he had been at the show several times. I think that all other lines of cars benefitted by the same repeated personal inspection by motorists.

"A number of factory executives and distinguished St. Louisans commented on our show decorations, which were the most attractive at any of the 16 annual auto expositions at which I have been a member of the show committee.

"Our own company, the Milstrand Motor Co., Dodge distributer, as early as Wednesday night exceeded our 1931 auto show business. Since then we have made many more sales. The same thing is true of other firms.

"The Show Committee wishes to express thanks for the very wonderful support which the Post-Dispatch has given them, particularly in the splendid show section in last Sunday's paper."

Arthur R. Lindburg, distributor of Studebaker and Rockne cars, reports a large increase in business, their sales in December showing an increase of 50 per cent over December, 1930. In January, the increase was 60 per cent over January, 1931. Actual orders taken at the Auto Show far surpassed those of last year. Lindburg said he felt the automobile business surely would help bring back prosperity.

R. J. Fry, manager of the Gross Motor Co., distributer of Graham cars, declared in his judgment that the Automobile Show would be an acid tets of the value of automobile shows, due to changed conditions, was borne out. He reported an increase in the sale of Graham cars of 50 per cent. The most noticeable thing at the Graham exhibit was the comment by visitors and the number who made two and three visits to the exhibit.

R. N. Soule, zone manager for the Buick Motor Co. "The St. Louis show was one of the most satisfactory I have ever seen. It substantiated my previous opinion that business has definitely started upward. The people who crowded our exhibit all week have been very much interested in the 1932 Buick Eight with "wizard control" and the many other improvements, and have not hesitated to back up their interest by buying. At the close of business Friday night, we had sold three times as many Buicks as we did during the entire 1931 show. In talking with visitors at our exhibit, and salesmen on duty, the outstanding fact, next to actual buying, is the amount of real interest shown by prospective buyers, and the unusually large number of real prospects who have visited us this week."

C. E. O'Meara, zone sales manager for the Chevrolet Motor Co. "The outstanding fact about the Chevrolet exhibit at the St. Louis show has been the unusual attention to details shown by the public in connection with the educational talks on the Chevrolet chassis. The complete new Chevrolet line has been enthusiastically received by those attending the show, as evidenced by the fact that our actual sales show a most substantial increase over last year. The number of good prospects received is also correspondingly large."

J. S. Mitchell, vice president and general manager of E. J. Johnson, Inc., Auburn-Cord distributer: "The reception accorded the new Auburn 8-100 and the new 12-160 indicates that the public is automobile-buying minded. Dual Ratio, exclusive with Auburn, which really makes two automobiles in one as far as performance and speed range are concerned, has attracted much favorable comment. The new low prices on two new lines of Auburn cars, with the new 12-cylinder, 160 horsepower models selling for as low as $1345 f. o. b. the factory, have created increased buying momentum."

Ross Williams, zone manager for the Oakland Motor Car Co.: The reception by the public of the Pontiac cars at the show was far greater than that for any previous model of our line. Retail sales have been greater and our dealers have gotten more prospects than from any previous St. Louis Show, one of the most attractive I have ever seen. From all indications, our line has met with public approval.

We have received numerous requests for our dealer franchise from

How New Car Devices Work

Show Visitors Able To See How Hudson Essex Devices Work

One of the mechanical exhibits at the St. Louis Automobile Show was a special display stand designed by Sam Frame, exhibition engineer for the Hudson Motor Car Co. which permitted manual demonstration of the functions of the new Hudson and Essex instrument board.

The board on Hudson and Essex cars this year is an eye-level type with an entirely new arrangement of dials, gauges and controls. It differs materially from other instrument boards in that there is no ammeter and no oil pressure gauge. Instead, there are ruby tell-tale lights which flash on when the generator is not charging properly or the oil pump has ceased to work.

On the exhibition stand, in a glass case above the instrument board, are the devices which show visitors could manipulate at their pleasure to watch the operation of the controls. On the left, in the glass case, were containers for gasoline and oil, connected with the gas and oil level gauges on the dash. The dash dial normally registers the amount of gasoline in the tank but, when a button is pressed, oil level is shown instead.

Next to the oil and level tank were the lights which could be turned on and off by a left hand knob on the instrument panel. The various lights corresponding to the positions of the knob can be noticed instantly by operation of this convenient switch.

The second knob on the panel is the choke. In the center is the switch which operates the Startix controlling the starter. When the switch is turned on, the Startix engages and the starting motor in the glass case comes into play, operating the generator which is mounted beside the starter to give a complete view of the operation of the instrument. As soon as the engine is shown to be operating, the two dial gauges at the right in the glass case indicate the amount of oil in the reservoir and the oil pressure on the pump.

The third knob on the dash operates the throttle and the ride control. The effects of ride control can be noted by the amount of oscillation of the diagramatic spring on the right with ride control on and with ride control off.

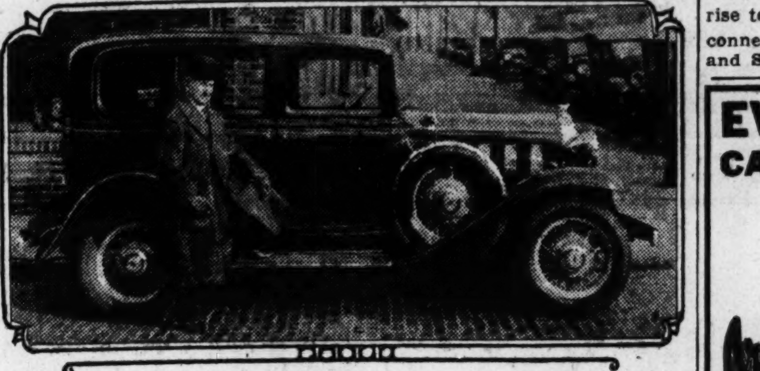
Below the instrument panel there are two knobs with a button in the center. The knob on the left shorts out the oil pump which will immediately make the red light come into view. This ruby light indicates that there is not sufficient pressure on the oil, but with the Hudson oiling system it is possible to operate at moderate speed without the oil pump long enough to reach a service station. The gauge showing the level in the oil reservoir demonstrates this fact.

The center button below the panel is the dimmer switch which on the car is located on the floor board. Its operation switches the headlamps from bright to dim and vice versa. The right hand knob below the instrument panel shorts out the generator bringing the other ruby tell-tale light into play to indicate that the battery is not being charged.

Newest in Funeral Coaches

One of the new flexible funeral coaches which are being distributed in the St. Louis area under direction of L. E. McGregor, who was recently appointed district sales manager. McGregor has headquarters with the Kuhs-Buick Co. These coaches have Buick power, "wizard control," combining automatic clutch, free wheeling, silent synchromesh transmission and rede regulator. The wheelbase is 155 inches. McGregor says that sale of these coaches and ambulances increased 200 per cent in January as compared with January, 1931.

Noted Pilot and His New Car



Capt. Edward F. Shermeyer, captain and pilot for the Eagle Packet Co. on the Mississippi and Illinois rivers for 40 years, and his new Chevrolet special sedan, his third car of this make. Capt. Shermeyer has handled most of the noted boats running from St. Louis up the Illinois river, among them the Idlewild, Cherokee, D. H. Pike, Bald Eagle and Great Eagle. He was on the Government towboat, the Gen. Ashburn for two months last year. The car was delivered to Capt. Shermeyer by the South Side Chevrolet Co.

Road Signs Used for Targets.

Many road signs and markers in Kansas are ruined every year by gun toters, and this year the loss is more than $5000. Air rifles, rifles, shotguns and machine guns have been used to deface the markers.

Town Taxes "Gas" Pump.

Commissioners in Delaware Township, in Pennsylvania, recently passed an ordinance which imposes a $5 license fee for each pump in a gasoline station, and reserves the right to the township to refuse to grant a license.

Decrease in Auto Touring.

According to estimates of the American Automobile Association, approximately $2,750,000,000 was spent for vacation motor travel within the United States last year. While the total of travel expenditures was off about 15 per cent, as compared with 1930, the decline was not nearly so great as in other lines of business and industry.

lans of Ford Still Subject Of Speculation

Announcement He Will Market "Four" and "V-Eight" Leaves Room for Guessing.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Feb. 13.—When Henry Ford told about the V-type eight nd the improved four he is soon o produce, he hardly scratched the urface of what fellow leaders of he industry would like to know bout his plans.

Leaders of the automotive world enerally believe another announcement will be forthcoming—probbly with introduction of the new odels—telling of new plans the ord Motor Co. has for breaking own sales resistance.

Only production plans were covered in Thursday's announcement. he rest was left to rumor, and here are plenty of rumors.

One is that a new financing plan s being, or has been formulated.

The rumor is not now subject to onfirmation, but repeatedly it has een suggested that the new Ford ill be offered for $100 down with wo years allowed to pay the balnce.

Whatever may be the specific lan, automotive men are convinced ny changes made will mean an asing of credit to potential buyers.

While Thursday's announcement larified the atmosphere, still another field was left open for speculation—that of price. There was o mention at all of what the new ars will sell for and the unofficial explanation was that prices ould be fixed when production osts become available. There was belief—no more than that—that he company hoped those costs ould justify marketing the new ight at the price of the old four.

Although the new Ford fours will not be introduced until about he first of March, and the eights ome time later, the quickening of he tempo in the automobile and ffiliated industries resulting from he announcement is expected to ome much sooner. Plans of Ford Still Subject Of Speculation

Announcement He Will Market "Four" and "V-Eight" Leaves Room for Guessing.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Feb. 13.—When Henry Ford told about the V-type eight and the improved tour he is soon to produce, he hardly scratched the surface of what fellow leaders of the industry would like to know about his plans.

Leaders of the automotive world generally believe another announcement will be forthcoming—probably with introduction of the new models—telling of new plans the Ford Motor Co. has for breaking down sales resistance.

Only production plans were covered in Thursday's announcement. The rest was left to rumor, and there are plenty of rumors.

One is that a new financing plan is being, or has been formulated. The rumor is not now subject to confirmation, but repeatedly it has been suggested that the new Ford will be offered for $100 down with two years allowed to pay the balance.

Whatever may be the specific plan, automotive men are convinced any changes made will mean an easing of credit to potential buyers.

While Thursday's announcement clarified the atmosphere, still another field was left open for speculation—that of price. There was no mention at all of what the new cars will sell for and the unofficial explanation was that prices would be fixed when production costs become available. There was a belief—no more than that—that the company hoped those costs would justify marketing the new eight at the price of the old four.

Although the new Ford fours will not be introduced until about the first of March, and the eights some time later, the quickening of the tempo in the automobile and affiliated industries resulting from the announcement is expected to come much sooner. With the Ford plant in production, payrolls will mount, although Ford warned Thursday that only former Ford employes would be taken back.

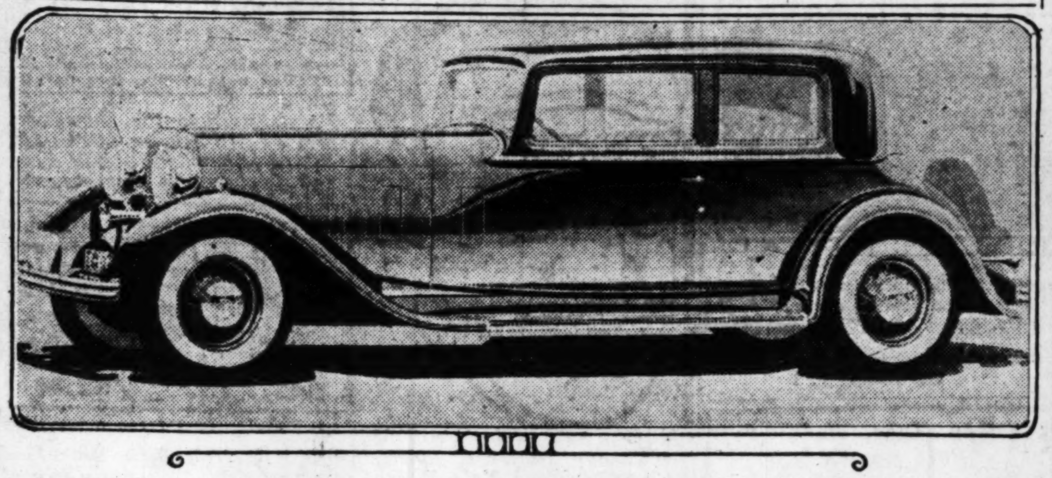
When the plant is on a normal production basis, 3200 of the 5600 firms which service Ford with supplies, always are working on Ford orders.

There is also the factor of keen competition in the low-priced field which automobile men consider necessary to stimulate buyer interest. That is now in prospect, and approximately 75 per cent of normal automobile production is in that field.

Chevrolet, General Motors' representative in the low-priced class, unofficially has estimated its output this month at 55,000 units and has predicted it would maintain the 1932 employment average of 35,000 men.

The Chrysler Corporation, the Plymouth, is reported to have stepped up its February schedule to 21,000 units, a 40 per cent increase over January.

The New Twelve-Cylinder Lincoln

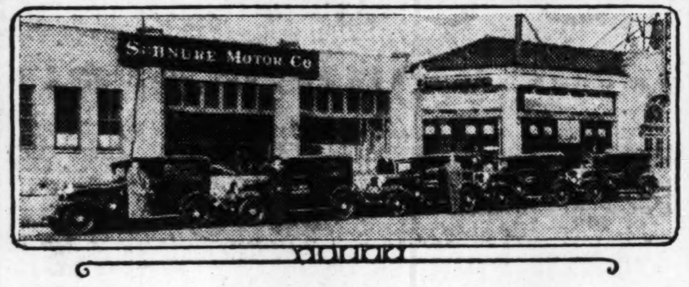


Standard five-passenger coupe on the Lincoln 12-cylinder chassis which attracted much attention at the St. Louis Auto Show. The Lincoln "Twelve" is a companion to a greatly improved Lincoln Eight.

Bodies in both lines have the same keynote, although the front end appearance of the 12-cylinder car is different from that of the eight. Seventeen custom and eight standard bodies are manufactured for the 12-cylinder car. Eight bodies have been annonced for the eight-cylinder line.

The bodies are long, and low, modern in every respect. Lines are graceful, contours sweeping. Their air-flow lines are emphasized by the slanting windshield and the downward curve of the coach sill, which is carried from radiator to rear fender.

Another Chevrolet Fleet



Additional fleet of Chevrolet cars delivered by the Schnure Motor Co. to "Old Gold" for distribution of cigarettes and tobaccos in St. Louis territory. The "Old Gold" fleet now numbers 12 Chevrolets. Signposts in Mexico.

All signs displaying words in English along roads in Mexico are being replaced by others with Spanish words. Many advertisers, eager to attract the attention of English-speaking motorists, were posting announcements in English, and road directions in places were posted in both English and Spanish.

Good Roads in Oklahoma.

The State of Oklahoma now is crossed from east to west and from north to south by all-weather highways.

Sound Experts Play Part in the Making Firestone Tire Quiet

Probably few car owners realize that even sound experts contribute to the performance of Firestone tires. With their sensitively tuned instruments they detect and measure in units of deci-bells the slightest sound that might be caused by the action of a tire. They are responsible for the quietness of Firestone tires.

This research field is one more in which the engineers keep Firestone tires ahead of the demands of high-speed automobile trucks and busses. In one part of the vast laboratories chemists are engaged in never-ending research in raw materials and compounds. Other rehearch men and engineers are pioneering new safety, endurance and comfort for tire users. Assurance that the appearance of the completed tire will match the smartness of the modern automobile is the responsibility of a staff of stylists.

Firestone tires are tested by a microphone attached to a rear fender close to the tire, to separate tire sounds from the sounds incidental to automobile operation. The sound goes to the research man in the car by amplification and is measured by audiometer.

The average range of sound in ordinary conversation runs from 35 to 60 decibells. In comparison to these, the Firestone tire recordings on the microphone are almost negligible, the volume being only about twice that which nature creates in her most silent moods.

Willys-Overland Insulates Bodies of All Models It Makes

While numerous features of comfort are included in the 1932 Willys-Overland sixes and eights and Willys-Knight anniversary models, an important improvement is the provision of insulated bodies. This insulation guards against noises and drafts and also against transmission of engine or road vibrations.

R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Co., Hudson-Essex distributor: "Our exhibit at the show has brought us in contact with many thousands of interested motorists. In my opinion, the general attitude toward buying new cars reflects an improvement in business conditions. Our sales, so far, which so far have run over twice our sales of the 1931 show and a large increase in the number of real prospects, is the basis for my sensing this improvement. Our new Hudson and Essex cars, which are an entire new line, both mechanically and in body styling and in finishing, have attracted in St. Louis, the same as in the many othed cities where shows have been held, a great deal of attenion which is bound to be reflected in better buying.

G. M. Berry, president of the Berry Motor Car Co., Packard distributer, "The St. Louis Auto Show was highly satisfactory. Our actual sales were double those at last year's show. Almost twice as many people were contacted who expressed themselves as interested in the purchase of a new car. As this indicates, a strong and encouraging buying interest was disclosed. There is every reason why the automobile user should buy now. Never before were there as great bargains available. Never before were the new cars so attractive. Perhaps 'irresistable' is the word. Then, of great importance, every one buying now can realize that there probably never was a time when buying accomplished such a definite service."

George Weber Sr., president of the Weber Implement & Automobile Co., Hupmobile distributer: "Our business up to Friday afternoon during Show Week is more than three times the business done during our show last year. I think people are beginning to realize the importance of the automobile, not only as a means of transportation, but also the importance of the automobile as it affects practically every other line of merchandise. I believe the values in automobiles at this time are so great that automobiles will continue to sell in a much larger volume than last year. We have taken a total of more than 50 orders at the show, and anticipate a large increase over this number before Saturday night. Since Jan. 1 our business in used cars has been more than double last year's volume. Our business in new cars is two and one-half times last year's volume."

Millions Spent by Car Plants.

It is estimated that automobile manufacturers in the United States spent approximately $65,000,000 in changing their equipment to make new cars.

Lucas entered the automobile business as a retail automobile salesman in Dallas, Tex. He was promoted to sales manager and junior member of the firm. He later become branch manager for Lincoln at Atlanta, Ga., then went to the Lincoln factory at Detroit as sales manager. He left Lincoln to join the Marmon Motor Co. at Indianapolis as sales manager and sales promotion manager, and went to Studebaker in 1928.

Buick Consistently Leads Price Class, Churchill Declares

"It is interesting to note how consistently the leaders of the automobile industry maintain their rankings year by year according to the sales positions tabulated for the national automobile shows, says C. W. Churchill, vice president in charge of sales of the Buick Motor Co. These rankings are awarded on the basis of actual dollar volume of sales for the preceding year's business, and there has been no alteration of the relative positions of the leaders for many years past.

"For 16 years Buick has maintained its leadership over all other competitive builders of cars in its price class. Hence each year Buick has ranked all other cars in its field at the annual automobile shows."

"One privilege that goes with this leadership is the right to select a preferred location on the floor of the exhibition hall for exhibiting the year's new models. This year the Buick display again occupied one of the finest central locations at the New York and Chicago shows. Buick's dollar volume of sales for 1931, as for the preceding 15 years, having led its particular field."

"This continuous annual leadership is considered to be one of the greatest achievements in manufacturing history. One reason for it is Buick's strict adherence to a tried and proven principle. Buick's valve-in-head engine construction has proven its correctness through every test of efficiency and endurance."

"Price seems to be the best stimulant for sales. Where reasonable sales volume has been maintained during the past few months, goods have been repriced to figures which buyers think are in keeping with the times. It has been the experience with most merchandise lines that when this was done, sales volume has been good," says G. M. Berry, president of the Berry Motor Car Co.

The public reaction to the low price of the Packard Light Eight confirms other experience along this line. Priced $500, or 22 per cent lower than the lowest price at which any previous Packard current model ever sold, the new model is drawing interest to Packard to an extent that has not been evident for several years, if ever. Packard salesmen were kept busy throughout show week showing and explaining this new car. Only one, that on display in the show space, was available and no demonstrating could be done.

The frist production cars for display and demonstrating are now in St. Louis. The Berry Motor Car Co. will have a post show week display of the light eight at its sales rooms throughout this week. Demonstrations will be given of the new finger control free-wheeling and the quiet synchro-mesh transmission. The firm will remain open evenings for this special occasion.

New International One-and-a-Half-Ton Truck Shown Here

The International Harvester Company's latest contribution to economical transportation is its new modelf A-3, 1½-ton, six-cylinder chassis. Although low in first cost and unusually economical to operate and maintain, it incorporates International quality construction and refinements throughout. This rugged truck is attractive in appearance as well as steadfast performance.

The six-cylinder model A-3, a four-speed truck with full-floating rear axle and semi-elliptic auxiliary rear springs, is available in 136 and 160 inch wheelbases, adapting it to varying hauling requirements. The model A-3 is new to the International line, but its units and parts have been proved by time and performance.

This new unit is now being shown at all of the company's branches throughout the United States and Canada. The harvester company maintains three factory branches in the St. Louis district, two in St. Louis and one in East St. Louis.

New Stewart-Warner Brakes Make Use of Momentum of a Car

The Stewart-Warner Corporation, Chicago, announces a new four-wheel mechanical power brake system said to be the first instantly responsive brake to utilize car momentum for stopping.

Dan F. Hyland, general manager of the Alemite Co. of St. Louis, declares this new braking system was developed after a thorough study of traffic conditions and after numerous interviews with Federal and State Safety officials, as well as automotive and casualty insurance companies.

Engineering records show this new braking system assures a quicker, safer stop than possible with ordinary brakes, Hyland says. The braking force is distributed uniformly to all wheels; there is power to spare and yet the driver controls it as accurately and with as little effort as he does the fuel supply. This brake eliminates that long pedal travel which often causes accidents when a split second means the difference between safety and disaster.

C. K. Matthews of the General Tire Co., 3400 Washington boulevard, has just returned from Akron, O., where he attended a conference of distributers of the General Tire and Rubber Co.

William O'Neil, president, and other company officials addressed the distributers at the conference, which lasted for several days.

Matthews said that reports made by General dealers from all parts of the company attending the conference indicated that the new General Streamline Jumbo tire would be an important factor in the business of General tire dealers everywhere this year.

Prospects for a good volume of replacement tire business in 1932 are regarded in Akron as excellent.

The reception accorded dual ratio, an engineering feature exclusive to Auburn, is indicated by the fact that 78 per cent of the cars sold were models having this innovation.

"The result of the Chicago Show following substantial increases in retail sales at the New York and other automobile shows is further indications that those manufacturers offering a product that is outstanding in design, performance and value should experience a satisfactory year," he said. "Never before has the public displayed such intense interest in our models. Since the new Auburns were brought to Chicago one dealer has averaged 40 demonstrations a day of the 12-cylinder car alone."

The Packard Diesel aircraft engine is to be built in Europe. J. Walter & Co., one of the largest European builders of aircraft engines, has just closed a contract with the Packard Motor Car Co., for a license to build the Packard engine and is soon to start production in a plant at Prague, Czechoslovakia.

The company recently completed a flying test of 100 hours with the engine under direction of the Czechoslovakia Ministry of Public Works with such success that a contract for engines was awarded by the Government.

It is announced by the Packard Co. that tests are being made in a number of other European countries.

Trap-Shooting Tournament Under Way

Second Annual Event Attracts 50 Guests to Deer Creek Club for Opening Trials; Championship on Feb. 27.

INCREASED interest in clay pigeon shooting among country club members in and around St. Louis, caused about 50 guests to respond to an invitation issued by the Deer Creek Club on the Litzinger road for its second annual trap-shooting tournament, which began yesterday on the range near the clubhouse. Twenty men and women enthusiasts shot to decide the handicap scores by which they will be placed in the elimination contests to be held next Saturday afternoon. The winners will be eligible for competition in the championship shoot Saturday, Feb. 27. There will be five prizes. The participants are members of the Deer Creek Club and of near by organizations who are fostering clay pigeon shooting as a sport, and friends of the members.

The range is on a clearing of wooded land, which is reached by a stone flagged walk through the trees. Benches are arranged for the spectators, and the trap is placed with trees in the background.

In addition to hot coffee and refreshments served on the range, the shoot was followed by a buffet luncheon served in the club house, in which trophies and equipment for the hunt form part of the decorations.

Guests From Dallas Being Entertained

TWO out-of-town guests, Mrs. W. D. Felder and Mrs. J. Warren Jones, both of Dallas, Tex., are being feted with a series of parties during their stay. Yesterday they shared honors at an elaborate luncheon and contract bridge party given by Mrs. C. W. Mansur, 625 Skinker boulevard, at the St. Louis Woman's Club. Fifty guests were seated for luncheon at a cross-shaped table adorned with spring flowers, arranged in the banquet room.

Mrs. Felder is visiting Mrs. Mansur and Mrs. Jones is the guest of Mrs. Morton Jourdan, 6121 Lindell boulevard.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. William Bagnell of Ladue Village will give a luncheon for the visitors, also at the Woman's Club, and that evening Mrs. Sam A. Thompson will entertain them at dinner at Hotel Chase. Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Heman J. Pettengill of the Park Plaza will give a luncheon, followed by a matinee party for Cyrano de Bergerac. Thursday Mrs. Horace W. Soper, 4731 Westminster place, will be hostess at a farewell luncheon bridge at her home.

Mrs. Felder will depart afterwards for Memphis to visit her daughter and Mrs. Jones will go to New York and then to Vassar College to visit a daughter who is a student there.

St. Louisans Visiting Miami Beach, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Davis are also among the St. Louis guests at the King Cole, and will entertain Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus, who will depart next week accompanied by her niece, Miss Virginia Simmons. Miss Simmons will join her mother, Mrs. George Welch Simmons, who has a cottage there for the season. Mrs. Louis A. Hager Jr. and her young son, and Miss Marguerite Moll of California, formerly of St. Louis, are at the King Cole, and Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Caspari and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Lund are at the Roney Plaza.

Mrs. Arthur Hilmer was among the out-of-town guests who attended the fashion show at the Roney Plaza. Robert W. Brooks is a guest there, and Mr. and Mrs. John E. Gibson Jr. and their son are at the Wofford Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Peters, members of the winter colony, gave a dinner last Saturday night at the Fleetwood Hotel for a group of St. Louisans.

Group to Make Garments for Needy Children

Mrs. Festus J. Wade and Mrs. Garneau Weld Lead Young Matrons in Providing Clothing.

THE desire to assist in augmenting the wardrobes of children who are unable to attend school because of insufficient clothing has prompted two socially prominent young matrons, Mrs. Festus J. Wade, 7 Windermere place, and Mrs. Garneau Weld of the Litzinger road, to organize groups of their friends for the purpose of making garments which will be given to the Provident Association for distribution.

Pleas are being made for pieces of unused material of any size from one-fourth of a yard to a bolt, and any color, with buttons, trimmings and findings. Knitting, which has again become a fad after a lapse following the war, has promoted the idea of making sweaters and blankets, and whole or partial rolls of wool yarn are being asked for. In addition, outgrown and discarded ready-made garments will be accepted for repair. Baby garments will be fashioned from white material and flannel, some of which is already available for use, and clean bed clothing and beds for children and adults will be collected and sent to the Provident Association.

The first sewing meetings will be held tomorrow afternoon at the respective homes of Mrs. Wade and Mrs. Weld, and will continue on succeeding Mondays as long as materials can be had. A seamstress has been engaged for the cutting of garments, and her salary, the only item of expense involved, will be prorated among the workers.

Following the organizing of their own groups Mrs. Wade hopes to interest reading clubs in the project, and the members will be asked to sew while their programs are in progress. Several clubs have signified their interest and are already endeavoring to gather equipment.

The following are among those who have been invited to the Wade home: Mrs. Samuel Dozier Conant, Mrs. Edward Gillette Hotchkiss, Mrs. Rowe Garesche, Miss Edwina Crunden, Mrs. Wallace Herndon Smith, Mrs. Harry Hall Knight, Mrs. Ethan A. H. Shepley, Mrs. Henry M. Cook, Miss Winifred Duncan and Miss Jane Niggeman.

Mrs. Weld has organized a group of 15 women who live in St. Louis County, including Mrs. Clarence Hopkins King, Mrs. William Harrison Luyties, Mrs. Francis Linton Gross, Mrs. John Rutledge Shepley, Mrs. Carl J. Koehler, Mrs. Mason Scudder and Mrs. Donaldson L. Lambert.

Have No Gray Hair Streaks Before 60

Now simply brushing hair ends grayness so perfectly no one will suspect you ever had a gray hair

Don't let gray hair, or hair streaked with gray, ruin your business or social career because it makes people think you are "too old." You can now end this handicap easily, quickly, and inexpensively right at home. And the results will be so perfect that no one will suspect you have done a thing to your hair.

Do One Simple Thing

Just sprinkle a few drops of KOLOR-BAK on your hair brush, and brush your hair as usual. This wonderful, colorless liquid will cause your gray hairs to disappear like magic. A new, youth-like color will be imparted to those ugly, gray hairs. And as your hair becomes youth-like in color, you will look years younger, far more attractive.

Obtain KOLOR-BAK at any drug or department store. Use as directed—and—almost before you realize it your gray hairs will be youth-like in color.

Insist upon KOLOR-BAK for it is different in formula and results from all other methods. No other product is "just as good." KOLOR-BAK offers the most natural way science has found to end gray hair. Obtain today, and refuse all substitutes.

FREE — 50c Box Kubak Shampoo

Get a bottle of KOLOR-BAK—send the top flap of the carton in which it comes to United Remedies, Inc., dept. 262B, 365 East Illinois St., Chicago, Ill. You will be sent a full-size 50c box of Kubak Shampoo, free and postpaid.

How to make Children EAT

DON'T force children to eat! The girl or boy who has no appetite has stasis—which means the child is sluggish. But cathartics have caused more constipation than they ever cured! The "California treatment" is best—just pure fig syrup. Try this for just a few days and then see how eagerly your youngster will eat!

How to Conquer Sluggishness

Stimulate the colon and that child with a finicky appetite will devour everything set before him. Here's the simple treatment that does more for babies or older children than all diets, fad foods or tonics.

Nature has provided the only "medicine" you'll need to stir a child's colon muscles into proper action. California fig syrup. Pure, delicious, harmless. It acts on the lower colon—where the trouble is. It has no effect whatever on the small intestines which should not be disturbed.

Begin tonight, with the wonderful "California treatment." Any druggist has California fig syrup, all bottled, with directions. Use enough the first time to cleanse the colon of every bit of poison and waste. Then just a little twice a week until the child's appetite, color, weight and spirits tell you the stasis is gone. It may take a month if a child is all run down, but isn't it worth it, to have constipation conquered? And whenever a cold or other upset clogs the system again, use this natural vegetable laxative instead of drastic drugs.

WARNING

WHAT IS AN AVIATOR? IS POINT IN PAY ROW

Whether commercial aviators are professional men or "glorified bus drivers" is the question in point in the dispute between Century Airlines and its 22 transport pilots.

The company "accepted" the resignations of its pilots last Tuesday, although no resignations had been tendered, and then offered to rehire the aviators on company terms, representing a pay reduction of about 50 per cent, according to Milt Girton, veteran St. Louis pilot, who had the run between St. Louis and Chicago for Century Airlines.

Girton explained that Century pilots received a flat monthly scale ranging from $350 for new men to $425 for chief pilots, of which there were four. Last month the flyers were notified that, effective Feb. 1, their rate of pay would be on an hourly basis of $3 for day flying and $5 an hour for night trips, with a guaranteed salary of $150 a month.

According to Girton, the hourly rate would have brought the maximum monthly income of the pilots to $250, taking into consideration time lost through unfavorable flying conditions. The pilots protested and the company raised the guaranteed salary to $200 a month, but declined to increase the hourly rate. The employes petitioned for arbitration and received an extension of time for 10 days. It was the pilots' understanding that arrangements for arbitration were to be started, when notices "accepting" their resignations were issued, Girton says.

The Air Line Pilots' Association, which has 600 members and is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, is supporting a passive resistance to the wage cut by the discharged aviators. According to Girton, Century Airlines has been able to employ but four pilots to take the places of the men let out, and is operating only between St. Louis and Chicago, no effort being made to run planes to Detroit and Cleveland.

By Peter Dixon

RECENT Washington agitation about commercial sponsorship of radio programs has plenty of sponsors thinking seriously. You've probably noticed the difference in a number of programs. . . . Now they're trying to find out if these prize contests are worth it. Many listeners kicking. . . . The five-minute radio program is being seriously considered. When this writer said that such a thing was going to happen everybody laughed. Watch! A year from today there will be as many five-minute periods on the air as there are quarter-hour offerings today.

WTIC, Hartford, Conn., is offering radio drama at night and repeating it the following afternoon as a "matinee." . . . Konrad Bercovici and his Gypsy orchestra are due on the air soon. While most people think of Bercovici as a writer, he is an acknowledged authority on Gypsy music. . . . They're grooming a singer to be known as "Bill the Basso Baritone," and you'll be hearing him. . . . Wonder if George Olsen will feature that grand Russian singer, Kouznetzoff, in his broadcasts. How pale those moaning baritones seem in comparison to the Russian's stirring voice. . . . They had trouble in a studio recently to obtain the sound of a coin being hammered with a hatchet. Then they hammered the hatchet with a coin and the illusion was perfect.

Five New Atwater-Kent Sets Introduced.

Five new Atwater-Kent receivers are announced by the Brown Supply Co., distributor. Chief improvement in these sets is the use of a Neon tuning light which accurately gauges reception and indicates when the various factors entering into reception are at peak.

With this new scientific aid tuning is noiseless until the station desired is tuned perfectly, then the volume control may be turned up. This eliminates dial jiggling with its accompanying discordant noises when different stations are passed in tuning. In absolute silence the station is tuned in with perfect accuracy and the volume can then be increased to suit the ear of the listener.

The new sets have been placed on display this week locally.

In addition, five sets previously announced are available, including the automobile set. A feature of this set—model 91—is the ease with which it can be installed. With the illuminated remote control clamped on the steering column of the car, the set employs a specially developed tuned radio frequency circuit, with push-pull amplification, one bank of three condensers, automatic volume control, and large size improved electro-dynamic speaker. It is now available in split containers.

F. E. [illegible], general sales manager for the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Co. of Philadelphia, was in St. Louis Friday to visit Norman S. Brown and Fred White of the Brown Supply Co. [illegible] said that in five large cities he had just visited he had observed real activity aimed at increasing sales and a definite expectation that the activity would bring real results.

By Peter Dixon

RECENT Washington agitation about commercial sponsorship of radio programs has plenty of sponsors thinking seriously. You've probably noticed the difference in a number of programs . . . Now they're trying to find out if these prize contests are worth it. Many listeners kicking . . . The five-minute radio program is being seriously considered. When this writer said that such a thing was going to happen everybody laughed. Watch! A year from today there will be as many five-minute periods on the air as there are quarter-hour offerings today.

WTIC, Hartford, Conn., is offering radio drama at night and repeating it the following afternoon as a "matinee" . . . Konrad Bercovici and his Gypsy orchestra are due on the air soon. While most people think of Bercovici as a writer, he is an acknowledged authority on Gypsy music . . . They're grooming a singer to be known as Bill the Basso Balladist, and you'll be hearing him . . . Wonder if George Olsen will feature that grand Russian singer, Kouznetzoff, in his broadcasts. How pale these moaning baritones seem in comparison to the Russian's stirring voice . . . They had trouble in a studio recently to obtain the sound of a coin being hammered with a hatchet. Then they hammered the hatchet with a coin and the illusion was perfect.

Five New Atwater-Kent Sets Introduced.

Five new Atwater-Kent receivers are announced by the Brown Supply Co., distributor. Chief improvement in these sets is the use of a Neon tuning light which accurately gauges reception and indicates when the various factors entering into reception are at perfect peak.

With this new scientific addition, tuning is noiseless until the station desired is tuned perfectly, then the volume control may be turned on. This eliminates dial juggling with its accompanying discordant noises when different stations are passed in tuning. In absolute silence, the station is tuned in with perfect accuracy and the volume can then be increased to suit the ear of the listener.

The new sets have been placed on display this week locally.

In addition, five sets previously announced are available, including the automobile set. A feature of this set—model 81—is the ease with which it can be installed. With the illuminated remote control clamped on the steering column of the car, the set employs a specially developed tuned radio frequency circuit, with push-pull amplification, one bank of three condensers, automatic volume control, and large size improved electro dynamic speaker. It is now available in split containers.

F. E. Bassler, general sales manager for the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Co. of Philadelphia, was in St. Louis Friday to visit Norman S. Brown and Fred Wiebe of the Brown Supply Co. Bassler said that in five large cities he had just visited he had observed real action aimed at increasing sales and also definite expectation that the activity would bring real results.

While the output per worker in the

by nearly 200,000.

UNEMPLOYMENT: CAUSES and Continued GROWTH

More than 700,000,000 Workers, Using Hand Labor Only, Would Be Required to Produce the Goods Now Made by Only 45,000,000 Americans and Their Machines—Startling Examples of Machinery Displacing Skilled Employes—Idleness Keeps on Growing Even in the Most Prosperous Years.

BY CHARLES G. ROSS.

Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.

THE unemployment problem is not new; it did not burst suddenly upon the country with the descent of hard times in the fall of 1929. It has been with us for many years, fat as well as lean years, and it will be with us in acute form, barring fundamental economic changes, for many more to come. At the very height of our recent industrial expansion, more than 1,000,000 workers—some estimates run to 2,000,000—were unemployed.

A return of "prosperity" in full bloom would fall far short of solving the problem. It would merely be obscured again, until the next depression, just as it was obscured in the too bright sunshine of the Coolidge era.

For there is a phase of unemployment—a very large phase—which is caused not by sickness or old age, or any fault of the worker, but by the use of labor-saving machinery and methods. This "technological" unemployment, as the economists call it, is a persistent and growing factor in our economic life. It is the price we pay for the industrial progress of the Machine Age.

The magnitude of this price may be gathered from a few figures:

Fewer Workers, More Output.

The output per worker in the manufacturing industries increased during the last decade by 45 per cent, while the number of wage workers declined. There were 900,000 fewer wage earners in the factories before the depression struck the country in 1929 than there were 10 years earlier—a decline of 10 per cent.

Accompanying an increase in railway efficiency during the decade from 1919 to 1929 came a 20 per cent decrease in the number of employes, or from about 2,000,000 to 1,600,000.

While the output per worker in the coal mines increased, the number of miners fell by nearly 200,000.

In the same decade 800,000 workers were eliminated from agriculture.

In casting pig iron seven men now do the work which formerly required 60. Two men replace 128 in loading pig iron. One man does the work of 42 in the operation of open-hearth furnaces.

Extent of Machine Replacements.

In machine shops and railway repair shops one man operating semi-automatic machines takes the place of 25 skilled machinists. With the aid of the oxy-acetylene torch, four men do in three to seven hours what it formerly took eight men three weeks to do in repair work on locomotives. Fifteen years ago, from 15 to 30 hours were required to turn one pair of locomotive tires; six pairs are now turned by the same number of men in eight hours.

Thirty workers in a tube shop produce with 10 machines what formerly required 40 workers with 20 machines.

One man used to take 80 hours to make 450 bricks; now there is a machine which turns out 40,000 bricks an hour.

In the manufacture of boots and shoes, 100 machines have taken the place of 25,000 men, and in the manufacture of electric light bulbs a machine turns out 73,000 bulbs in 24 hours, as compared with only 40 bulbs produced per man per day as late as 1918.

Edward R. Weidlein and William A. Hamor of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, estimate in their recent book, "Science in Action," that the 45,500,000 or more Americans in gainful occupations in agriculture and the other mechanized industries of today are equivalent to a mechanically unassisted working force of between 700,000,000 and 800,000,000 men. From 1921 to 1927, they calculate, man-power productivity in manufacturing grew at the rate of nearly 7 per cent a year.

Less Labor, More Productivity.

They give striking instances of the way in which the machine has heightened the productivity of the individual:

From 1870 to 1925 the average area of improved land cultivated per worker increased from 32 to 49 acres, or 50 per cent. That is, two men became the equal of three. In the same period the value of machinery on the farms increased tenfold.

In the early days of the beet-sugar industry, from 6 to 8 labor hours were needed to produce 100 pounds of sugar. The time has been reduced in some factories to 29 minutes of operating labor. That is, one man replaces from 12 to 16 men.

With an automatic fish-scaling machine, one man can scale 40 fish a minute, regardless of their size, as compared with three fish a minute by hand operation.

The linotype machine invented by Mergenthaler in 1885 enabled one man to do the work of six and reduced the hours of labor from 10 to 8.

Iron, Steel, Trains.

New York subway trains—or some of them—are now operated by two men, as compared with the seven formerly required.

The Boston and Maine Railroad has a freight-handling machine that saves the labor of 400 men.

The iron and steel industry produced 81 tons per year per operator in 1879 and 1250 tons per year per operator in 1925. That is, the productivity per worker increased more than 15 fold.

A company making machine-shop equipment scrapped one-third of its machinery and replaced it with new models; it thus reduced its labor requirements 33 1-3 per cent.

Scientific research enabled a manufacturer of small metal appliances to eliminate 90 per cent of his labor costs in preparing his product for finish, and to increase his output in the next operation by 25 per cent without additional labor cost.

In the tobacco industry a machine with an "electric eye" has replaced human eyes in the sorting of cigars by shades. The machine handles 4000 cigars an hour.

In Other Industries.

A new feed-and-flow machine has made several divisions of the glass industry practically automatic. This machine is the equivalent of 41 hand workers.

The Blank Tool Company in 1922 had 16 drop hammers and employed 480 men. Six years later it had 22 drop hammers, 280 men, and increased output of over 30 per cent.

In 1927 the Blank Textile Mills produced 137,000 yards of woolens with 5100 workers. The next year it produced an equal amount, of the same quality, with 3000 workers.

In eight years, the Blank Rubber Company increased its output from 32,000 units per day to 57,000 units, or about 78 per cent. During the same period the working force declined from 24,000 men to 16,500, or about 30 per cent.

In the manufacture of sewing machine needles there is a machine that inspects for crooked needles. It does the work that formerly required nine expert girl workers.

The sound motion picture has displaced approximately 50 per cent of the musicians employed in the theaters.

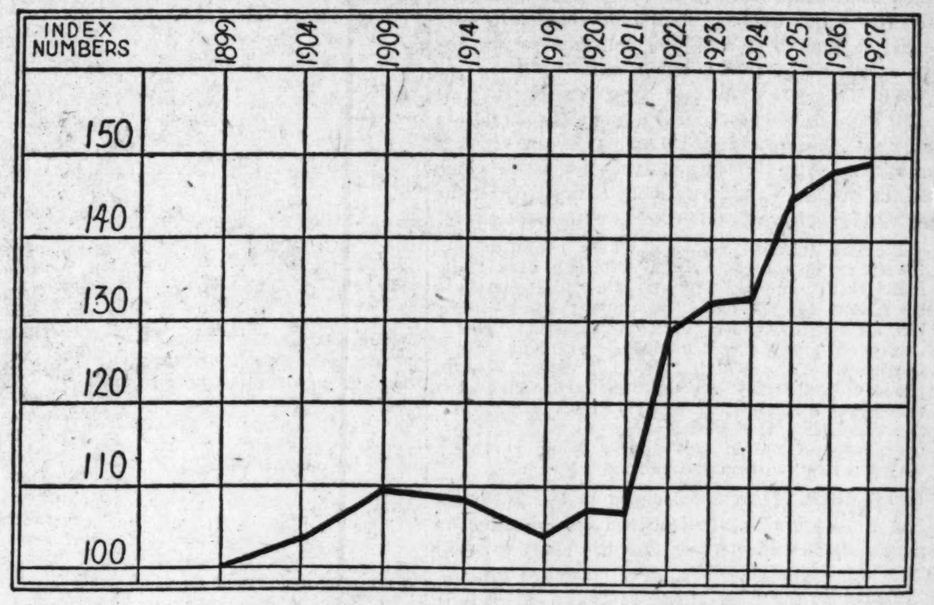
The production of one ton of coal (bituminous and anthracite combined) required 1.919 hours in 1929 as compared with 2.72 hours in 1911.

Foresight of Gompers.

Samuel Gompers, more than 40 years ago, saw what was coming. "Hundreds of thousands of our fellow men through the ever-increasing inventions and improvements in the modern methods of production are rendered superfluous," he said. "We must find employment for our wretched brothers and sisters by reducing the hours of labor or we will be overwhelmed and destroyed." Two years earlier, in 1887, he had said: "The answer to all opponents of the reduction of hours of labor could well be given in the words, that so long as there is one man who seeks employment and cannot obtain it the hours of labor are too long."

This is exactly what labor is saying today: that the available hours of work must be so distributed, through a shortening of the work day or the work week, that all who want employment can find it. The idea has ceased to be "radical": it is in the minds of many thoughtful persons of habitually conservative views. They are saying, with labor, that the only alternative to shorter work hours is some form of compensation for the workers forced out of their jobs.

Increase in Productivity of Average Worker



From the year 1899 to 1919—some twenty years—there was not a great change. The following year saw the beginning of improved machinery in industry, inventions which enabled manufacturers to increase many fold the individual worker's output. Using the year 1899 as the index number of 100, there has been an astonishing increase in the last 30 years in the productivity of the average employe. Taking the country as a whole, two men are now doing the work of almost three.

Leaving this thought for the moment, let us examine the condition of which Gompers spoke. The problem which he stated has not been solved, as many thought it would be, by the absorption of displaced workers in new lines of industry. (We shall come to that argument later.) Rather, it has been made infinitely more difficult and more challenging by the steady increase in the use of machinery. This is particularly true of the years since 1920, when the Machine Age, or, as some have called it, the "new industrial revolution," began to reach the height of its flowering.

Early Signs of Trouble.

We turn from Gompers and the 1880's to the conservative New York Journal of Commerce and the prosperous year 1928—that halcyon year before the crash when the wheels of industry were moving at full speed, when dividends were soaring, time-payment schemes were stimulating production to an unprecedented level, and all was well (so we were told by our business and political leaders) in the best of all possible worlds.

In February, 1928, just before the industrial pick-up that followed a decline in 1927, the New York Journal of Commerce said: "We are so accustomed to associate unemployment with prostrate industry, closed factories and universal profound depression, that it is hard to revise our ideas and grasp the fact that we must also grapple with an unemployment problem that is the direct outcome of prosperity. It is likely to persist, and, it may be, increase even if our industrial output after the present recession should resume with full vigor the upward trend that has characterized it of late years."

The upward trend was resumed, with the result that 1928, as a whole, set a new high record for production, retail sales and business profits. Industrial production was 6 per cent higher than in the previous record year, 1926. Business profits were estimated by the National City Bank to be 10 per cent higher than the previous record.

1928's Sinister Record.

Yet in this amazing year of 1928, the factories of the United States employed 800,000 fewer workers than they did in the year 1923. The calculation is that of Prof. William M. Leiserson, based on United States Bureau of Labor Statistics. He found this data confirmed by factory employment figures of the various state departments of labor: In New York State, factory employment dropped 16 per cent from 1923 to 1928; in Illinois, 15 per cent; in Massachusetts, 22 per cent; in Pennsylvania, 11 per cent; in Wisconsin, 10 per cent. On the railroads of the country employment decreased 200,000 in the five years, or about 10 per cent.

This is the kind of unemployment that the New York Journal of Commerce called "the direct outcome of prosperity."

All the statistics on the subject point to the conclusion there is a huge permanent volume of unemployment in the United States, a large part of which is due to the constant displacement of men by machinery. A careful estimate of the average amount of unemployment among non-agricultural workers during the years from 1921 to 1927, inclusive, was made for Mr. Hoover's Committee on Recent Economic Changes by Dr. Leo Wolman of the National Bureau of Economic Research, now a professor of economics at Columbia University, New York City.

Wolman's figures, which are generally accepted as authoritative, are as follows:

Year.	Total Non-Agricultural Workers	Unemployed.	Per cent Unemployed.
1923	29,293,000	1,532,000	5.2
1924	30,234,000	2,315,000	7.7
1925	30,941,000	1,775,000	5.7

Always Many Idle People.

It appears from Wolman's figures that even in the most prosperous times, under the present organization of the industrial system, we must count on a volume of unemployment in excess of 1,500,000, or one industrial worker in every 20. This is the bedrock minimum; it takes no account of conditions like the present, which have produced, according to the estimates of the American Federation of Labor, an unemployed army (agricultural workers included) of 8,300,000.

Numerous other investigations support the conclusion that the machine has created a large and persistent volume of unemployment. A survey in the urban centers of the United States covering the period 1902 to 1917 places the minimum number of unemployed during these 15 years at 1,000,000, the average proportion of the jobless fluctuating from 16 per cent of the possible workers in 1915 to 4.7 per cent in 1917. These figures do not include farm workers. The Russell Sage Foundation in 1924 estimated that unemployment in the United States for any one year runs from a minimum of 1,000,000 to a maximum of 6,000,000, depending upon prevailing industrial conditions.

Again, we have the striking testimony of the committee on elimination of waste in industry of the Federated American Engineering Societies. In its report, "Waste in Industry," published in 1921, to which Herbert Hoover wrote the foreword, the committee stated:

"In the best years, even the phenomenal years of 1917 and 1918 at the climax of the war-time industrial activities, when plants were working to capacity and when unemployment reached its lowest point in 20 years, there was a margin of unemployment amounting to more than a million men. This margin is fairly permanent."

Decrease in Number of Jobs.

There is much recent testimony to the same general effect. For example, Laurence N. Sloan, vice president of the conservative Standard Statistics Service, estimates that out of 7,000,000 unemployed persons at the present time, 15 per cent, or more than 1,000,000 are permanently unemployed as the result of machine processes.

Using Federal statistics, John P. Frey, secretary-treasurer of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor and a member of a special committee which has just made a report to Secretary of Labor Doak on technological unemployment, estimates that during the eight years ending in 1928, more than 925,000 workmen were eliminated from our manufacturing industries, about 800,000 from agriculture and about 250,000 from railway transportation.

The railway figures at the moment, in view of the employes' acceptance of a 10 per cent wage cut, are especially timely. Why was there a sharp decrease in the number of railroad employes even in prosperous times? The following table of index figures showing output per service-hour on the Class I railroads tells the story in large part. The year 1920 is taken as the base:

1921	99.8
1930	122.1

That is to say, the productivity of railroad workers has increased more than 20 per cent since 1920.

Getting More From Each Worker.

Year.	Index Number.
1922	128.5
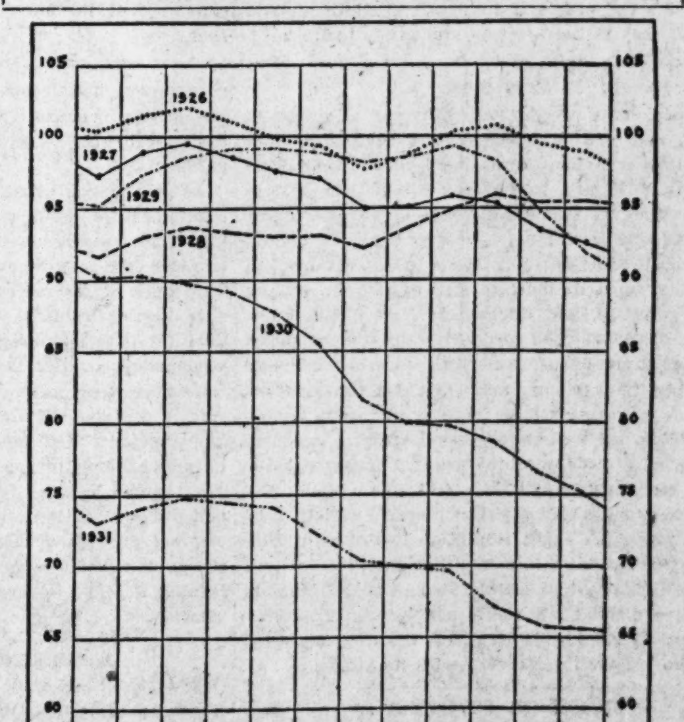
1927	149.5

The figures show that two men are now doing the work that required three at the beginning of the century in the first 20 years of the century the increase in productivity per worker is seen to have been relatively small. After 1920, when, as pointed out by writers in the Fiftieth Anniversary Edition of the Post-Dispatch (1928), the Machine Age really got under way, the increase went forward by great leaps.

Trend of Employment in Manufacturing



Monthly indexes from 1926 to 1931, with the average of 1926 established as 100. These lines show the general decrease in employment in manufacturing industries, through those six years, with occasional periods of betterment—but always followed by still more slackening in the number of workers engaged in useful occupations.

Growing Efficiency.

Figures covering 11 manufacturing industries have been compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor for the years 1914 to 1927. (Later figures await the publication of the Census of Manufacturers for 1929.)

In all the 11 industries the bureau's figures show marked increases in man-hour productivity, ranging from 24 per cent in boots and shoes to 292 per cent in rubber tires. The following table gives the percentages of increase in the various industries, 1914 to 1927:

Success Which Spelled Only Tragic Failure

From "The Economics of Glut," an article in the New Statesman and Nation (London):

"OUR extraordinary technical success is disguised today by our no less extraordinary failure to make sane use of it. We have succeeded beyond the wildest dreams of the Utopians in minimizing the amount of necessary labor. The result is the very thing we have aimed at—leisure, or, as we call it, unemployment. So grotesquely have we failed in the task of distribution and so tragically have we neglected the art of living—in distinction from the art of making a living—that this prodigious addition to the leisure of mankind is considered a monstrous evil. . . . And in present conditions a monstrous evil it is. Yet unemployment is the ripe fruit of all the inventions of the last century, the object and the justification of every application of science to industry and agriculture."

Industry.	Per cent.
Iron and steel	55
Boots and shoes	24
Leather tanning	41
Slaughtering and meat packing	26
Petroleum refining	82
Paper and pulp	40
Cement manufacturing	54
Automobiles	178
Rubber tires	292
Flour milling	59
Cane-sugar refining	33

In some instances, the bureau's figures reach back as far as 1899. With these figures as a base, the man-hour productivity in the steel industry increased 163 per cent up to 1927; in the petroleum refining industry, 198 per cent, and in the leather tanning industry, 52 per cent.

Study of Payrolls.

As we have shown, this increase in the productive capacity of the worker has gone hand in hand with a decline in the number of workers. The trend of employment in the manufacturing industries is vividly indicated in the following table, compiled from the data of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. It should be noted that these are figures on employment, not unemployment, and that they represent the absolute number of employed workers, not the number in relation to population. From 1927 to 1929 there was an increase in employment from the index figure of 96.4 to 97.5. This represented an increase of about 201,000 wage earners in the manufacturing industries, but this increase was only a fraction of the addition to the available labor supply in that period.

The figures for the years 1930 and 1931 reflect the results of the current depression.

Comparisons are based upon 100 for 1926. In the third column are the payroll totals of the respective years, also based on 100 for 1926:

1926	100.0	100.0

While the employment average for 1931 was 70.9, the index figure for the last month of the year stood at 65.3, indicating a drop of nearly 35 per cent from the average for 1926. Incidentally, sharp wage cutting is reflected in the payroll figures for 1930 and 1931. In December, 1931, the payroll index figure was 50.9. That is to say, payrolls in the manufacturing industries had been reduced by virtually one-half the average for 1926, while the number of workers had been reduced by a little more than one-third.

Machine Replacements Permanent.

Reference has been made to the recent report of the Doak committee, appointed by the Secretary of Labor to study technological employment. There were 14 members of the committee—labor statisticians, economists, engineers, specialists in vocational education. They found, to quote an official digest of their voluminous report, that "the problem of our day is to reap all the benefits of technological progress, while at the same time safeguarding workers from the evil effects that follow as a by-product in its wake."

If the problem is to be dealt with intelligently, said the committee, we must have

Is Peace Possible?

MANY persons are guilty of faulty reasoning concerning the practicability of the peace movement, as is W. J. Knight in a recent issue of the Post-Dispatch.

The burden of Mr. Knight's letter is to the effect that since war always has been, war must always be, because human nature is that way and cannot be changed; that it is folly to expect the peace movement to become effective.

Of course, this is the doctrine of utter futility. It is, frankly, hopelessness run riot. Besides, Mr. Knight doesn't know well his history of the whole peace movement.

Until our day war has been the acknowledged method for the settlement of international difficulties. Until the present century, the idea never occurred to any considerable number of people that there could be another way. Any voice that was raised against war as an institution was howled down in the mighty tumult of the war-minded. Wars were popular, "quite the thing," taken for granted.

Ours is the first generation in the history of human kind that has challenged the basic philosophy of war as a method. Today that old idea is challenged by the best minds of the race. "If war is only a method," they say, "may it not be that there is another and better method?"

To such a query there can be but one answer. Modern man knows that there is no victorious war. He knows that victor and vanquished are losers, alike. But, more positively, he understands that modern communication facilities, transportation developments and the tightness of this little old world are destroying the blind nationalism of a past day in which wars were bred.

The most hopeful sign of the times lies in the conviction of the average man in the street that he has always been the "fall guy" for the war-makers. He has become acquainted with the propaganda necessary to make a nation fight. He knows that he has been the victim of governmental lies calculated to destroy his sanity and make him "fighting mad." And he is rather of the opinion that those in authority better go a little slow in committing him to war again.

Mr. Gibson at Geneva spoke advisedly when he said, "The delegation of the United States is representing not only a government but a people, and the mandate from both is in the same unmistakable terms, that decrease in arms is an essential not alone to economic recovery of the world, but also to the preservation of the whole fabric of peace."

The evolution of the human mind respecting the value of its various institutions bids fair to surpass by millions of years any other draggingly slow evolution man has ever experienced. And almost while we wait, the world's ideas concerning war are being completely changed. The human pack's cry for blood at a wrestling match is one thing; bacteria, submarines, aircraft and gas in war are other things.

Let Mr. Knight take hope. It all isn't quite so hopeless as it seems. What the peace movement needs more than anything else is a more outspoken, a "fighting" defense of it by clear-sighted men of conviction and insight.

Penny Wise, Pound Foolish.

THE Government permitted hunters, for a license fee of $1 each, to exterminate prairie chickens and meadow larks. These valuable birds held the grasshoppers under control, and now, since they have been exterminated and the grasshopper controls, the Government proposes to spend $1,400,000 in a bill it designates "hopper control in the West." Are we not penny wise and pound foolish people?

Foreclosures of Homes.

IN reference to the many foreclosures of homes by the building and loan associations, the writer fails to see the equity or justice in foreclosing, say the home of "A," who has paid $1000 for a lot and then has paid $2500 on a loan of $5000, at a time when values have fallen so low that the property does not bring the amount of the mortgage.

If there is anything that our state or national legislators can do to remedy this evil, it will go far to stabilize values and citizenship.

Smith's Candidacy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MR. SMITH is the only prominent Democrat whom Mr. Hoover might beat. With Ritchie, Roosevelt or Senator Lewis, the Democrats have a cinch. This country, especially New York, has been good to Gov. Smith. In no other land on earth could he and other poor boys have risen to such heights. I hope Smith loves his country enough to prevent the possible chances of having four more years of Hoover.

Collinsville, Ill. W. J. SHEA.

The States and the Utilities

Not since Gov. Ritchie enunciated his theory that the states are capable of regulating the utilities has that belief been so confidently presented as Harold E. West, chairman of the Maryland Public Service Commission, presents it in the current American Mercury. Mr. West says:

> Regulation by state authority is not perfect, any more than any other activity of government is perfect. Yet it is the best system so far devised for dealing with power and other utilities. It becomes more efficient every year. * * * If the states' agencies generally are inefficient, it is likely that the regulatory commission also will be inefficient.

Upon the contrary, the character of the state commissions, whether weak or strong, is beside the point. Presumably, Mr. West's own commission is a strong one; but it was nevertheless powerless to keep the Baltimore Street Railway case, even had it been disposed to do so, from getting so far out of hand that it at last precipitated a demonstration in the United States Senate when Mr. Hughes was renominated for the Supreme Court. We do not know of any state which has been able to exercise control over the utilities in the face of Supreme Court decisions exactly like that in the Baltimore Street Railway case, nor does Mr. West know of any state that has been able to do so. The effect of those decisions has been virtually to invite the utilities into the Federal courts, and the moment they get into the Federal courts the states are undone. It was for this reason that the Indiana Legislature some years ago memorialized Congress to estop the utilities from appealing to the Federal courts in rate cases and so setting at naught state commissions and courts.

Fortunately, the changing conditions offer a means of escaping from the hardships of that law of the land which was first enunciated in the Smyth-Ames decision in 1898. If, as the United States Supreme Court undertook to say in that and all subsequent decisions of the kind, the utilities are primarily worth for rate-making purposes what it would cost to reproduce them, they are not today worth more than 75 per cent of the value ascribed to them by the courts throughout much of the last 25 years. Ray Morrison, president of the savings division of the American Bankers' Association, said at a recent annual meeting of his organization in New York that public utilities rates throughout the country face a probable 30 per cent reduction on the basis of revaluation at present reproduction costs. The Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis is finding out what this means. It was given a valuation for rate-making purposes in 1927 of $47,000,000. The Missouri Supreme Court has sustained the city's objection that this is too high, and the case has been remanded to the State Commission. Meanwhile, the company is collecting an approximate annual increase of $600,000 in its revenues upon the basis of the $47,000,000 valuation. Now comes the city to point out that, granting the property was worth $47,000,000 in 1927, it cannot at this time be worth more than $40,000,000. That is, the only thing that has not gone down in price is gas.

The tide is turning. In our judgment it would always have been better to have based utility rates upon some such valuation basis as that suggested by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the case of the St. Louis & O'Fallon Railway. The advantage of the prudent investment theory of valuation, so called, is that it is fair to the people when costs are high, and fair to the utilities when costs are low. As for the powers of the states, they have been frustrated by resort to the Federal courts upon the score that valuations primarily based upon investment are confiscatory. The fifth and fourteenth amendments to the Constitution of the United States forbid the confiscation of private property.

Mr. West puts all those who have opposed these excessive valuations upon the side of public ownership. That is, we submit, unfair. The Post-Dispatch has repeatedly pointed out that there is a middle ground for the people if they will avail themselves of it. If they refuse to grant franchises to the utilities, and so let them operate upon good behavior, which is what the City of Detroit is doing, they can exercise complete control over rates and service. It is the vicious franchise system that has made it possible for the utilities to go into the Federal courts over the heads of the states. When the City of Detroit resolved never again to grant any such franchises, the United States Supreme Court affirmed its entire right to exercise control over rates and service.

A franchise is a vested right. It is property. Those constitutional safeguards which make property inviolate apply with equal force to all property. One of the most rapidly developing utilities in St. Louis is a bus line which operates on a permit given it by the Board of Public Service. The fare is 10 cents, and the board designates the streets upon which the busses run. There are also 18 service car lines in St. Louis operating on permits. The city has complete control over them. Meanwhile, it has no control over the Union Electric Light & Power Co., which has a franchise and so enjoys a fantastic valuation by which its profits are approximated by City Counselor Muench at a million dollars a year in excess of what would be a fair return.

What Judge Muench said after his latest legal battle with Union Electric is a complete answer to Mr. West's contention that the states can regulate the utilities. After a long and expensive battle which cost the people of St. Louis more than $250,000, the City Counselor threw up his hands with these words:

> We can imagine no case which could more forcefully demonstrate than this one does the utter futility of trying to secure satisfactory regulation of public utilities under the reproduction new theory. We challenge anyone to read the record and the vast number of opinions cited in the briefs, in which this, that or the other phase of the theory is sought to be justified on something like a logical basis, without coming to the conclusion that the attempt to control the operations of public service companies in this way has resulted in a sad and hopeless mess.

In his dissent from the decision in the Baltimore Street Railways case, Justice Brandeis instanced an example of the sort of thing that has made so many utility valuations excessive. The Maryland commission had fixed the value of the Baltimore Street Railways at $75,000,000, of which $5,000,000 represented value placed upon easements. The Justice found that these easements were "merely the privileges gratuitously granted to the railway by various county and municipal franchises to lay tracks and operate street cars on the public highways. Had the easements been called franchises, since the statutes of Maryland forbid the capitalization of franchises, it is probable that no value would have been ascribed to them for rate-making purposes." Judge Muench had much to say of this sort of thing in the case of Union Electric. Striving for a high valuation to justify its excessive tolls, the utility paraded before the State Commission a grotesque lot of make-believe and legal pantomime. Judge Muench said of it in his brief:

> Most of the expense incurred so far has been for the purpose of establishing the usual more or less visionary and always unsatisfactory present value of the company's property on the reproduction new basis. In this connection all the familiar old theories have been trotted out again and reannounced with gusto by veteran testifiers.
> If regulation were on the basis of actual records, then we should always have definite figures to deal with, and the determination of any question that might arise would be a simple process for a competent accountant. The outstanding advantages of such a system would be economy of operation and certainty of results as against the extravagant orgies of testifying and the floundering and groping for anything like reasonable conclusions which have characterized all efforts to fix values on a reproduction new basis, since the theory was first evolved and announced in the case of Smyth vs. Ames.

If the states, as Mr. West asserts, can regulate the utilities, why are Missouri and the City of St. Louis powerless in the case of Union Electric? Perhaps the chairman of the Maryland Commission will tell us that.

NEWS REEL.

International disarmament conference assembles at Geneva, and British bridge expert arrives in New York to arrange for international contract matches; 1931 statistics show drop of 29 per cent from 1930 in auto production, and Department of Commerce announces increase of 4 per cent over previous year in 1931 shoe production; San Diego (Cal.) art teacher, stretching arms to indicate size of fish he caught, breaks two ribs, and lineman at New Philadelphia, O., gets 33,000 volts of electricity through his body, suffering slight burns; American Forests for February prints its customary article on tree conservation, and same magazine has on its cover picture of George Washington, the well-known tree destroyer; Japanese delegate at Geneva says his country favors prohibition of air bombing, and fleet of Japanese planes continues bombing of Shanghai Chinese district; Kentucky Legislature sends resolution to President Hoover urging that he obtain immediate pardon for four Americans accused of killing Hawaiian in Honolulu or declare martial law there, and Kentucky authorities expel 11 visiting writers with warning that State wants no outside interference with its affairs.

SECRECY IN GOVERNMENT.

The Senate has just held its first secret session in almost three years. Return to this abandoned practice of conducting the people's business behind doors closed to them preceded the confirmation of Ira N. Ornburn of Connecticut and Robert L. O'Brien of Massachusetts as members of the Tariff Commission. Upon the suggestion of Senator Watson of Indiana, the majority leader, the galleries were cleared before a discussion of charges of a political nature against Mr. Ornburn.

However objectionable the secret session may be under any circumstances, there is one important respect in which this one differed from those which caused such a protest of public opinion three years ago. In the case of the secret sessions which confirmed Roy O. West, attorney for the Insull interests, as Secretary of the Interior in the Coolidge Cabinet, and Irvine L. Lenroot as a Hoover Judge of the Federal Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, the doors were closed while the vote was taken. In the case of Mr. Ornburn, the doors were closed during the discussion, but opened for the roll call.

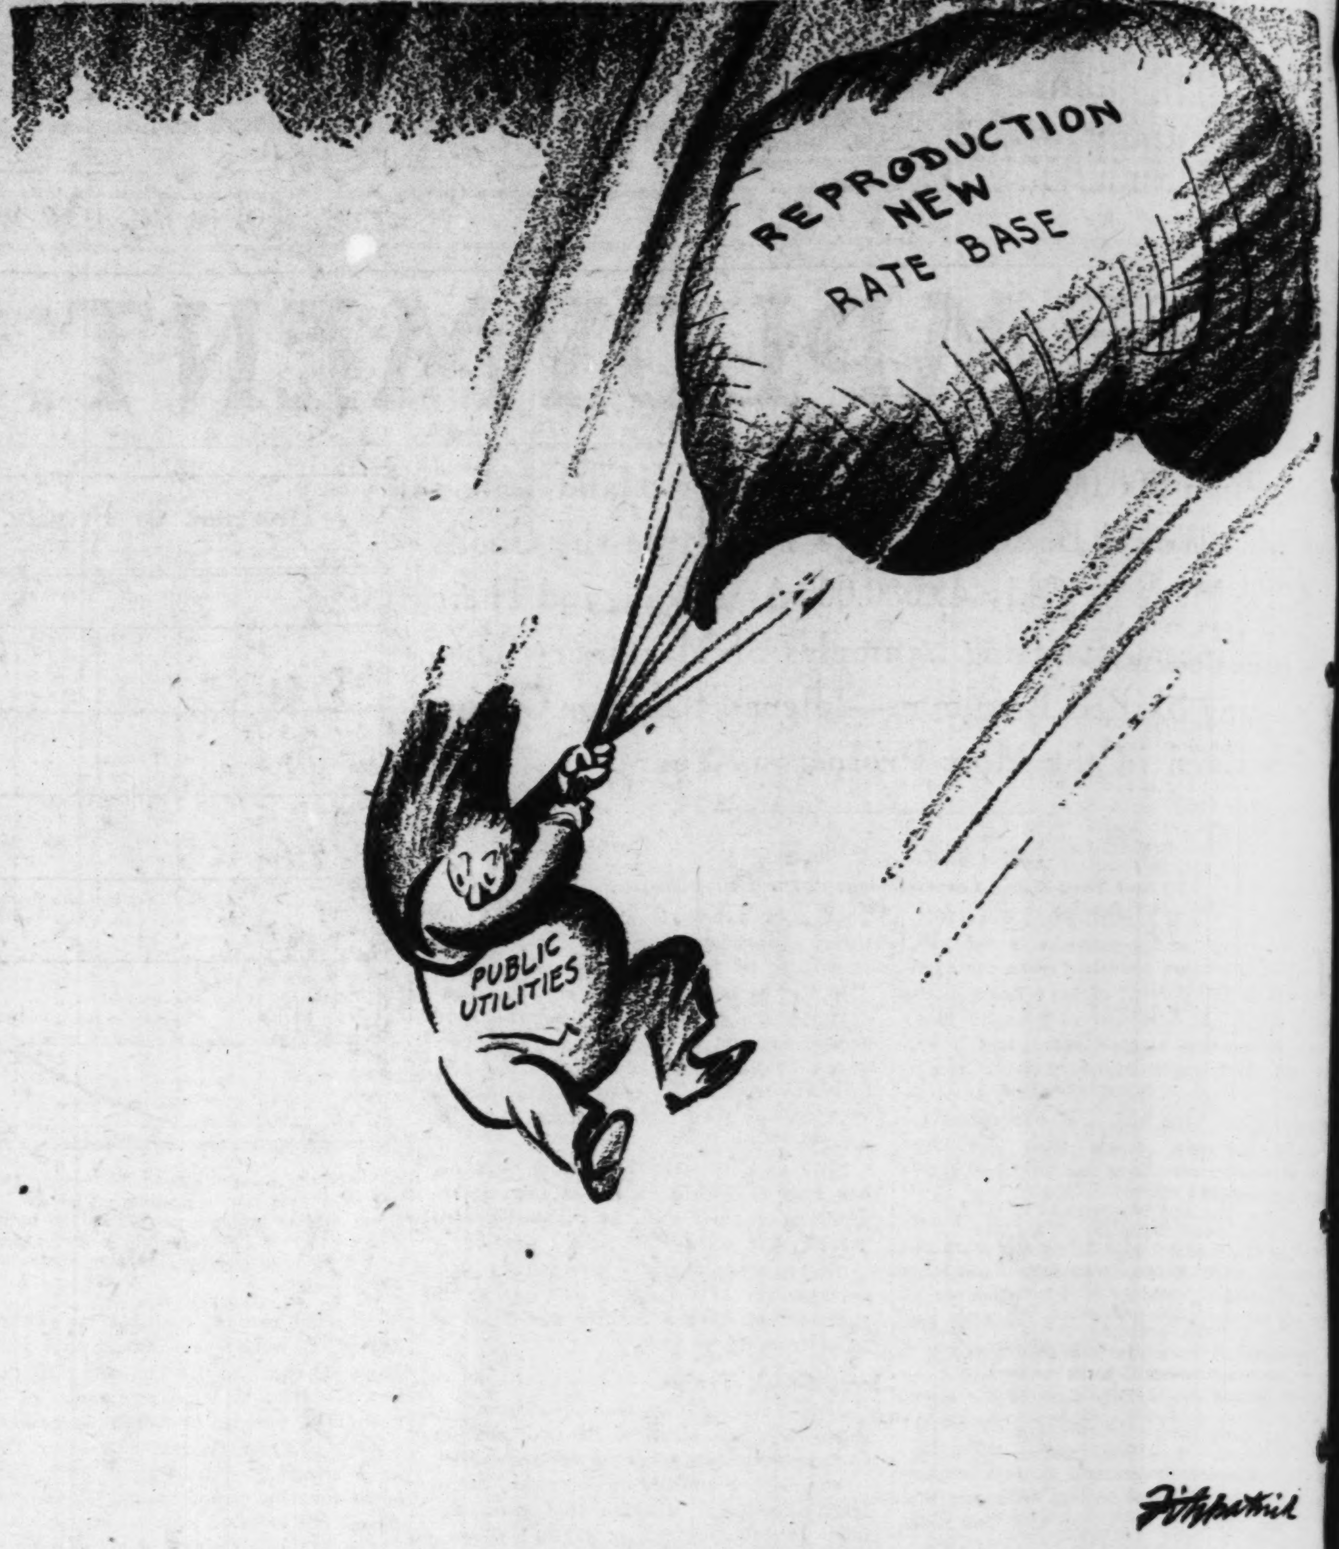
Such was the victory of Paul R. Mallon of the United Press, who secured and provided his news service with vote records in the West and Lenroot cases. The people have a right to know how their representatives vote, else how can they intelligently decide whether they prefer to continue them in office? Yet so necessary a corollary to representative government had frequently been denied them until Mr. Mallon performed the public service of causing the storm which forced the Senate to change its rules.

As to the confirmation of Mr. Ornburn and Mr. O'Brien, little needs to be said. Senator Costigan, himself a former member of the Tariff Commission, opposed both men because of their high tariff views. The truth of the matter is that the Tariff Commission has outlived its usefulness. The high hopes held for it ended when Mr. Coolidge suppressed its recommendation for a lower tariff on sugar and so caused enraged members of the commission to resign in disgust. It might have been a valuable body had President Wilson's successors followed his admirable example of appointing men such as Dr. F. W Taussig and letting them alone; but since they have not, thus preventing the commission from serving its original purpose of being a fact-finding agency for the guidance of Congress, there is no reason for continuing it. The Government might as well save the salaries.

PORTO RICO'S NEW GOVERNOR.

The beginning made by James R. Beverley, new Governor of Porto Rico, indicates that his appointment by Mr. Hoover was a logical solution of the problem left when Gov. Theodore Roosevelt was transferred to the Philippines before his reconstruction work in Porto Rico was completed. Gov. Beverley's first message to the insular Legislature shows that his seven years in the Porto Rican administration, the last four as Attorney-General, have given him thorough knowledge of the island's problems. He presented a budget $285,000 less than expected, urged a "pay-as-you-go" policy, called for consolidation of some of Porto Rico's 77 towns and advocated other reforms in elections, finances and administration. Gov. Beverley, a Texan, is familiar with his predecessor's policies of building schools, improving sanitary conditions and otherwise bettering the lot of the crowded, impoverished population, and may be expected to press those policies as long as he remains in office. He speaks Spanish fluently, and is popular with Porto Ricans.

Appointing a man already on the scene and cognizant of conditions was far wiser, of course, than sending in a new appointee to assume the unfinished work. Much of the past progress might have been lost while the new man familiarized himself with conditions. The President, in addition, executed a political stroke, for Gov. Beverley may be classed as a member of that richly deserving group, the Hoover Democrats, though his departure from lifelong Democracy came in the 1924 campaign.



A FINE BALLOON WHEN IT WAS GOING UP.

The Breaking Point in Reparations

Warnings of imminent world economic collapse are no pretense, but are justified by present conditions; moratorium has not been used to meet pressing needs; England is urged to seek way out without dilatory French, to cancel Germany's debt rather than have her default; repudiation and chaos will be the price of further delay.

From the Manchester Guardian.

IS THE world really on the edge of an economic collapse such as does not bear thinking about, or have the prophets of evil been playing a game with us all the time? One asks because, although these seem to be the only alternatives, neither of them is easily credible. If collapse is imminent, it seems incredible that sane governments should not now be considering how best to shore up the tottering building. If there is nothing particular the matter, then the whole world has joined in an incredible conspiracy of make-believe.

Unhappily there is no pretense. It is not a dream, but a fact that Britain, followed by a large number of other countries, was forced off the gold standard, that President Hoover proposed a year's moratorium on all inter-governmental debts, that it is impossible to withdraw loans (on the finest possible security) from Germany, that often one cannot export goods to countries like Germany and Austria even though there is a demand for them there and also, if payment were not prohibited, the means to pay. Why, if it is all pretense, should American banks be collapsing right and left, and why should unemployment in all the industrial countries of the world be worse than at any time before? One could go on, but there is really no need to prove that the world is about as sick as it can be without being actually prostrate.

Nor is there any real doubt about some, at least, of the remedies. Mr. Goodenough, chairman of Barclay's Bank, referred to some of them, particularly the reduction of tariffs and war debts. These, in the opinion of almost anybody you care to ask, are the two things which first want tackling if the world of commerce is to be set on its feet again. But we are not tackling them. And that is the almost unbelievable thing.

President Hoover's moratorium was expressly designed to give us time to deal with these difficulties. That was six months ago. Europe has seized upon the moratorium with avidity and, so far, has done nothing else. There has been, it is true, a report from a committee of financial experts at Basel which reinforces the conclusion that the position is daily getting worse, and we hear faint rumors about another committee which has been sitting in Berlin and is believed to be thinking out proposals which it could make if only the governments could be induced to take some sort of action on the findings of the first committee. But the French Cabinet has been busy playing a game, and our own Government is much too well bred to say, "Get a move on."

In actual fact, therefore, no positive step whatever has been taken to deal with the situation since President Hoover mooted the idea of a moratorium. It is not to be wondered at if the Americans look a little coldly on the suggestion that the moratorium be extended for another year. They believe their house will stand, whatever happens to Europe. In a sort of a way, no doubt, America might be self-supporting, but it is not to be believed that at a time when technical development makes possible and almost necessary the world-wide organization, or at any rate world-wide freedom of trade, even America could be content to live on her domestic markets. Certainly no other industrial country could, nor could the British Empire. Britain by herself would starve in a few months.

Yet, unless some such mad idea of self-sufficiency is at the back of the minds of the statesmen of the world, what ideas can they have? If the nations are not to be self-sufficient they must trade; if they are to trade they must create the conditions necessary for trade. The conditions are lacking, but everybody knows what they are and how they could be supplied.

The conference at Lausanne should be about to deal with the most urgent of these, but the French Government, who first insisted that whatever else it might accomplish Lausanne must not provide a settlement of the reparation problem, but only a temporary easement of it, and then, finding little support for this view, threatened not to come to the conference at all, have now succeeded in postponing it to an indefinite date, and may in the end kill it altogether. What our part in these proceedings may have been is not clearly known. The disposition of the Foreign Office to yield to French views was apparently changed by the Cabinet into a more vigorous assertion of our own. Hence, no doubt, the present deadlock.

It is not an easy situation. We may agree with the French to a policy of procrastination which we believe is not only bad, but possibly fatal to all hope of avoiding a serious economic and political upheaval in Germany and other countries. Or we may continue to disagree with the French. In that case, we reach a deadlock and procrastination all the same.

The question arises whether at some point it may not be better to attempt a solution without the French. Of course, no complete legal solution would be possible that way. But then, if the French persist in their policy of sticking to an obsolete and impossible treaty obligation, no legal solution is possible anyhow. Germany will just default. But if Germany is driven to default she will repudiate her obligations altogether: she will not repudiate, say, five-sixths of them. That is where the French seem to most English people to be so peculiarly short-sighted. For it is almost certainly possible to come to some sort of agreement with Germany which would not only save something from the wreck of reparations but, more important, save Germany from going back on her word.

Rather than let Germany repudiate her debt to us, it would be better to cancel it ourselves. It is not certain yet that the French Government will carry obstinacy in defense of its treaty rights to the point of forcing Germany to a total repudiation of those rights. Before this point is reached, the British Government should dissociate itself from the French and make the best agreed terms it could with the Germans.

After all, our next and even more painful discussions will be with the Americans. We shall have the unpleasant task of explaining to them that we are not able to pay what we have agreed to pay; it would at least be pleasanter to attribute our inability to our generosity in having remitted the German debt rather than to our greed in having forced Germany to repudiate it.

Decline in the Cost of Living

By Editorial Research Reports.

FIGURES recently made public by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor show that in the two years from December, 1929, to December, 1931, the general cost of living in the United States declined 15 per cent. This was approximately the amount of decline in the retail cost of clothing and house furnishings. Food fell more than any other item, 28 per cent. Rents fell 10 per cent during this two-year period, and the cost of fuel and light only 6 per cent.

The cost of living is still about 45 per cent higher than before the war. As compared with the average level of retail prices in 1913, house furnishings and fuel and light are about two-thirds higher; rents and clothing about one-third higher and food only about 15 per cent higher.

The drop of 15 per cent in the retail price level in the two years after December, 1929, may be contrasted with a drop of [illegible] per cent in the wholesale price level during that period. This trend is customary in periods of falling prices, inasmuch as many of the goods sold at retail today were purchased at wholesale some time ago. For the same reason, in most periods of rising prices an increase in the retail price level tends to lag behind an increase in the wholesale price level.

The decline in the wholesale prices of certain key commodities was as follows from December, 1929, to December, 1931:

Petroleum products	43 Pct.
Textile products	34 Pct.
Foods, including butter, cheese, milk, meats	31 Pct.
Hides and leather products	26 Pct.
Automobile tires	25 Pct.
Building materials	24 Pct.
House furnishing goods	17 Pct.
Iron and steel	12 Pct.
Paper and pulp	9 Pct.
Bituminous coal	9 Pct.
Automobiles	8 Pct.

The figures of the Bureau of Labor Statistics show that from June, 1929, to June, 1931, the cost of living in Canada, Germany, Italy and Great Britain declined to about the same degree as in the United States. In France it rose slightly.

The following table shows how the amount of the decline in the cost of living in St. Louis from December, 1929, to December, 1931, compares with that in the United States as a whole:

	United States.	St. Louis.
All items	15 Pct.	17 Pct.
Food	28 Pct.	29 Pct.
Clothing	15½ Pct.	20 Pct.
Rent	10 Pct.	15 Pct.
Fuel and light	6 Pct.	9½ Pct.

From the Arkansas Gazette.

A FEDERAL COURT in North Carolina held unconstitutional a law in that State imposing a heavy license tax upon hucksters selling produce from another State. The Attorney-General of Alabama holds that that State cannot impose a license tax upon Georgia farmers who sell peaches within the State's borders. In each instance, it was held, the tax statutes violated the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution. That is free trade.

Let's turn to Europe. Any nation may levy any license tax it chooses so long as it has no treaty with a neighboring state. There is no such thing as Federal Constitution, hence no commerce clause. And there is no such tribunal as a Supreme Court of Europe. And so we find European nations using tariff barriers when gunpowder fails. And we also find the American states "admitting" free trade is good for them but bad for European states.

LACLEDE GAS CO. SEEKS REHEARING ON RATE INCREASE

COMPANY ALLEGES ERRORS IN RULING

Previous Similar Petition Denied—If This Fails Also, Case Will Go Back to State Commission.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 13.—Another motion for a rehearing of an appeal by the City of St. Louis in the 1927 gas rate and revaluation case of the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis, in which the Missouri Supreme Court last November set aside a Public Service Commission order granting the company a rate increase of approximately $600,000 a year, and remanded the case for reconsideration, was filed with the court today by the Laclede company.

The first motion by the company for a rehearing was overruled by the court Feb. 6, in a supplementary opinion, rejecting in detail the company's numerous allegations of error in the court ruling. Leave was obtained from the court today to file the second rehearing motion.

In the ruling last November the court held the commission had erred in the method used in revaluation of part of the company's property, for rate-making purposes, that it erred in not deducting the value of certain property retired from service from a previous valuation, and that it should have made a new finding on the going value of the company, instead of allowing that fixed in a former valuation to stand. The rate increase order was issued in January, 1929.

In the motion filed today, the company attorneys contend the court was in error in a statement in the supplementary opinion, as to the effect the commission in this case had not fixed the going value, either as an independent statement, or as included in the general fair valuation found for the company property. In the original opinion the court pointed out that the commission had stated the going value was $5,818,000, in a previous valuation in 1925, but had not indicated how much of that amount was included in the rate-making valuation of $47,000,00 fixed for the property in the 1927 case. It could not be determined from the commission order how much it allowed in the final valuation for each of the various valuation elements.

The court, in holding in November that a new and separate finding should be made for going value, "appreciably less" than the previous estimate of $5,818,000.

The company also contends in the new rehearing motion that the court was in error in holding that the value of property retired from service was not deducted by the commission from the rate-making valuation. The court held the record of the case showed the commission did not deduct such items from the valuation, and considered them only in fixing an annual allowance for depreciation. In its motion today the company asserts the evidence shows such deductions were made, and that the value of the retired property had been charged out of the valuation.

If the court overrules this second motion for rehearing, the case will be returned to the commission for reconsideration.

In the meantime the company has filed another rate proceeding with the commission, in which it asks authority to mix natural gas with the artificial gas it now sells in St. Louis, and for approval of a new schedule of rates for the mixed gas, on a therm or heat unit basis, instead of a cubic foot basis. Company officials have estimated the new rates would save gas users about $600,000 a year, based on present use. Hearings on the application, which started last Tuesday, will be resumed before the commission Monday.

"more vital facts about unemployment, particularly technological unemployment." It reached these significant general conclusions:

The supplanting of men by labor-saving machines and methods is a permanent process which is going on continuously and probably at an accelerated rate. It operates independently of good times and bad times.

The worker displaced by the machine suffers a special handicap. His old job has been abolished. Whatever skill and knowledge he may possess is usually of little value as an asset in finding and learning another job.

All voluntary plans of unemployment benefits should be encouraged, but they do not solve the mass problem.

Stabilized jobs, regularized employment and adequate wages need somehow to be provided. This will probably require the "staggered" working week.

Adequate income and a steady job are necessary if the American workman is to maintain a proper standard of living and exercise the purchasing power necessary to maintain prosperity in the domestic market and support himself from his own savings during brief periods of unemployment.

Unless the leaders and thinkers in the economic field can, within a reasonable period, bring such conditions about, we may expect a resort to a nation-wide system of compulsory unemployment benefits.

One Prophecy Fulfilled.

One of the thoughtful labor leaders of the country is Sidney Hillman of New York, the president since 1915 of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. He has been called the flaming genius of the labor movement of this country. When the times were still prosperous, in 1928, Hillman wrote for the Fiftieth Anniversary Edition of the Post-Dispatch that the increased use of machinery and of more efficient methods in industry was constantly throwing vast numbers of workers out of employment. A way must be found, he said, to give work to those so displaced, "who may in the near future be counted in the millions."

Today Hillman finds his prophecy more than fulfilled. He believes that the number of unemployed is not 8,000,000, as generally calculated, but nearer 10,000,000, and that from 30 to 40 per cent of these are the victims of machinery and improved methods.

There is no place in industry today, he told the writer in a recent interview in New York, for the 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 who have been displaced by technological improvements. They are "lost" to industry under the present system. Even a 50 per cent improvement in industrial conditions, he said, would not take up 20 per cent of the unemployed. The way out, as Hillman sees it, is the "regulation of hours on a national scope," plus the establishment of a minimum wage to guarantee a decent standard of living.

By technological unemployment, Hillman means not only that caused directly by the machine, but the displacements made possible by improved methods of production. In the men's clothing industry, for example, he has seen this second cause actively at work, with the employes and management co-operating to introduce time-saving methods. As a consequence of these efforts, plus the introduction of machinery, the fewer than 100,000 who are now employed in the unionized men's clothing industry are turning out more garments than did the 177,000 employed in 1919.

New Jobs at Less Pay.

"Twenty years ago," said Hillman, "industry was highly wasteful; only within the last 10 or 15 years has it really begun to adopt efficient methods outside the use of machinery. This improvement is going on today with greater momentum than ever. From the employer's point of view it is even more advantageous than the increased use of machinery, for it enables savings to be made without spending. Industry has still a long way to go before reaching the peak of efficiency. Meantime, even with the moderate efficiency it has attained, probably a million workers a year are being thrown out of jobs. Whether a man is thrown out by the introduction of a new machine or a new method, the effect on him is the same. If he succeeds in getting another job, it is probably at a lower wage, in a position where his technical skill in the old job counts for nothing.

"Our recovery from the present depression," Hillman continued, "will be slow. We may save the banks and the railroads and the steel industry, and thereby restore the semblance of prosperity, but for the practical purposes of the great masses — the laborer, the farmer, the small man generally—we may be in the depression for years to come. Not till the available amount of work is divided among the available workers, in such a way as to promote a sense of security and give to all a decent wage, can we expect to have genuine prosperity.

When Competition Is Ruinous

"One of the large factors in the depression today is the fear that has been engendered among the workers. They see 10,000,000 workers thrown overboard. Those who are still fortunate enough to have jobs reduce their spending. So the prices of commodities are forced down; cut-throat, ruinous competition springs up; business concerns are reduced to 'distress selling' of goods; bankruptcies follow; more workers are forced out—and so the vicious circle goes on. Our machinery thus has become the machinery of destruction. If the 35 to 40 million working people of the country were given a sense of security through a work week, say of 30 hours, which would provide work for all, the vicious circle would cease to operate and the country would be headed for a widely diffused well-being."

Incidentally, Hillman declared it poor policy for the nation to base its economy on foreign trade. He agreed with Dean Donham of the Harvard School of Business Administration that we could only succeed in that kind of policy at the expense of putting our best customers out of business. Moreover, the lowering of our living standards in order to compete with low-cost countries like India and China was unthinkable.

"Export trade," he emphasized, "is undependable. We must build our national economy on the home market."

When the machine age set in it was widely argued—and by some it is still argued—that there is no such thing as permanent technological unemployment, since workers displaced by the machine and by improved processes tend to become absorbed in the "newer" industries. It is true there has been some measure of this absorption. The manufacture and distribution of artificial silk, radios, motor cars and accessories, oil products and so on have taken up workers from other lines. So also have highway transportation, advertising and sales promotion, the airplane industry and the service industries—restaurants, hotel, laundries, beauty parlors, etc.

Other Angles of Problem.

But the absorption to date, as we have seen, has not by any means solved the problem, and there is no sound evidence that it will solve it in the future. To the elaborate theories of some statisticians, purporting to show that in the long run there is no displacement of workers by the machine, but only a shifting of workers from some lines to others, it is sufficient answer to point to the facts as they exist. If these theories are valid, they are valid only in terms of an astronomical future. Certainly they can bring no comfort to the displaced worker looking for a job.

Those who maintain that technological unemployment takes care of itself and that hence there is no occasion to consider a shorter work day or work week overlook the vital fact that the present distribution of jobs, such as it is, has only been made possible by the shortening of work hours through the past years. When the Republic was founded the hours of labor in industry were the same as in farming—from sunup to sundown. Eventually came the 10-hour day and then the eight-hour day. Since 1914 the average number of hours worked in industry per week has fallen from 55 to 49. These reductions in hours have constituted an important means of providing more jobs. Consider what would be the condition at present if we were on the old 10-hour day! Those who are now urging a further reduction are simply asking that an absorptive process which has been effective in the past be used to meet modern needs.

Hunting for New Work.

What happens at present to workers thrown out by the machine? Take a simple example. A skilled mechanic is displaced, let us say, from the steel industry. His dismissal is part of a process which cheapens the cost of making steel and hence cheapens the cost of steel to the consumer. So the consumer has more money to spend for something else. He increases his use, say, of gasoline. Hence the gasoline industry expands, and the displaced mechanic finds a job at a filling station. But, since he can no longer capitalize his hard-won technical skill, he gets a reduced wage and his standard of living goes down.

Dr. Isador Lubin, an economist of the Institute of Economics of the Brookings Institution of Washington and an expert adviser of congressional committees on unemployment, recently made a survey of 800 workers in three industrial centers, to discover what becomes of the man who is discharged through no fault of his own. He found that "the newer industries are not absorbing the jobless as fast as is usually believed." Half of the men interviewed were still without jobs.

Of the unemployed, over 8 per cent had been out of work for a year and about one-half had been idle for over three months. Of those who had got work, some had been compelled to seek employment for over a year and more than one-half had suffered enforced idleness for over three months. Only 10 per cent had been able to get jobs within a month after their discharge.

About one-half of the workers who had got re-employment were receiving smaller wages than formerly and about a third were receiving approximately the same amount. Only one-fifth were making more money at their new jobs.

Of even greater significance than the loss of earnings and the length of time required to find new work was the fact that the majority of re-employed workers were in jobs bearing no relation to their old work — jobs in which they could make little or no use of their former training. Expert clothing cutters had become gasoline station attendants, watchmen in warehouses, timekeepers in steel plants and clerks in meat markets. A rotary press operator was pressing clothes in a tailoring shop. Machinists had become canvassers for mail-order hosiery concerns. Welding machine operators had become farm hands, and skilled woodworkers were mixing salves for patent medicine manufacturers.

"A significant number of men," said Lubin in his report, "admitted frankly that after some months of enforced loafing they had taken to bootlegging."

From his own and other studies giving similar results, Lubin concluded that the absorption of dispossessed workers "is not only limited in quantity but takes place in so slow and piecemeal a fashion that it frequently leads to the destruction of prevailing standards of living."

Here is an entry in the case-book of another investigator. Early in 1929, the introduction of a new labor-saving device in a Buffalo, N. Y., factory caused the discharge of a skilled machinist earning $75 a week. He had three daughters—one in high school, one in business college and one at home. After his dismissal the first girl got job at $10 a week in a department store, the second became a stenographer at $15 and the girl who had been doing the house work went into a 5-and-10-cent store at $12. Statistics here will show a large degree of absorption—three persons at work where one was employed before—but the net effect has been a cut in the family earnings from $75 to $37, or 50 per cent ,and a consequent fall in their living standard.

Wanted: New Industries.

It was confidently predicted a few years ago that the airplane industry, in its manufacturing and transportation branches, would absorb great numbers of workers and perhaps even solve the problem of technological unemployment. There were visions that it would invigorate the whole industrial system as the manufacture of motor cars had done a few years earlier. But the airplane industry has not developed as expected; it has a long way to go before it can produce results even remotely commensurate with those produced by automobile manufacture.

Nor is there on the horizon any new industry that might serve as the sponge for which industrialists are praying. Inventive genius may give us one, but nobody today is bold enough to predict what it may be, or to what extent it may utilize workers from other lines. Meantime, there is an old industry against which the eighteenth amendment has locked the door. Unquestionably, the revival of the legalized liquor traffic would mitigate to some extent the problem we have outlined. It would not, of course, cure the difficulty.

While we await the miracle to be wrought by a new industry that will create new demands, the invention of labor-saving machines—machines that take the place of 10 to 25 men, even 100 men—goes on. Not only that, but there is a constant dropping of workers from other causes rooted in our modern civilization.

Caught in Industrial Warfare.

Amalgamations and mergers, the decline of certain industries (as corset-making) because of changing fashions and changing habits of the public, the heightened efficiency of which Hillman speaks — all these forces contribute to the growth of unemployment. This heightened efficiency is the result in part of what has been called the "new competition"—the competition not among the several units of an industry, but between rival industries. Busses and pipe lines compete with the railroads, rayon with silk, the Diesel engine with the steam engine. Machine fights machine. From this form of industrial warfare comes, increasingly, the development of managerial efficiency which results in the displacement of human labor. As we have shown, this displacement, even when not permanent, produces hardship and in most cases puts the worker on a lower economic level.

The exploded prediction regarding the airplane has been cited. Another prediction, widely made at the advent of the Machine Age, has been even more thoroughly discredited. It was said that the workers displaced by machines would be needed to make the machines, and that since this would require a uniformly high grade of labor, the net effect would be to the advantage of the workers.

Ethelbert Stewart, the veteran head of the Federal Bureau of Labor Statistics, took note of this theory in an address at Cornell University.

"The answer is," he said, "that if it requires as many people to make the machines as the difference between hand production and machine production, then there has been no labor saved, and the higher wage rates of the machine constructors would make machine production more expensive than hand production—which shows the absurdity of the whole proposition."

The Question of Culture.

Stewart in this address said some other things that are worth quoting. A study ought to be made, he said, to find the answer to the question: Is there an ascertainable point in production along any line beyond which specialized machinery is not profitable?" He continued:

"The objection of William Morris, of Tolstoi, of Gandhi—in fact, of the whole Eastern and European culture as opposed to the American culture—is that you are going to make men slaves of machinery, you are going to factoryize mankind, and that sooner or later our very souls will rebel against the whole process.

"Unless American culture finds some way to answer this, then Gandhi, Tolstoi and William Morris are right. But is there no answer to it? A eady the five-day week can be mentioned without serious danger of arrest.

"If American culture will be willing to compromise with the views of the Orient, less radically held in Europe, that the purpose of mankind is to develop mankind, then this very machinery which the Orient so dreads will be the instrument of accomplishing the very thing that the Oriental point of view values most."

What he had in mind, he explained, was the accomplishment of leisure—leisure as distinguished from unpaid idleness.

Shorter Hours.

"I venture to say," he went on, "that there is not an industry in the United States today (1929) that could not produce all it could sell with the present equipment working 30 hours a week. If we progress as we have in most industries, four days of six hours each would accomplish all that is necessary even at the present time.

"Instead of working men to pile up overproduction, let machinery be our slaves, let machinery give us leisure. Let us change our point of view as to the object of existence. At present it is work, work, work; produce, produce, produce; and sell, sell, sell. We have no education along any other lines. We do not know what to do with our leisure. We do not know what Mahatma Gandhi means by contemplation. The whole machinery of education should be turned at once toward a study of leisure, and toward teaching the coming generation the use and purpose of leisure, for they will have plenty of it."

The same prediction was made by Chester Wright, economist of the American Federation of Labor, in a recent article in the Magazine of Wall Street.

"It is perhaps too early to say," he wrote, "that one of the definite results of the current financial and industrial depression is to be a five-day week, or a four-day week, but it is by no means too early to say that there is every indication that we shall emerge with a profound readjustment of the whole work life of the nation on some new basis of fewer hours of work per day, per week, per month and per year. . . . To a marked extent we shall have changed unemployment into leisure by the time recovery has arrived."

What Leisure Can Offer.

Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, has said:

"The shorter working week and what is known as adult education go hand in hand. The workman will then have some opportunity now denied him to read, to hear lectures and good music, and to participate in some of the exercises attendant upon the lighter side of life. He may also thereby widen and diversify his own skill and field of usefulness greatly to his own advantage.

"In a sense, the establishment of the five-day week and the six-hour or seven-hour day may be looked upon as part of the process of absorption of the unemployed and the bringing about of better and sounder and more helpful conditions for many kinds of labor. No American who understands the fundamental principles of his country's social and political life will wish to deny these opportunities to any of his fellow men."

Herbert Hoover said in his Newark campaign speech in 1928:

"I wish to lay down the proposition that the very prerequisite, the very foundation of economic progress to our industrial and business employes is full and stable employment. . . . To protect labor, to maintain its prosperity, to abolish poverty, we must so organize our economic system as to provide a job for all who have the will to work. . . . The problem of insuring full work all the time is a problem of national concern. It is one to which Government must give its attention. It is one which Government may contribute to solve. . . . The Republican party recognizes this responsibility."

To Master the Machine.

The problem before us, in a word, is to substitute leisure for unemployment as the product of the machine. We are paying too high a price for our industrial progress. The machine threatens, as Gompers said, to overwhelm us—to become the master of mankind instead of its servant.

There is a mass of competent testimony that we can and should turn the machine to a beneficent use by shortening the hours of work. Only in this way, the facts indicate, can we wipe out the large and growing volume of unemployment that we have with us in "good" times as well as bad. The alternative, as stated in the Post-Dispatch article on "The Country's Plight" last November, is some form of relief—the dole or what you will—for the workers displaced by the machine.

DEBATE BROADCAST FRIDAY

Washington U. vs. American Institute of Banking Team.

Debaters representing Washington University and the American Institute of Banking will engage in two contests, the first of which will be broadcast over radio station WIL next Friday and the second on the university campus Feb. 27. A split-team arrangement will be used, with one debater from the university and one from the banking institute on each team. The Washington debaters are Bronson Corbett and Dan Rosenberg.

Washington University debaters will take part in 30 contests during February and March, including a trip to Pennsylvania on which seven debates will take place. Unemployment insurance, government control of business, the return of a Democratic administration, international debt cancellation and recognition of Soviet Russia are subjects to be debated.

FOR MISSOURI EXHIBIT AT CHICAGO EXPOSITION

Century of Progress Commission Preparing Plans for Display.

Plans to present in vivid form the history, resources, development, products and recreational and scenic attractions of Missouri at the Centennial Exposition next year in Chicago were outlined by the Missouri Century of Progress Commission yesterday following a meeting at Hotel Mayfair.

Preparation of three dioramas — three-dimensional illuminated combinations of model and picture—of three state Capitols were authorized by the commission after hearing Edward J. Ashenden of Chicago, who represented the centennial diorama department. These displays are to be made in Chicago on directions provided by the commission.

Missouri has had 11 Capitols, the third of which will be the oldest represented at Chicago. It was a plain two-story building in St. Charles, which served until a Capitol was completed in Jefferson City in 1826. Another diorama will picture the Capitol built in 1888 and destroyed by fire on Feb. 5, 1911, and the third the present $4,215,000 structure.

A minimum of 5000 square feet of floor space has been tentatively allotted Missouri in the Court of States at the exposition, says Hunter L. Gary of Kansas City, chairman of the Missouri commission. He said the commission planned, as the focal point of the Missouri display, a relief map to be prepared by State Geologist H. A. Buehler in such size and detail as to give a real picture of Missouri.

Radiating from that central view of the whole State, Gary explains, will be exhibits designed to present various aspects in detail—highways, waterways, airways, industry, trade, agriculture, water power and mineral resources, and so on.

Heads of State departments have communicated their suggestions to the commission and outlined material they can provide, and an office has been opened in room 325 of the Capitol. The Legislature last year appropriated $50,000 for the centennial display. Gary said no effort was being spared to prepare an outstanding representation for this State, and as evidence of interest cited that every member has been present at each of the five meetings held by the commission since Gov. Caulfield appointed it last month.

Besides Gary, the members are: State Senator J. G. Morgan of Unionville, State Senator A. M. Clark of Richmond, E. A. Duensing of Concordia, vice president of the Southwest Lumbermen's Association; H. C. Chancellor of Lamar, banker, business man and former member of the Legislature; Paul Groeschel of Marshall, a plumbing contractor; R. E. L. Marrs of Carthage, secretary of the State Senate and secretary of the commission, and O. K. Armstrong, executive secretary in charge of the commission office at Jefferson City.

WALTER WILLIAMS TO MAKE WASHINGTON BIRTHDAY TALK

The bi-centenary of George Washington's birth will be observed by the St. Louis Chapter, Sons of the Revolution, next Sunday and the following Monday, Feb. 21 and 22.

Sunday morning the Society, and other patriotic bodies which meet with it annually, will attend a special service in Centenary Methodist Church, Sixteenth and Pine streets, conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. C. W. Tadlock.

The society's annual banquet will be held at 7 p. m. Feb. 22 at the Park Plaza. Dr. Walter Williams, president of the University of Missouri, will deliver the address on "George Washington." Members of other patriotic societies have been invited to the banquet, as well as to the church service.

Thomas E. Powe is president of the St. Louis Chapter, Sons of the Revolution, of which the late Bishop Tuttle was for years the head.

Potato Shortage in Ireland.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Feb. 13.—The shortage of potatoes all over the Free State has become so acute that Dublin's fish and chip wagons and Irish stew counters are finding it difficult to get supplies. Fish fryers here have asked the Government to restrict exports, pointing out that they alone use 2680 tons of "spuds" annually in catering to the Dublin appetite for potato chips.

RETAIL HARDWARE DEALERS TO MEET

The thirty-fourth annual convention and exhibition of the Missouri Retail Hardware Dealers' Association will be held at Hotel Jefferson Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. There will be two daily sessions. Present-day problems of hardware dealers will be discussed. Entertainment will be provided in the evenings.

"Judging from advance reservations, we have reason to expect between 200 and 300 dealers," F. X. Becherer, secretary of the association, announced. "The attendance will not be as large this year as it is in normal times. During the last year dealers have not been buying very heavily, hence their stock is low and they will enter the market this time.

"Nearly every foot of space has been taken and the manufacturers will exhibit many new lines."

The association has invited all electrical dealers, plumbers, steam fitters, furniture dealers and members of the Associated Retailers to attend the program and join in the discussion of the major theme, "The Road to Profit," at Tuesday's session.

Mrs. Erskine, who alleges general indignation and asks for alimony during litigation, claims her husband failed to provide her with social recreation and constantly "buried his nose in a book" besides upsetting her equilibrium by such methods as "an indignant shrug of the shoulders" and "a cutting insinuation by innuendo."

They were married in 1912 and separated last Wednesday. They have two sons.

WOOLF BROTHERS TO CLOSE STORE AT EIGHTH AND OLIVE

Cancellation of Lease by Clothing Shop to Involve Payment of $100,000 to Mallinckrodt Estate.

ABOUT $90,000 ANNUAL RENTAL

Several Large Retail Concerns Said to Be Negotiating for Use of Space in Arcade Building.

By Berry Moore.

It is understood negotiations have been concluded for the cancellation of the 20-year lease under which Woolf Brothers, Inc., a men's clothing concern, occupies ground floor quarters, together with large second floor space, in the Arcade Building at the southwest corner of Eighth and Olive streets. The deal is said to involve the payment by Woolf Bros. of $100,000 to the Mallinckrodt estate, owner of the building, represented by the Isaac T. Cook company in the negotiations. The store is being discontinued.

Executed in June, 1929, just before the stock market crash, the lease calls for a rental of about $90,000 a year. The space under lease includes the corner part of the first and second floors of the building, formerly occupied by the Bond Clothing Co., and adjoining stores at 804 Olive street and at 223 North Eighth street, formerly occupied respectively by the Regal Shoe Co. and the Doubleday Book Co.—a total of about 25,000 square feet, with large store frontage on both floors on Olive and Eighth. The space on the second floor extends to the arcade.

Quarters Had Been Remodeled.

The quarters were remodeled to meet the requirements of Woolf Bros., Inc., at a large outlay.

The concern, of which Herbert Woolf is president, has its headquarters in Kansas City. Woolf was here yesterday in connection with the cancellation of the lease, the papers for which have been drawn and are in the hands of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., executor of the Mallinckrodt estate, for approval, it was stated at the office of the Isaac T. Cook company.

In addition to a complete line of clothes for men, the Woolf Brothers store includes a men's high-grade shoe section and a department devoted exclusively to women's wear.

It was reported that several large retail concerns were figuring on this space, which it is said will be available in its entirety or subdivided for occupancy by several tenants, in diverse lines. Rumor was persistent that the Katz Drug Co., Kansas City, which operates a chain of drug stores in the Southwest, was negotiating for the corner. This was denied by Arthur Fuldner, vice president of the Isaac T. Cook Co.

Site an Important One.

The Arcade building is opposite the present Federal Building block, which it is expected will become the site of a great office and department store building. This fact was taken into consideration by Woolf Bros. in the acquisition of the Eighth and Olive street lease.

Woolf Brothers, Inc., which operates a chain of men's stores in the Southwest, was established in 1860. The St. Louis store was opened in 1926 in ground floor quarters in the Paul Brown building, southeast corner of Eighth and Olive, which the concern gave up when it removed to the Arcade building.

The F. W. Woolworth Co. occupies the three-story building at the southeast corner of Eighth and Olive, which acquired the site under 99-year lease several years ago through Martin & Breitt, in connection with Cornet & Zeibig. The lease made possible the sale of the fee to this property for nearly $1,000,000, or at the rate of more than $12,000 a foot for the Olive street frontage, the Catlin estate, being the purchaser. The fee was formerly owned by the Turner estate, but the present building, a comparatively new structure, was erected by the Woolworth Co. at its own expense. The site of the Woolworth building has a frontage of 76 feet on Olive with a depth of 127 feet. The Catlin Estate also owns 50 feet on Olive and 42 feet on Eight, adjoining on the east and on the south.

AUCTION OF TRACT EVENT OF THIS WEEK

An event of the week will be the foreclosure sale of the vacant tract on the west side of Skinker boulevard extending from Rosebury drive to Northmoor avenue under a first deed of trust for $88,000, held by interests represented by Harry Koplar.

It will be conducted on the floor of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange in the Wainwright Building, Tuesday. The title to the tract was held by Nathan Frank at the time of his death. He had acquired it under a junior mortgage.

HEARING TOMORROW ON HOME LOAN BANKS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Authorities on finance and housing will arrive here Monday at the call of the National Association of Real Estate Boards to testify before the resumed Senate hearing on the Home Loan Bank bill. Senator Watson (Rep.), Indiana, who introduced the bill, will preside.

The bill, which also has been introduced in the House by Representative Luce (Rep.), Massachusetts, provides for the creation of 12 banks for the sole purpose of discounting first mortgages on homes held by building and loan associations, banks, life insurance companies and other home financing institutions.

Strongly in favor of the proposed system "first, because it would save thousands of American homes from foreclosure," the National Association of Real Estate Boards has collected evidence on all phases of the question.

A. T. TERRY, SON & CO. REPORT LEASING OF WALTON AV. HOME

Albert T. Terry, Son & Co. reports the leasing of an attractive residence at 370 Walton avenue for Mr. and Mrs. Burgoyne Wilson to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Wight. Mr. and Mrs. Wight will take possession about March 1. The house is a three-story brick with 10 rooms and three baths and is thoroughly modern in every detail.

The firm also reports having sold the six-room house at 902 Bayard avenue from R. M. Ruckle, trustee, to a client.

TWO OFFICES ARE LEASED TO HOWARDS CLEANERS, INC.

Apex Realty Co. has closed a lease for ground floor space at 508 North Taylor avenue to Howards Cleaners, Inc., which will open a receiving office and sales room. The Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. represented the owners as trustee under the will of Frank A. Ruf.

The Apex company also reports the closing of a lease for the storeroom at 5619 Pershing avenue for G. J. Wilson, owner, to Howards Cleaners, which will use the space as a receiving office and salesroom. The Apex company represented both parties.

NEW "FOOD MART" TO OCCUPY SIXTH AND LUCAS FIRST FLOOR

Head of Meletio Sea Food Co. Takes 10-Year Lease of Meyer Building—Space Also Let to Others.

What is to be known as the Food Mart has been organized by W. A. Meletio, president of the Meletio Sea Food Co., who has acquired a 10-year lease of quarters on the ground floor of the seven-story Meyer building at the southeast corner of Sixth street and Lucas avenue for the new enterprise.

The purpose of the Food Mart is to fill the need for a complete food market for all varieties of quality food temptingly displayed and offered for sale at moderate prices. It will serve virtually as a food exhibition, according to Meletio.

Space in the Food Mart has been let to merchants whose reputation for quality foods at moderate prices has already been established. The Meletio Sea Food Co., large oyster, fish and sea food packers, whose wholesale department is at Broadway and Franklin avenue, will have the principal exhibit. The names of the other participants have not been disclosed.

The most important food items carried will include fresh fish and sea food, fresh and smoked meats, city and Government inspected, fruits and vegetables, butter and cheese, eggs, coffee, dressed poultry, bakery and delicatessen departments.

The Food Mart is sponsored by Meletio, who has assumed the lease as exemplifying his confidence in the enterprise.

Opposite Union Market.

The quarters leased is opposite the Union Market and the Municipal Garage, and is only 150 feet north of Washington avenue, one of the chief shopping lanes of the city. It is described by Meletio as a 100 per cent location for a retail food store. Within close proximity are three of the largest department stores.

Contracts have been let for fixtures of the latest improved refrigeration types, designed for sanitation, accessibility and display. The premises, which will be completely remodeled, will be ready for occupancy on or before March 10.

Noteworthy also was the purchase of the four-story and basement building at 114-116 Elm street by William T. Hentchel, through Martin & Breitt. It comprises 30,000 square feet equipped with sprinkler and steam heating plant.

The Standard Mercantile Co., of which Hentchel is president, will occupy the building, which will give the concern additional space for expansion. The Standard Mercantile Co., specializes in glass ware, stoneware and hardware. For the present the building will be used as a warehouse, but later will be occupied as offices of the concern now located at 604 South Seventh street.

The Kratz Realty Co. represented the owner, and the purchaser, William T. Hentchel, was represented by Martin & Breitt.

The New York Quinine & Chemical Works has acquired a lease of a four-story and basement building at 403 North Main street. Possession of the building will be given May 1. The building will provide additional space the company needed. The negotiations were handled by Martin & Breitt.

New "Tavern" on Pine Street.

The ground floor of the building at 708-10 Pine street has been taken under a long lease by Harry and Catherine Drees for a restaurant to be known as the "Green Plate Tavern." This space, comprising 5000 square feet of floor space, will seat approximately 250 persons. Alterations are being made to install a sandwich department and grill room with table service. Plans also contemplate a complete home-baked pastry department. The building is owned by Frank Dubinsky, president of the Dubinsky Realty Co. Both parties were represented by the Isaac T. Cook company.

The Cook company also negotiated a lease to the Electric Sales Co., for the one-story building at 1228 North Twelfth street. The A. L. Sullivan Textile Weaving Co., occupying the sixth floor of the Sesame building, at the northwest corner of Seventh and St. Charles streets, executed a new lease on the premises it now occupies. Isaac T. Cook company also represented both parties in these transactions.

$4000 COMPLETE

We contend and firmly believe these homes will sell themselves to you. Just as they have to many others. We employ no high-pressured salesman: that pest and nuisance is totally lacking in this organization. However, we have at your service several practical men, well-versed on building and financing, who will discuss with you intelligently our plan of building and selling. Drive out today and inspect these homes—1400 block Louisville Ave., 6500 west on Clayton Ave. Be one of the many smart people who are waiting for our Big Announcement! Some 600 families have inspected these homes during the past week and have decided to wait until Spring, when our next offering is ready.

DON'T BE FOOLED—DON'T BE IN A HURRY—WAIT!

It's smart to get a bargain. But it's much more smarter to get a home. Just a hint—you may accept it for what it is worth. A heating system will be installed in these homes, one that automatically heats your homes in Winter and automatically cools it in Summer. Won't that be something? Again we guarantee you it will be worth your while to wait.

Men and Women WANTED

Operate Regular Route

Make Up to $60 A WEEK

As part of our expansion program, we have decided to establish Customer Service Routes in many new teritories. These Routes pay $27.50 to $60 a week, depending on the time given to them. It is not necessary to take any preliminary course of training. The pay begins immediately—you earn while you learn.

No investment or previous experience is required. All that is necessary is that you be industrious, reliable and willing to do an honest day's work for an honest day's pay. A car will be helpful, but is not necessary.

The duties are pleasant and dignified, consisting of supplying our famous line of household products to steady customers on a reguarly weekly route. You will have full charge of your Service Route and will not be working under anyone else. You'll be engaged in healthful outdoor occupation and will make many new friends.

If you are interested in a connection of this sort, please let me hear from you promptly. Just write your name and address plainly on the coupon and mail to me at once. I will send full particulars by return mail and then, after you have carefully considered all the facts, you can decide whether or not you want to accept the position. Mail the coupon today—right now—before somebody else from your territory gets in ahead of you. Albert Mills, Route Mgr., 8648 Monmouth Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

SALESMAN WANTED

1931 GREATEST YEAR

In 1931 when most business organizations were in a slump, our sales broke all previous records. And we have been in business for over 28 years.

Such progress marks this as a depression-proof business—good the entire year round—with an unlimited market and future.

This is a nationally-known million-dollar corporation—the leader in its field—with offices in all principal cities, having an opening for a man with the following qualifications to represent it as salesman in the St. Louis office which has been established for years:

Age 30 to 40 years; diversified selling experience such as high-class specialties, advertising, books or intangibles. Must have good experience, personality and reputation, be accustomed to earning a fair income, be able to finance himself for 30 to 60 days, and be immediately available. The line is educational. The territory is well organized. Goodwill and influence thoroughly established.

Salesmen work on leads almost exclusively. Many tested lead-production methods coupled with unusual home office cooperation and training in your own office insures success from the very start.

If should you feel that you measure up to our qualifications, and desire affiliation with an old and reliable organization with an enviable sales record, write us full information about yourself and give telephone number. Field manager now in city will interview you immediately. All replies held strictly confidential. Address Box K-22, Post-Dispatch.

ARMS CONFEREES SHOW TENDENCY TO COMPROMISE

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Feb. 13.—The disarmament conference today hear Dr. W. W. Yen of China declar that its success or failure depende on the outcome of the Far Easter conflict, as the international statesmen completed two weeks of work in the course of which they heard 25 speeches, totaling 127,000 words.

These addresses have clarified the issues before the delegates and have given them some hope that the problems they face will solved.

The conference, which began in deep pessimism, has developed some optimism. A few points, in fact, already are regarded as virtually settled.

Two camps have arisen which at first seemed irreconcilable but lately commentators have declared that they might eventually get together.

"Security first," is the slogan of one camp; "Disarmament first" of the other.

France is leader of the security faction, with Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Jugoslavia, Rumania and Belgium as her followers. The other group is headed by the United States, Great Britain, Germany and Italy.

Tendency to Compromise.

A survey as the conference opened disclosed points of view apparently incapable of reconciliation. France would not give up security in favor of disarmament. Germany wanted general disarmament for victor states as well as the vanquished. Italy wanted parity with France, which France would not grant.

Speeches and conversations during the past week have disclosed a desire for conciliation.

France, whose plan for an international police force as presented by War Minister Andre Tardieu was aimed only at security and did not mention disarmament, later expressed to the conference her willingness to disarm as well.

Italy changed her claim for parity to a claim for "perequation"—using a French term which did not appear in the English translation. This means approximate parity to be achieved gradually through successive diminutions of the difference between the two countries. France and Italy already are conducting direct negotiations.

Germany said she would be willing that equality between victor and vanquished states be reached in some future year by gradual reduction. The United States will stand aloof from guaranteeing security, but a way out may be found by an all-European guarantee, including England, which is reluctant to join but may do so to save the conference.

The United States, however, gave the conference one point of compromise by agreeing to budgetary, or financial, limitation.

Polish Club to Be Formed.

A meeting will be held Feb. 23 at the Polish Home, 1940 Cass avenue, to organize a Polish citizens' club. At a recent meeting a committee was chosen to draw up a constitution, and temporary officers were named, headed by Walery Kocperski. The purpose of the club is to unite persons of Polish descent.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—The advance guard of the Chicago Cubs eaded westward tonight, the first major league club to start out for its spring training camp.

Thirteen players, most of them rookie pitchers and infielders, together with Manager Rogers Hornsby and two coaches, started from Chicago. Five others will join the troupe en route.

As Manager Hornsby finished his etaway preparations, he announced that every one of the 37 players on the roster had signed 1932 contracts.

ARMS CONFEREES SHOW TENDENCY TO COMPROMISE

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Feb. 13.—The disarmament conference today heard Dr. W. W. Yen of China declare that its success or failure depended on the outcome of the Far Eastern conflict, as the international statesmen completed two weeks of work, in the course of which they heard 25 speeches, totaling 127,000 words.

These addresses have clarified the issues before the delegates and have given them some hope that the problems they face will be solved.

The conference, which began in deep pessimism, has developed some optimism. A few points, in fact, already are regarded as virtually settled.

Two camps have arisen which at first seemed irreconcilable but lately commentators have declared that they might eventually get together.

"Security first," is the slogan of one camp; "Disarmament first" of the other.

France is leader of the security faction, with Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Jugoslavia, Rumania and Belgium as her followers. The other group is headed by the United States, Great Britain, Germany and Italy.

Tendency to Compromise.

A survey as the conference opened disclosed points of view apparently incapable of reconciliation. France would not give up security in favor of disarmament. Germany wanted general disarmament for victor states as well as the vanquished. Italy wanted parity with France, which France would not grant.

Speeches and conversations during the past week have disclosed a desire for conciliation.

France, whose plan for an international police force as presented by War Minister Andre Tardieu was aimed only at security and did not mention disarmament, later expressed to the conference her willingness to disarm as well.

Italy changed her claim for parity to a claim for "perequation"—using a French term which did not appear in the English translation. This means approximate parity to be achieved gradually through successive diminutions of the difference between the two countries. France and Italy already are conducting direct negotiations.

Germany said she would be willing that equality between victor and vanquished states be reached in some future year by gradual reduction. The United States will stand aloof from guaranteeing security, but a way out may be found by an all-European guarantee, including England, which is reluctant to join but may do so to save the conference.

The United States, however, gave the conference one point of compromise by agreeing to budgetary, or financial, limitation.

Polish Club to Be Formed.

A meeting will be held Feb. 23 at the Polish Home, 1940 Cass avenue, to organize a Polish citizens' club. At a recent meeting a committee was chosen to draw up a constitution, and temporary officers were named, headed by Walery Kocperski. The purpose of the club is to unite persons of Polish descent.

Wray's Column

A Non-Synthetic Tunney.

FISTIANA owes a vote of thanks to James Joseph Tunney for clearing up in his well-told biography, two points concerning himself which have resulted in much discussion and considerable acrimony.

Tunney completely dispels the prevailing myth that he was a synthetic fighter who, disliking the game, still persevered, forcing himself to study and master the details of the profession in the hope of gaining quick riches.

TUNNEY.

It should also prove to the skeptical that Tunney's literary tendencies were not just an attitude, but were founded on genuine interest and a substantial self-education.

It is with a feeling of pleased surprise that the average fight fan learns from the story of Tunney's early life that boxing and fighting not only were not abhorrent to him, but that they formed a major part of his athletic development, during the period between boyhood and maturity—and, of course, thereafter. He not only had the fighting spirit, but he had the fighting head and heart with it.

Says Dempsey Lacked Confidence.

IN one particular, however, Tunney's narrative will be challenged. That is his reference to Dempsey in which he suggests that "lack of self-confidence" on Dempsey's part kept him from meeting the Negro, Harry Wills. Tunney, in this connection, says:

"For one possessing such sheer fighting ability Dempsey had an extraordinary lack of confidence in himself."

"Though the majority of boxing's best judges believed that Dempsey could easily whip Harry Wills, his persistent Negro challenger, Jack evidently did not. He failed to accept a seven-year challenge."

News stories of the period seem rather to show that Jack Kearns and Tex Rickard were responsible for Jack's failure to fight Wills for the title.

Jack publicly expressed his willingness to accept the match, but Tex Rickard, cautious promoter, remembering the disturbances that followed the Johnson-Willard fight, declined to promote the event.

No other promoter could be trusted to get big money out of the match.

In fact, Dempsey once signed to fight Wills; but when the Indiana promoters were unable to find a suitable place for the bout the match fell through.

When Jack Was Nervous.

IT IS considered by some almost blasphemy to hint that Dempsey, who proved his fighting gameness in almost every way, had a particle of timidity or lack of confidence in his nature; yet Tunney cites one instance which convinced him that Jack could be highly nervous, as follows:

"Four days before our first match, Dempsey called Herman Taylor, a Philadelphia boxing promoter, into the privacy of his dressing room after a workout, and asked:

" 'Don't kid me, Herman. Do you honestly think I will win from Tunney?' Taylor was so impressed by Dempsey's lack of confidence in himself that he hedged his bets."

Had Good Cause.

But who could blame Dempsey for having doubts about himself, when he was making his first fight in three years, under condi-

Jess Haines Signs for 1932; Will Train at Hot Springs

Jess Haines, veteran of the Cardinal pitching staff, has signed a contract for 1932 and will depart shortly for Hot Springs, Ark., for a week or 10 days of preliminary training, Treasurer Bill De Witt of the world champions announced yesterday afternoon.

Haines signed after conferring at Columbus, O., with Branch Rickey, vice president and business manager of the Redbirds. Rickey telephoned the news from Columbus to the Cardinal office.

Last year Haines trained at Hot Springs with Burleigh Grimes before going to Bradenton and reported that he found himself in better condition than in previous recent springs. During the late weeks of the season he was unable to pitch because of an injury to his shoulder. However, he thinks the winter of rest has restored the efficiency of his arm.

ST. LOUIS HOCKEY CLUB LOSES TO KANSAS CITY, 2-1, IN FINAL PERIOD

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 13.

THERE will be no repetition of the incident at the St. Louis-Duluth hockey game at St. Louis last Thursday night when the Duluth club held up the game for 15 minutes, refusing to go on the ice for the third period until the club had received its $500 guarantee for the game. The board of governors of the American Hockey League this afternoon amended the constitution so that henceforth all guarantees due the visiting club will be paid after the contest.

The governors ruled any club holding up the game and demanding its guarantee would be fined and censured.

Eddie Bouchard, over whom the St. Louis and Duluth clubs had a dispute, was censured for accepting terms of the Duluth Club over the telephone and then signing a contract with St. Louis. The league ruled that in the future all player deals must be made by wire or in writing.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 13.—"Slim" Halderson, veteran defense man, skated through the entire St. Louis team from near his own goal, beat Goalie Rheaume in a swift rush at the net, and the Kansas City Pla-Mors were victors over St. Louis, 2—1, here toinght in an American League hockey game.

The Flyers, who gained a one-point lead when the second period had barely started with a high teaser shot from near the Blue line, played a desperate rushing game in the final minutes after Halderson's shot, but failed in their repeated rushes.

After the St. Louis goal in the second session, and following a first period that found the Flyers mostly on the defensive, due to the defense smashing tactics of the local club, the St. Louisans adopted a defense style that the Pla-Mors found hard to solve, especially in the absence of Pete Mitchell, stellar centerman and keystone of the Pla-Mor attack all season.

After an entire period of fruitless attack which found the St. Louis back line a stonewall, Ranger took a neat pass from McKinnon in front of the net to tie up the contest. Halderson's feat came soon after, and his burst of speed found the entire St. Louis club temporarily flatfooted.

By the Associated Press.

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 13.

He defeated Policeman Bill Glauden, 99 to 98, or 2 to 1, whichever way you look at it. At any rate, out of 100 shots with a rifle at the head of a bowling pin, Glauden missed two, while Wegener hit the pin every time with a bowling ball.

Redbird Manager Believes Giants Will Run Second and Cubs Third — Predicts Derringer, Gelbert and Watkins Will Stand Out as Improved Players.

By J. Roy Stockton.

JOPLIN, Mo., Feb. 13.—Charles E. Street, who has led the Cardinals to two pennants and a world championship during his two years as a big league manager, expects unusually stout opposition from an unusually large number of teams in the National League's 1932 race, but the Old Sergeant is grinning the grin of confidence.

"Why shoudn't I be grinning, and why shouldn't I be confident?" he countered at his home here today, as he leaned back in a deep-cushioned rocker and stuffed tobacco into a time-worn pipe with his gnarled fingers. "Sure, it's going to be a tough race. But we all like a good fight, don't we? And I'm more confident of victory this coming year than I ever was before. And you'll remember that I told you in 1930 that we were good enough to win and in 1931 I said no other club in the league had a right to be in front of us.

"But this year I feel that the Cardinals are a still better ball club and I'll tell you why. There's no reason to believe that any of our older players have gone back to any extent. I mean Frisch and Hafey and Bottomley and Adams and Wilson ought to be as good as they were last year. Time hasn't taken any serious toll from them. And then, on the other side of the ledger, we've a squad of young men who reasonably can be expected to improve over their 1931 performances.

"There's Martin. He believed in himself last year, but now he will have worlds of confidence and I expect him to show vast improvement, especially in his batting. Gelbert has been better each year and should stand out in 1932 as the best shortstop in the business.

"Shifting back to the outfield, I'll be surprised and disappointed if George Watkins doesn't add 25 or 30 points to his batting average. He is a smart ball player and a determined one. He had trouble with slow balls for a time last year, but he was hitting them before the season closed and he will practice during the spring to eliminate any remaining weakness against the change of pace. I don't expect Watkins to approximate his 1930 batting average, but I do look for him to be well above .300 in 1932."

'Oh Boy, It'll Be a Race!'

Returning to his statement that he expected an unusually close race next season, Gabby explained that virtually every club in the league had strengthened.

"There won't be any real soft spots in the league," he asserted. "I pick the Giants to run second and give us the stoutest competition, with the Cubs likely to finish third and Brooklyn in fourth place. Boston probably will top the second division, with Pittsburg sixth, Cincinnati seventh and the Phillies, who have done the least to improve, likely to land in the cellar.

"Some time ago I figured the Reds to trail the league, but Dan Howley has made some deals since then and I have boosted him to seventh place. He even might do better than that. Grantham probably will be used in the outfield and with Douthit and Roettger in the other gardens, Dan will have an excellent secondary line of defense. Then he'll have Heath and Hendrick at first, with Cuccinello, Stripp, High, Durocher, Morrissey and Bluege available for infield duty. If Dan had an old catcher to steady his pitching staff he might make a lot of trouble.

"Some baseball men are making the mistake of counting the Cubs out of the race. You can't do that. Hornsby had a lot of tough luck last year. Managers moan when they lose one good man or when one good man slumps. But Rogers had five go bad on him, including himself. The others were Malone, Stephenson, Hartnett and Hack Wilson. Take those five men and you have a pretty fair nucleus of a good ball club. Add four fair players to the five and you'd have a pennant contender. Of course, Wilson is gone, but Hornsby has Grimes and the club is sure to be dangerous.

"The Cardinals' loss of Grimes must be considered seriously. We had young pitchers coming up who had to be given a chance and because we were so well fortified I approved the transfer, which helped to cut down the club's overhead. Of course, Grimes will be missed, but then we will have three young pitchers and one or two of them should be able to fill in and

By James M. Gould.

St. Louis University's basketball team last night got back in the running for the city collegiate championship when the Billikens defeated the Concordia Preachers, 21-11. Also, the defeat took away the last chance Concordia had for the title as it was their third reverse in as many title games.

Concordia, far off form, was held to a single field goal in each half and Grandone, the St. Louis center, with 12 points outscored the entire Preacher team. About 1600 persons watched St. Louis stay in and Concordia pass out of the championship race.

At the end of the first half, the score was tied at 8—8, Grandone scoring seven of the eight Billiken points and six of the Concordia counters being the result of successful free throws. Both teams played too carefully to keep the interest of the fans at any high pitch.

Beginning the second half, St. Louis began to function and, with a rush, the Billikens scored seven points before Concordia got even one. They added five more while the Preachers were getting two. Concordia thus scored only three points in the whole second half.

IOWA DEFEATS NORTHWESTERN IN BIG TEN UPSET

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 13.—Iowa turned in the biggest upset of the Western Conference basketball championship season tonight, defeating Northwestern's hitherto undefeated team, 30 to 25.

The Hawkeyes kept pace with the 1931 champions all the way until late in the second period when Iowa hopped into the lead and kept right on going. They were tied at the half, and Northwestern made its bid as the second period got underway. The Wildcats worked the count to 24 to 19, only to have Kotlow, Reigert, and Morfitt put Iowa in front.

The defeat was Northwestern's first in eight games, and the victory was Iowa's second in seven contests.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 13.—Indiana upset the second place Minnesota quintet, 27 to 22, in a Big Ten basketball game here tonight. Led by Weir, a substitute sophomore forward who played his first full game because of the illness of a regular, Indiana matched speed against superior height to pull away in the last five minutes of the game. Weir was high scorer with 10 points.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Purdue hopped into second place in the Western Conference basketball battle title race tonight, defeating Chicago, 40 to 27, while Minnesota was losing to Indiana. The victory was Purdue's fourth of the conference season, while Chicago suffered its sixth straight defeat.

AMERICANS LEAD UNTIL LAST SECONDS OF 3D PERIOD

By the Associated Press.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 13.—The 1932 Winter Olympic Games came officially to an end this evening with Canada winning a bitter final day fight for the hockey championship, two Finns unexpectedly piling home through a blizzard to take first and second places in the 50-kilometer cross country ski marathon, and the United States leading all in the unofficial total score total with 88 points.

It took the flashy Canadians, entering the final contest without a defeat in the round robin series of 12 games with the United States, Germany and Poland, three full overtime periods to stave off the bid of the United States college and club stars, finishing in a 2-2 tie. A crowd of 5000 jammed every bit of available space in tme Olympic indoor arena.

U. S. Tied in Last 43 Seconds.

The tie was all Canada needed to gain the third straight Olympic hockey title with 11 points, two more than the United States gathered in beating all but Canada. In the fastest game of the series today, just as in the opening match Feb. 4, the Canadians came from behind to tie just 43 seconds the end of the regulation game. But this time instead of going out to score the winning goal in the overtime, the Canadians were content to hold the aggressive Americans scoreless through the 30 minutes of extra play.

The biggest surprise of the closing day came in the 50 kilometers ski marathon, a back-breaking grind through the thick falling snow that overnight replaced the spring-like temperatures of yesterday and forced postponement of the four-man bob-sled championship until tomorrow. Tonight the deadly slide on Mount Van Hoevenberg again was in fine condition, with a three-inch layer of snow on a solid ice base, fast as it has ever been, for the assault of the daredevils of five nations tomorrow.

Finns Finish One, Two.

The amazing Finns were Veli Saarinen, who took first place and the Olympic title from Sven Utterstrom of Sweden, defending champion, and Vaino Liikkanen, who followed his countryman across the finish line 20 seconds behind, after dogging the rear tips of his skis through the exhausting 31-mile grind. Saarinen finished the two-lap caurse on which 150 workmen piled snow all last night, in four hours 28 minutes flat.

Behind the second Finn came three Norwegians in order, Arne Rustadstuen, Ole Hegge and Sigurd Vestad, with Utterstrom, who won the 18 kilometers championship Wednesday and was a heavy favorite to repeat his 10-kilometer 1928 conquest, sixth. The United States entries were lost in the field.

Tonight as dusk was falling, Count Henri Baillet-Latour of Belgium, president of the International Olympic Committee, gathered what was left of the 331 athletes of 17 nations in the Olympic Stadium and thanked them for their sportsmanship and awarded them the diplomas and medals they had won in Olympic competition.

U. S. Wins With 88 Points.

Unofficially there was no question that over the course of the games the United States, with four individual speed skating championships and the two-man bob sled triumph, dominated the team efforts. The unofficial point totals gave the United States 88 points, Norway 77, Canada 49, Sweden 28, Finland 25, Austria 15, France 10, Germany 8, Hungary 7, Switzerland 6, Rumania 3, Poland 3, Italy 1, Belgium 1 and Czecho-Slovakia 1.

More points are certain to accumulate for the United States in the bob run tomorrow, with Harry "Hank" Homburger, world record holder, and Billy Fiske, pilot of the 1928 Olympic championship sled, co-favorites.

With winter back in championship form today, enough snow falling and enough cold to take care of another full set of Olympics, the 25,000 visitors to Lake Placid sought to stay indoors for their competition and nearly broke down the indoor arena in an effort to see Canada and the United States tangle in a desperate battle.

The Canadians entered the final round hockey clash with the United States two points to the good and the tie they got was just as good as a win in the final analysis.

During a major portion of the game, however, it looked like the United States would win, tie Canada for the lead and force a play-off tomorrow for the title won by the Dominion stars in 1924 and 1928.

NATIONAL LEAGUE TO TRY OUT 103 RECRUITS THIS SPRING

MINOR LEAGUE LEADERS STRIVE FOR PLACES; 51 ARE PITCHERS

By Herman Wecke.

Minor league batting and pitching leaders are found among the 103 recruits who will be taken South by the eight clubs in the National League this spring. Of the newcomers, a majority are pitchers, inasmuch as 51 will strive for mound berths on the various teams. Of the other athletes, 40 of the 52 who will attempt to win regular berths in the different positions hit for averages of better than .300. Indicating that the scouts still went in for the heavy hitters.

Class is not lacking among the newcomers who will go South with the world champion Cardinals. Two pitchers, Dizzy Dean in the Texas and Ray Starr of the International showed the way for their rivals in efficiency. Dean permitted but 1.53 earned runs a contest. He had 303 strikeouts to lead the country and his 11 shutouts topped everything in baseball. In addition he worked in 28 complete contests. Starr's efficiency mark was 2.83. Pat Crawford, a first sacker, hit for 388 total bases and smashed 28 homers to lead the Association in these departments. Bob Parham, the player who came to the Redbirds with cash for Hack Wilson, paced the Eastern in runs scored, triples and stolen bases.

"Down On the Farm."

Which indicates that the Cardinals' "farms" are still producing athletes for the varsity. In addition to the four mentioned above, "Tex" Carleton, winning 20 games in the Texas, stopped the enemy with 1.89 earned runs in each nine rounds. Three young men, Storey, Fisher and Bryant, from Keokuk in the Mississippi Valley, all put together fine twirling records.

The Giants have two new pitchers who were minor league pace setters in Jim Mooney, the southpaw, who paced the Eastern in efficiency, yielding but 1.69 runs a game, and Sam Gibson, who in the Coast League won 28 games and allowed 2.48 tallies a battle. These two appear best among the six new hurlers who will try for berths with McGraw. One, incidentally, is our old friend Herman Bell, who was with the Redbirds several times. Bell, working for Rochester in 1931, won 16 and lost 11 games.

With the Cubs will be Lyle Tinning, a twirler, who while working for Des Moines in the Western won 24 games, while losing but two, the best winning record of any twirler in captivity for 1931. That he also was effective is evinced from his record, which shows he stopped the enemy with 3.14 earned runs a battle to lead in this respect also. Dutch Henry, up several times before, with 23 won more games than any pitcher in the Association.

Brooklyn's best also appear to be pitchers, since Jones, Mungo, Gallivan, Mattingly and Krider ranked next to Mooney, now with the Giants in that order in the Eastern. Jones won 18 games to lead the circuit, Mungo was the strikeout king with 151, Mattingly had the best winning percentage with 17-2 and Krider twirled eight shutouts.

Gus Dugas, an outfielder from Kansas City, hit .419 in 93 games to turn in the best batting mark in the minors. He will be with the Pirates this spring. Dave Barbee was the home run king of the national pastime in 1931 with 47. He played in the Coast League. His swat average was .332.

Two Batting Leaders.

Two batting leaders will try to make a go of it with the Braves. One is none other than Art Shires, who hit .385 to lead the Association regulars. The other is Oscar Eckhardt, who performing with the Missions club, had a mark of .369 to lead that circuit. Shires is pretty sure of a job since Sheely and Neun, the Braves' first sack guardians of a year ago, already have been released. The only clubs which can boast no minor league pace setters are the Phillies and Reds.

However, the above mentioned are not the only ones who are expected to make the grade. For instance, the Cardinals place a lot of confidence in Eddie Delker; John McGraw expects much of Leonard Koenecke, his $75,000 outfielder from the American Association. Rogers Hornsby at Chicago is counting on William Herman, second baseman and Stanley Hack, third sacker, to bolster his infield. In addition to Shires, Bill McKechnie at Boston expects Bill Akers, shortstop and Wilfred Knothe to add strength to his infield. Knothe is the third sacker who hit .317 in 180 contests with the Seattle club of the Coast League. Walter Betts, a right hander, who won 22 and lost 13 with St. Paul and Leo Mangum, who finished with 14-9 in the International, appear best among the twirlers. Brown struck out 176 men to pace the New York-Pennsylvania circuit, while Coleman whiffed 173 in the Piedmont.

Clyde Manion, who was with the Browns some years ago, and who hit to the fine figure of .353 with Milwaukee, is one of the best among the Reds' newcomers. Then there is Joe Morrissey, a shortstop, who swatted .331 in 167 games in the American Association. Mossissey's hit included 34 doubles and 22 home runs. He is a former outfielder.

George Davis, Russell Scarritt and Douglas Taitt, outfielders; George Knothe, an infielder from New Orleans and Alfred Todd, catcher from Dallas, own the best records among the Phillie newcomers. Todd gained fame as the man who "kayoed" Dizzy Dean in a fist fight last season. Roy Hansen from Dallas won 16 games and lost nine in addition to striking out 137 batters in 223 innings.

HIS TRANSFER MAY BE DELAYED

HIGHER SCORES MARK GOLF PLAY AT NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 13.—A high cold wind today put a halt to the par-breaking performances of the leaders in the $5000 New Orleans open golf tournament, and the end of the second 18 holes of the 72-hole competition found Gene Sarazen, the Long Islander, Harry Cooper of Chicago and Johnny Camet, youngster of Eldorado, Ark., bunched at the top with cards of 145.

Sarazen, in the van yesterday with a sub-par 69, took a 76 today. Camet added a 75 to his 70 of yesterday, and Cooper moved up from third place by carding a 74 to add to his 71 for the first 18.

Tony Penna, Pensacola, Fla., pro., alone of the field of more than 100, broke par today, turning in a sterling 69, three under perfect figures, to match Sarazen's first day card. Added to his 78 of yesterday, it gave him 147 for fifth place at the halfway mark.

Clarence Clark of Bloomfield, N. J., winner of two recent tournaments in Texas, had 74-76—150.

The low sixty and ties after today's play qualified for the final 36 holes tomorrow for the cash and trophies topped by first money of $1000. This put 66 players, including 11 amateurs, into the final day's play.

Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis Country Club professional, had a score of 156, with 76 on the first 18 and 80 on the second.

LANDIS ORDERS NEW TERMS IN JOE BOLEY DEAL

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis today notified the Cleveland and Philadelphia clubs of the American League that he would withhold approval of the sale of Joe Boley, veteran infielder, by the Athletics to the Indians, until a new arrangement is made.

Boley was sold conditionally by the Athletics, the Indians having taken him for a one-month trial. After that time, should the Cleveland club desire, Boley could be returned to the Athletics.

Commissioner Landis said the arrangement amounted to Boley being out on option to Cleveland by a club in the same league, a practice of which he disapproves. He said he had written the managements of the clubs asking that they "eliminate this feature of the transaction."

CLEVELAND, Feb. 13.—Joe Boley, whose conditional sale to Cleveland by Philadelphia was disapproved today by Commissioner Landis, was purchased at a price understood to be $10,000.

Half of the contract price was to be paid down and the remainder paid May 15, providing Boley was retained after that date. The Tribe thus would not gain full interest in Boley until after the playing season started.

General Manager Billy Evans agreed Landis' ruling was proper and said another effort would be made to acquire Boley.

GOSHEN, N. Y. AWARDED HAMBLETONIAN STAKE

By the Associated Press.

tions which would have wrecked the nervous system of a stoic?

That was the time when Jack's former manager, Jack Kearns, was hounding him with court proceedings and day by day threatening to have the fight halted. Dempsey was without camp leadership or management.

His adviser was a gambler, Gene Normile; and his camp director was a captain of marines who did not seem to know what it was all about.

Jack fussed and fumed and fretted himself sick. On the very day of the fight it was a question whether Kearns would not be able to throw a wrench into the fight machinery and halt the show.

The Dempsey who stepped into the ring that night against Tunney at Philadelphia had every reason to be nervous. In spite of it all, he knocked Tunney almost through the ropes in the fourth round and would possibly have finished the job had not his lack of practice ruined his timing and judgment of distance.

Grass Court Doomed.

AS we get it, the Davis Cup is gradually taking the lawn out of lawn tennis. Because nearly all the championship play in France is on hard courts, because a majority of tennis in the United States is on clay courts, and because the hard court idea is growing in the very citadel of "lawn" tennis, the British Isles, the use of grass courts is diminishing internationally.

The United States Davis Cup situation is a case in point. The American team, which expects to go at least as far as the interzone final and perhaps to the challenge round, this year, will have to compete on hard courts in these two events, which will be played in France.

To offset the bad effect of shifting from the Wimbledon tournament grass courts, back to the French hard courts, for Davis Cup play, the United States players have been ordered not to enter the Wimbledon event. An exception has been made in the case of Sidney Wood, who won the Wimbledon championship last year. He will be permitted to defend his crown.

It all seems to mean that sooner or later, for the sake of uniformity, it will be agreed that all Davis Cup play be held on clay courts.

In this and other countries grass courts have been found difficult to maintain. Even when kept up to their best playing condition, the players are not satisfied, owing to the different action of the tennis balls on the grass as compared to clay.

If such a standardization of courts takes place, the Davis Cup nations should get together and standardize the Davis Cup ball, as well. At present the American ball differs materially from that used in Europe.

Even England Expects It.

THE passing of the grass court in England, at least for championship tournament uses, is foreseen in this excerpt from the comment of a writer in the London Daily Mail, Mr. Stanley Doust.

"Hard courts are replacing grass courts in hundreds of clubs. They are more suitable to club tennis than grass, which wears out quickly," Doust writes.

"After all, we have to consider the millions of club players all over the world as well as the few stars who play well enough to compete in international tournaments.

"One can count on the fingers of one hand the number of clubs which have grass courts good enough for important championships. The sooner Wimbledon changes from grass to hard courts, the better it will be for tennis generally."

As this comment by Doust was written before America took action as to its Davis Cup team, the critic evidently struck a chord that is internationally popular.

MISSOURI KEEPS BIG SIX LEAD BY DEFEATING AMES

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 13.—The University of Missouri basketball team continued its drive toward the Big Six conference championship by defeating Iowa State College here tonight, 31 to 25, but not without calling upon their injured center, Norman Wagner.

Unable to get the tip at center, the Tigers fought on even terms with Cyclones for more than half of the first period, but were unable to get going until Wagner, with his injured ankle tightly wrapped in tape, was inserted into the lineup.

Then controlling the ball, Missouri made 12 points while the Iowa State players were held to a single free throw. At the half Tigers were ahead 17 to 8.

Johnny Cooper, leadign conference scorer, made 12 points on five field goals and a pair of free throws, once more attaining individual honors. Al Heitman, Cyclone center, garnered 11.

The two teams hit basket for basket in the first part of game, the count being even three times before George Stuber and Jimmy Zinn broke a 7-all tie with field goals apiece. Then Wagner was inserted, and, getting the tip, Missouri increased its advantage to 23 to 8. A few minutes later, with the game apparently won, Wagner retired after 15 valuable minutes of service.

Those Spring Schedules.

BILL KILLEFER'S Browns haven't much of a spring exhibition schedule, but it is not quite so bad as the one booked for the Boston Red Sox. Bob Quinn's team, which will train at Savannah, Ga., will play only seven games before breaking camp and only 15 games before opening the American League season.

The list includes only three contests with major league clubs, one with the Reds at Savannah and two with the Braves at Boston, an abbreviated spring series similar to the one between the Browns and Cardinals.

Furthermore, the Red Sox will not report until March 1 and the first exhibition game will be more than three weeks later, the Hartford club of the Eastern League furnishing the opposition March 23.

Rogers Hornsby's Cubs have one of the most pretentious spring schedules, playing 30 games before the opening of the National League season. However, there is not much danger that the schedule will cause the Cubs to grow stale. Hornsby will want to test his new young players and has stated that he would use his youngsters in virtually all of the games. He knows what Grimm can do at first base and Les Bell at third, so he will try Harry Taylor at first and Stanley Hack at third until they have shown that they are good enough to stick or that they won't do.

"Hack comes so well recommended that I am hopeful that he will make the grade at third base," Hornsby explained. "He's just a kid, but if he's nearly as good as he is said to be, we won't have to worry about third base. If he can't deliver it will be up to Bell to show what he can do. The same goes for Taylor at first base. Bill Herman's showing last year was encouraging, but I'll be ready to step in and give him a battle at second or fill in at third if I'm needed."

Hornsby said he had given up hope of making any more deals. He is in the market for an outfielder, but as he explained, the magnates insist on holding on to their players, at least until all are signed or have shown what they can do at training camp.

Woes of an Umpire.

BILL FRIEL, business manager of the Browns, was talking about umpires and tough decisions. Bill wore the burglar's uniform for three years in the American Association and served for three months in the American, filling in for Brick Owens, who had been injured, and Bill was asked if he remembered any particularly difficult decisions.

"Two of them," Bill replied, "and I'll never forget them. Louisville and Minneapolis were playing at Minneapolis and the managers were Bill Clymer and Joe Cantillon, both fighters. Well, with men on first and second and nobody out, the batter hit an infield fly. I was umpiring behind the plate and when I saw the ball could be handled by an infielder, I called that it was an infield fly, batter out. Well, the pitcher tried to make the catch and dropped the ball. However, he threw to third ahead of the runner from second and the third baseman whipped to the second baseman. Cantillon and Clymer both rushed out and one of them advised me that I had a tough one and to take my time. Well, I did. I consulted the other umpire and he said he had called the man at third and the man at second out. Then I asked if the man at second had been tagged. The other umpire said yes. I asked the same question about the play at third and he said no, he didn't believe that runner had been tagged. Well, that was the way I saw it, in all the excitement, so, after explaining to the other umpire that it wasn't a force play, we ruled that the batter was out, and the man at second, but that the runner at third was safe.

"But that was an easy one compared to what I consider the toughest of my experience. That also was at Minneapolis and Joe Riley, one of the fastest men I ever saw, was on third base when a left-handed batter tried a squeeze bunt. Well, the ball went down the third base line, well out in foul territory and I yelled that it was a foul. I made a mistake there, as I should have waited until the ball was picked up foul or rolled foul past third base. Well, Riley was in full stride and he raced over the plate. And then came the tough break. The ball hit a clod of dirt and rolled back into fair territory, stopping near third base.

"The third baseman, hearing a yell from the bench, picked up the ball and threw to first base and there was where I got a break, because the batter, hearing my call of foul, didn't run out the ball.

"CANTILLON raised a big commotion and so did the other manager, but I changed my decision and called it a fair ball, and the runner was out at first. I explained to Cantillon that he got all out of the play that he had planned to get anyhow. If the ball had been fair all the way they couldn't have thrown out Riley. He would have scored and the man would have been out at first. Cantillon wanted to know what I would have done if the runne had gone down to first and do you know what I told him? I told him that was the first break I ever got as an umpire. But if the runner had gone to first I believe that I would have stuck to the foul decision and forced the batter to bat again."

Creeks Sign Muny Star for Wichita Game Tonight

Hayes Hope, captain and star guard of the Hood team and considered one of the best players who performed in the Municipal League this season, has been signed by the Sugar Creek basketball team for its game with the Southern Kansas State Lines five at St. Louis University gymnasium tonight. The Kansans have won 44 straight games, and by virtue of their triumph in the Kansas Independent A. A. U., tournament, in which 46 teams were entered, are recognized as the Kansas State A. A. U. champions.

The Sherwin-Williams and Math. Hermanns, two independent local quints, will clash at 7:15 p. m. in the preliminary. The feature will start at 8:30 and Eddie Davidson, St Louis U., freshman coach, and "Doc" C. A. Callan will referee.

An injury to Joe Kennedy in an automobile accident two weeks ago, together with the refusal of Capt. "Ham" Strong's twisted ankles to heal properly, caused De Witt to sign Hope.

Right wing Frank Ingram and cash went to the Arrows in the deal. Coulter, regarded as one of the best prospects in the minors, will report for action with the Hawks against Detroit tomorrow night.

BEARS LOSE TO DRAKE, 30 TO 27, IN VALLEY GAME

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 13.—The Washington University Bears made a strong attempt to defeat Drake here tonight but the rally fell short and the Bulldogs won, 30 t o27. Drake led at the half, 15 to 8.

Drake effectually put a stop to Bob Maysack's scoring ability by limiting him to one field. However, Bob Mautz came through for the Bears by counting four times from the field for eight points. Smith counted five field goals and two points for Drake to be high point man during the evening.

The game started slowly as the Bears, tired after their losing battle with Creighton last night, were unable to pierce the Drake defense.

Coach Don White finally retired his first team and sent in reserves, who resorted to long shots during the early stages of the second half and finally gained a 17 to 16 edge.

The box score:

GIRLS' BASKET LEAGUE TO HOLD FREE THOW CONTEST WEDNESDAY

When the Greater St. Louis Girls' Basketball Association plays what is likely to be its final doubleheader of the season at Battery A, Grand boulevard and Hickory street, next Wednesday night, the organization will conduct its annual free throw championship in conjunction with its pair of games. Marie Madison, captain of the Crystal City American Legion Post 251 team, who won the free throw title for the past two years and in so doing broke her own record by caging 25 of 30 shots, will defend her laurels after all other contestants have completed their tossing.

The tournament will be conducted under a new plan this year. Instead of each player on the four teams taking 30 shots, the different clubs will qualify certain girls for the league tourney at practice today. Each club will be allowed to enter three representatives.

This week's program will find the Crystal City girls, now tied with the Aquinas Club for second place, opposing the M. K. & T. squad in the preliminary, while the feature will be between the Champion Bachelors and the Aquinas girls. The Bachelors can clinch the championship by beating the Aquinas.

Should the Bachelors be the victims of two upsets, either the Crystal City or Aquinas quint would meet them in a play-off.

(All games start at 2:30 o'clock.)

First round elimination matches o decide the Municipal Soccer eague championship will be layed in the public parks this afternoon. Some interesting soccer hould result, since the elevens, on aper at least, appear to be evenly atched. Picking the winners of he contests is an extremely hazrdous task. All games will start t 2:30 o'clock.

The Universals of Forest Park ppear to have the easiest task, insmuch as the club is drawn gainst the Waverlys, junior title inners. The Universals, the first leven to clinch a group title, have xhibited a powerful attack as well s a fine defense. The team cored 39 goals in its 15 league atches against six for the enemy. The Waverly team counted 29 oals to 13 for the opposition. The Waverly eleven, made up of young Spanish players, has fine combinan play and several good goaletters on the forward line. These lubs play at Sherman Park. Ceer halfback Syl Malone of the Universals will join the Andersons in he pro circuit after the eliminaions.

Strong on Defense.

Two of the finest defensive aggregations are drawn against each ther for the match at Fairground o. 2. The Spanish Sport Club, e of the early favorites for the itle, will meet the Macks, Sherman Park champions, in this battle. Both clubs rely on fine teamplay and sound defensive tactics. The Spaniards, who played out-of-town clubs even during the summer, have one of the finest passing elevens in the city. That defense is hard to penetrate is evinced by the fact that in 15 matches only four goals were scored against the eam. The Macks' defense has been ven better, permitting but three oals. The Spaniards tallied 25 oals and the Macks 20. Each club may be handicapped by the absence of a star. MacNeil Smith, who played a pretty fair game of tennis here several years ago, and who has been starring at center half for the Spaniards, may be handicapped by a shoulder injured three weeks ago, while McGinn, star outle left, is lost to the Macks beuse of an injured knee.

A pair of experienced elevens will go "to the wars" at Forest Park, when the Andersons, Fairground No. 2 champions, oppose the Spick and Spans of Fairground No. 3. Both teams have plenty of veterans, in addition to forward lines, with a scoring punch. The Andersons have scored 28 goals d the Spick and Spans 37. The nderson' opponents tallied 17 times and those of Jimmy McCartry's club 16. The winner of this match is favored to go into the final against the victor of the Spanish-Mack contest.

A New Goalie.

With a new goalkeeper, Orlando Paganini, from the Hellrung club in the lineup, the Park Rats, flag winners in the Fairground No. 5 division, will go against the Clearys, former junior champions and this season's title winners at Fairground No. 4. The Clearys, with 41 goals, exhibited the greatest scoring punch in the league, while the team's defense was all that could be expected, the enemy getting but seven points in 15 games. The Park Rats scored 25 goals and permitted the enemy a total of 10. Both clubs display good teamwork.

The matches will be of two regulation 30-minute halves, with tra periods of 16 minutes, died into eight-minute halves, in case of a tie after the regular play. Harry Ratican, Dave Barnard, Nick Reidy and Dick Wall have been selected to referee these important games.

Semifinals in the series will be played Feb. 21, with the winners meeting in a best two out of three ries to decide the city title.

SPRING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 13.—The Washington University Bears made a strong attempt to defeat Drake here tonight but the rally fell short and the Bulldogs won, 30 to 27. Drake led at the half, 15 to 8.

Drake effectually put a stop to Bob Maysack's scoring ability by limiting him to one field. However, Bob Mautz came through for the Bears by counting four times from the field for eight points. Smith counted five field goals and two points for Drake to be high point man during the evening.

The game started slowly as the Bears, tired after their losing battle with Creighton last night, were unable to pierce the Drake defense. Coach Don White finally retired his first team and sent in reserves, who resorted to long shots during the early stages of the second half and finally gained a 17 to 16 edge.

The box score:

GIRLS' BASKET LEAGUE TO HOLD FREE THOW CONTEST WEDNESDAY

When the Greater St. Louis Girls' Basketball Association plays what is likely to be its final double-header of the season at Battery A, Grand boulevard and Hickory street, next Wednesday night, the organization will conduct its annual free throw championship in conjunction with its pair of games. Marie Madison, captain of the Crystal City American Legion Post 253 team, who won the free throw title for the past two years and in so doing broke her own record by caging 25 of 30 shots, will defend her laurels after all other contestants have completed their tossing.

The tournament will be conducted under a new plan this year. Instead of each player on the four teams taking 30 shots, the different clubs will qualify certain girls for the league tourney at practice today. Each club will be allowed to enter three representatives.

This week's program will find the Crystal City girls, now tied with the Aquinas Club for second place, opposing the M. K. & T. squad in the preliminary, while the feature will be between the Champion Bachelors and the Aquinas girls. The Bachelors can clinch the championship by beating the Aquinas.

Should the Bachelors be the victims of two upsets, either the Crystal City or Aquinas quint would meet them in a play-off.

TODAY'S MATCHES

(All games start at 2:30 o'clock.)

First round elimination matches to decide the Municipal Soccer League championship will be played in the public parks this afternoon. Some interesting soccer should result, since the elevens, on paper at least, appear to be evenly matched. Picking the winners of the contests is an extremely hazardous task. All games will start at 2:30 o'clock.

The Universals of Forest Park appear to have the easiest task, inasmuch as the club is drawn against the Waverlys, junior title winners. The Universals, the first eleven to clinch a group title, have exhibited a powerful attack as well as a fine defense. The team scored 39 goals in its 15 league matches against six for the enemy. The Waverly team counted 29 goals to 13 for the opposition. The Waverly eleven, made up of young Spanish players, has fine combination play and several good goal-getters on the forward line. These boys play at Sherman Park. Center halfback Syl Malone of the Universals will join the Andersons in the pro circuit after the eliminations.

Strong on Defense.

Two of the finest defensive aggregations are drawn against each other for the match at Fairground No. 2. The Spanish Sport Club, one of the early favorites for the title, will meet the Macks, Sherman Park champions, in this battle. Both clubs rely on fine teamplay and sound defensive tactics. The Spaniards, who played out-of-town clubs even during the summer, have one of the finest passing elevens in the city. That defense is hard to penetrate is evinced by the fact that in 15 matches only four goals were scored against the team. The Macks' defense has been even better, permitting but three goals. The Spaniards tallied 25 goals and the Macks 20. Each club may be handicapped by the absence of a star. MacNeil Smith, who played a pretty fair game of tennis here several years ago, and who has been starring at center half for the Spaniards, may be handicapped by a shoulder injured three weeks ago, while McGinn, star outside left, is lost to the Macks because of an injured knee.

A pair of experienced elevens will go "to the wars" at Forest Park when the Andersons, Fairground No. 2 champions, oppose the Spick and Spans of Fairground No. 5. Both teams have plenty of veterans, in addition to forward lines with a scoring punch. The Andersons have scored 28 goals and the Spick and Spans 37. The Andersons' opponents tallied 17 times and those of Jimmy McCarty's club 16. The winner of this match is favored to go into the final against the victor of the Spanish-Mack contest.

A New Goalie.

With a new goalkeeper, Orlando Paganini, from the Hellrung club in the lineup, the Park Rats, flag winners in the Fairground No. 5 division, will go against the Clearys, former junior champions and this season's title winners at Fairground No. 4. The Clearys, with 41 goals, exhibited the greatest scoring punch in the league, while the team's defense was all that could be expected, the enemy getting but seven points in 15 games. The Park Rats scored 25 goals and permitted the enemy a total of 10. Both clubs display good teamwork.

The matches will be of two regulation 30-minute halves, with extra periods of 16 minutes, divided into eight-minute halves, in case of a tie after the regular play. Harry Ratican, Dave Barnard, Nick Reidy and Dick Wall have been selected to referee these important games.

Semifinals in the series will be played Feb. 21, with the winners meeting in a best two out of three series to decide the city title.

SRENCO WINS CITY HANDBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Jack Srenco holds the Western A. A. U. handball championship by virtue of his 21—14, 21—20 victory over I. N. "Nig" Kessler yesterday afternoon in the final at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. Kessler was defending champion, having won the title for the past two years.

Srenco led Kessler throughout the first game, but Kessler stepped out in front in the second, only to have the score tied by Srenco at 18-all. After Kessler scored, Srenco tied it up and then went into the lead with another point.

Kessler managed to tie it at 20—20, but Srenco slapped in a perfectly timed "bottom board" to put Kessler out and on his own service Srenco scored with an ace for the twenty-first point, giving him the title.

Kessler, paired with Sam Wolff, did not fare any better in the doubles final, as Dr. Milton Smith and Frank L. Zander played steadily to win both matches by identical scores of 21 to 14. The victory gave Smith and Zander the doubles championship.

Bob Larimore was referee.

Street Says Improved Cardinal Club Will Win in Better Race

take care of the 17 games that Burleigh won last season.

"That's a great pitching staff we have. Allyn Stout will be hard to beat this year. He went through 1931 without suffering a defeat and he did some brilliant relief pitching. Then Lindsey will have to be given a chance as a starter. Jim didn't get enough work last year. He was always ready to relieve, but wasn't used as frequently as in 1930 and as a result he took on too much weight, and being out of condition, lost some of his stuff and control.

"I consider the conditioning of that pitching staff as the most important task that confronts me. In the last two years I have taken the hurling corps out of Florida in perfect condition—not a single sore arm. That's why we won two pennants and if I can do the same thing this year, we'll win another flag."

A Fine Winter's Reading.

The Old Sergeant said he was still getting letters about the world series, and grinning broadly, he sent Sonny after a scrap book and extracted a few prize letters and telegrams. One of the wires was from John McGraw and as Gabby said, "he shore prizes that one."

"Congratulations," McGraw had wired. "You have taken your place among the game's great managers."

"I did not wire you at the time you won the world series," said a letter from Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, "because I much prefer to sit down and write a nice letter approving the handling of your team on the field during the world series. I watched closely every move made and will have to hand it to you for using excellent judgment.

"I thought you were very smart in not pitting Hallahan against Earnshaw in Philadelphia. It gave you your best card to pitch against their second string man for the fifth game. I also thought you were wise in giving Grimes an extra day's rest for the crucial game, as he was the man made to order to beat the Philadelphia club if he was right. I liked the hustling spirit of your team and the determination with which they played the game. You, and each member of your club, are entitled to great credit for the good ball played in the world series."

"Those messages made me feel mighty good," said Gabby. "You know, there was a lot of criticism from many quarters about the way I handled my pitchers. But results vindicated my judgment. Earnshaw had beaten us badly and our one victory over him had been lucky. What would have been the use of wasting Hallahan against him, when I knew Bill could beat any pitcher Mack would pick for the next day? And Grimes certainly showed in St. Louis that he had needed the extra 24 hours of rest. Suppose I had used Hallahan in that sixth game, or Grimes. If I had started Burleigh I would have had Bill in the bull pen and if I had started Bill, Grimes would have been the logical relief man. Suppose we had lost that sixth game with Grimes and Hallahan. Boy, the Old Sergeant sure would have been up against a wall then.

And About Who's Boss.

"And while we're on the subject I'd like to tell the world that I run the Cardinal ball club myself, personally. The other day I saw a story where it was said John McGraw sat behind the dugout during the series and wig-wagged signals to Frisch. Wasn't that a laugh! I wonder where McGraw was and who he was wig-wagging signals to when we were beating the Giants during the regular season.

"Mr. Breadon and Mr. Rickey have never even made a trade or sold a player without consulting me and getting my approval. Mr. Breadon owns the ball club and has the right to sell or trade players as he sees fit, but he always has consulted me. There never has been even the hint of interference from Mr. Breadon or Branch Rickey in the direction of the team on the field. Moreover, I have no board of strategy and I make all decisions myself. During the world series, while we were at Philadelphia, several of my older players questioned the wisdom of pitching Johnson, instead of Hallahan, against Earnshaw. They asked me if I didn't think Hallahan ought to pitch. I told them that maybe they thought Bill ought to pitch, but that I thought it wiser to save Bill and that Johnson was going to the hill.

"No, sir, I have run the ball club and all by myself. I don't take credit for winning. I have a good ball club and I believe that a good ball club makes a manager. Take the case of Connie Mack. He's recognized as a great manager. But when he didn't have the players he finished in the cellar for seven straight years. You have to have the players to win and I have the players—a great team, with a fine spirit. I came to the club as a busher. Sure I was a big league catcher and a good one, too. But everybody had forgotten that. I was just a busher. But the Cardinals, with all the big stars on the roster, did everything I asked them to do.

"But without taking any credit from the players—for I insist that players make a manager—I can say positively and without the possibility of contradiction, that I have always been absolute boss of the Cardinals on the field."

"Derringer Will Be Greater."

"How about Paul Derringer?" was the next question fired at the Old Sergeant. "Will those two defeats in the world series make him shaky or impair his confidence?"

"No, sir," he snapped back. "On the contrary those two games and his world series experience should make him a greater pitcher with more poise and confidence. He'll never be in a tougher spot than that first game of the world series, with 40,000 fans looking at him. That was quite a tribute I paid the young man, to select him to pitch that opening game, with so much at stake and he can never doubt that I believe in him after that.

"Then remember, too, that he pitched good ball. He was not lambasted or knocked out. If Andy High had been able to grab that high bounder, Paul would have gone through that first game to a victory. No, it was just bad breaks that beat Derringer. He found that his stuff was good enough to stop and good enough to beat the Athletics, and a man can't want any more confidence than the world series should have given Derringer."

Gabby doesn't want to cross the bridge of cutting down his Cardinal squad to the mid-season limit of 23, until he comes to it.

"It does look like a tough assignment," he admitted. "But it's better to have too much material than not enough. Of course, the outfield and pitching squads will take care of themselves. But that infield is going to be a problem. I'm mighty glad to have Ford, because he gives us protection that we never had before. He's a brilliant fielder and not a bad .250 hitter. Then Delker gives us protection at third base, and I guess we have to keep him this year, unless we cut him adrift for good.

"Then we're well fixed at first base, with Bottomley and Collins, and Orsatti can play a good first base. Pat Crawford must be reckoned with, too. You know he's a crackerjack third baseman, and he also can play a fine first base or second."

"Great to Be With Winner."

"But, Gabby," it was pointed out, "you've mentioned eight good infielders, if you count your regulars, and if you carry nine pitchers, three catchers and five outfielders, you'll have room on your roster for only six infielders."

"Shut up, will you," the Old Sergeant laughed. "You're making it tougher and tougher for me. And you've forgotten about Lee Cunningham. And you mustn't do that. The kid played several games last fall for us and he looked good. Nothing strange or nervous about him. You'll have to figure him as a candidate for a job as a reserve infielder, so that's nine of 'em, if your arithmetic is good. Well, don't ask the Old Sergeant to do any eliminatin' now. It will be tough enough when I'm in condition and have to do it. Let's keep that bridge for April or May. Anyhow, you can't expect me to break down and cry because I have such a good ball club.

"And it is a good ball club. A young ball club, too. We ought to win this year and keep right on winning. And listen, it's great to be on a winner."

FOUR MUNICIPAL SOCCER PLAYERS WILL MAKE PRO DEBUTS, TODAY

Four Cup Games Are Scheduled for Play Today

FOUR important matches are scheduled to be played today in the National challenge cup competition for the soccer championship of the United States. Three of the games will be played in the West, while one in the East will be a semifinal in this division.

The Hakoah All-Stars tackle the New Bedford aggregation at the Polo Grounds, New York, with the winner to battle the New York Giants for the Eastern championship and the right to oppose the Western victor for the national honors.

St. Louisans are especially interested in the second round contest in which the Slavias will play the Shamrocks. The Stix will play the winner of this match in a Western semifinal. The other games in the West will pit the Sparta eleven against the Swedish-Americans at Chicago, with the Bricklayers of Chicago going to Detroit for a contest with the Workers F. C.

Four graduates from the Municipal League will make their debuts in the St. Louis Soccer League in matches to be played at Sportsman's Park this afternoon. In the opener, the Stix eleven, St. Louis' lone survivor in the national title competition, opposes the Andersons, while in the second match, the Ben Millers tackle Phil Kavanaugh's Coca Colas. The first game starts at 2 o'clock.

The Andersons will show Lodderhose, outside right, who starred with the Russells of the Fairground No. 2 division, in the contest with the Stix. Willie Foley of the Ben Millers will have Ebinger—and Bart Connors of the Russells and Duffy from the C. B. C. Alumni aggregation in his lineup against the Kavanaughs. Ebinger is a halfback, while Connors will be at center forward. Duffy, a fullback, was one of the best in the Sherman Park division and much of the success of the C. B. C. eleven was due to his fine guarding. Both Lodderhose and Connors showed in last Sunday's match with the Andersons that they have the makings of fine players, while Ebinger was just about the best halfback on the field.

With plenty of practice to build up team play and speed needed before the next cup match, the Stix team will have Erbe at fullback; Benoist in the halfback line and Joe Hennessy at forward against the Andersons. In matches only with the Andersons will the Stix be allowed to use the three athletes, who were held out of cup matches to strengthen the local survivor for later cup contests, as the result of a vote of the rival managers. Bob Gregg, who suffered a fractured finger last week, will be at his regular fullback position.

Duffy will replace Erbe in the Miller backfield, while Clayes replaces Benoist in the Anderson halfback line. Gallagher, who starred in the two cup matches played by the Kavanaughs, will play center forward with Hennessy on the Stix roster.

A victory for the Kavanaughs, with a defeat for the Stix will put the Kavanaughs in first place. At present, the Stix and Millers are tied for the lead with 14 points.

"Ribby" Murphy will referee the first game and Len Zarschel the second. Players from the St. Teresa, Holy Rosary, St. Edwards, St. Anns and C. B. C. teams of the Parochial League, will be guests of the management.

THERE was a young man Bolinski.
Whose moniker caused him chagrinski;
The name was so Poley
He changed it to Boley
The scorers approval to winski.

What's in Them.

Changing names seems to be an old Polish custom with the players on Connie Mack's Athletics. Al Simmons' real name looks so much like a pi line that it would never get by the proof reader.

To further complicate matters, Cornelius McGillicuddy thought his name was too long and shortened it to Connie Mack while Jimmy Fox thought his was too short and added an extra "x", making it Foxx. And then there was Pitcher Harriss who drew on the alphabet for another "s" to show that Bill Wambsganss had nothing on him.

"Official Nickname Denied Brooklyns."

We were going to suggest Flatbushers but on second thought the first part of the name suggests a punctured tire and the second part casts a doubt as their eligibility to major league rating.

The New York chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association voted Wilbert Robinson the outstanding figure in baseball for the year just passed. That it was a popular selection goes without saying as it is admitted by all and sundry that Robbie has some figure.

The camel racing season has opened in Algiers. Weather warm; track dry.

The man on the sand box says it's a wise guy who could pick the winner in the American League race this year, but most anybody could pick the loser blindfolded.

In speaking of Jack Dempsey, Joe Jacobs says, "That doddering old bozo has no more intention of fighting Schmeling or Sharkey than I have." Them's fighting words, Joe. Maybe Jack will take you on.

"Sportsmen Seek to Train Gun Dogs in Woods."

Capital idea, just so they don't go barking up the wrong dogwood.

San Francisco has a young pitcher named Georgie Caster. We take it Caster specializes in the bean ball.

Not only that, this Caster beanball pitcher enjoys the distinction of being the only holdout on the team. Although ranking fiftieth in a field of 75, he returned his contract for further seasoning.

Art had a big year in the American Association, but he will miss the rabbit ball like the Braves will miss Rabbit Maranville when he turns in his glove.

In a Class by Himself.

Going Great Guns.

"Pepper" Martin busted 49 out of 50 clay targets in a shooting match the other day. Indicating that the old eye is functioning in world series style.

Max Carey advised Hack Wilson not to go out nights in Hot Springs lest he catch cold. Which has all the earmarks of a hot one.

Bowling Notes

Entries for the 49th State handicap bowling tournament, scheduled to open at the Congress alleys March 19, will close at midnight March 5. The tourney, which will be bowled on Saturdays and Sundays, is sanctioned by the American Bowling Congress. Entries should be mailed to A. B. Berne, Congress Alleys, 902 Washington avenue.

Frank Heidel's second annual mixed doubles sweepstakes will be held at the Heidel alleys next Saturday and Sunday. The event is four games and has drawn most of the best bowlers in the city. Entry fee is $2 per bowler and reservations can be filed by calling PRospect 8400.

A record entry is expected for the Women's International Bowling Congress tourney, to be held at the Rogers alleys, beginning April 7. Mrs. Emma Phaler, secretary of the Congress, reports a large number of prospective out-of-town entries and expects about 450 teams to compete. More than 70 teams have already entered the event. Information can be had by calling Mrs. O. C. Berghaus, president, and Mrs. H. T. Speck, secretary, of the local women's association, at Hiland 0036 and EVergreen 1398.

Elmer Baker and Frank Kastner, star South Side bowlers, turned in some excellent totals in league play at the Cinderella alleys last week. Baker rolled 721 in the Cinderella Scratch League Tuesday night and 706 in the Cherokee Business Men's League the following night. Kastner totaled 673 in the Cherokee league and increased his average to 208.

Only two 600 totals were registered in the Electrical Board of Trade League at the Mid-City alleys Thursday. Mulcahy of the Moloneys shooting 650 and Mocker of the Frank Adams turning in 612. The Kearneys remained one game ahead of the Moloneys by taking two games from the Glascos, while the Moloneys were winning two from the Generals. Other matches resulted as follows: Frank Adams 2, Bussmans 1; Briners 2, Electricals 1; Otis Five 2, Westinghouse 1; Wurdacks 3, Conrads 0. Boehm is leading the individuals with an average of 200. Mocker and Mulcahy are tied for second, each having a mark of 193.

In a mixed doubles contest composed of employes of the Missouri Pacific at Rogers Recreation Friday night, A. McNamee and J. Mallon won first place with a total of 1157. W. Wahlig and D. McNamara finished second with a total of 1145, and C. Brown and R. Root landed third with 1130. High single scratch honors went to Miss C. Mosier with 179 and H. Dieckneite with 223.

Broken Hand Puts Herbie Hahn Out Of Olympic Trial

HERBIE HAHN, an outstanding local candidate for the Olympic boxing team, and a finalist in the welterweight division of the amateur boxing championships at New York last year, announced yesterday that he was definitely out of competition for a place on the Olympic team.

The Western A. A. U. will hold Olympic sectional boxing tryouts here, it was definitely decided at a meeting of Western A. A. U. officials yesterday afternoon at the office of President Bob Probst.

The tournament, according to Probst, will be held March 22 or March 28, either at the Coliseum or The Arena.

Winners will be sent to New York for the National A. A. U. championships the first week of April, and the boxers who reach the semifinals in the National tournament will qualify for the final U. S. Olympic trials. As told yesterday, Probst is leading a movement to bring the final Olympic trials to St. Louis.

All amateur boxers who have been fighting under the colors of the "outlaw" Mississippi Valley A. A. will be eligible to compete in the district Olympic tryouts provided they register with the Western A. A. U. before midnight, Feb. 20. Charles Gevecker, chairman of the Registration Committee, is accepting registration at 5020 Easton avenue.

The sectional Olympic tournament is expected to draw a record number of entries, according to Probst, who said last night that approximately 50 amateur boxers had already said they would compete. This number includes boxing teams from Springfield, Mo., and Little Rock, Ark.

The committee appointed to handle the tournament is composed of Will Vandeventer, Eddie Barth, Benny Kessler, Dan O'Keefe, Eddie Vandeventer and Arthur Bodie.

MAPLEWOOD DEFEATS WELLSTON, 14 TO 13

Maplewood moved into a three-way tie for third place in the St. Louis County High School League basketball race by defeating Wellston, 14 to 13, last night on the Maplewood floor. The winners made all their points on field goals, failing to count once in 10 tries from the free-throw line.

Wellston, after being on the short end of a 10 to 9 score at the half, managed to tie it up at 12-all as the third quarter ended, but in the final period the best Wellston could do was to count on a free throw while Maplewood won the game with a field goal.

WILLIAM BERG LEADS FOUR-GAME DIAMOND CLASSIC WITH 814

William Berg bowled 814 last night to take the lead in the first night's shift in the four-game diamond classic at the Arway Recreation Parlors. Forrest Beye was second with 809 and Roy Nelson, third, with 803. Forty bowlers rolled last night.

There are openings today at 2:15, 3:45 and 7 p. m. shifts, the latter concluding the classic.

Sherman Evens Soccer Series by Beating Columbus

Enright, inside left forward, scored the Sherman goal about 10 minutes after play started. The two teams came close to scoring later in the game, but could not put across another goal.

44 ENTRIES FOR LOUISIANA DERBY

LUCKY TOM THE EARLY FAVORITE IN CLASSIC TO BE HELD MAR. 19

Lucky Tom Quoted At Odds of 3 to 2

TOM SHAW'S Lucky Tom, the outstanding three-year-old shown during the winter racing season, has been a red-hot favorite in the future book on the Louisiana Derby, according to quotations given out yesterday by Commissioner Tom Kearney. His odds were 3 to 2.

"He's the only three-year-old to show anything this winter," Kearney explained. "The other entries don't mean a thing. Some of the 'maidens,' which get in with a big weight allowance, may surprise us. But you can't figure them. Lucky Tom looks to be all by himself."

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 13.—Forty-four candidates have been nominated for the $10,000 added Louisiana Derby, scheduled for decision at the Fairgrounds here March 19, according to the announcement made today by Handicapper Joseph McLennan of the Louisiana Jockey Club.

The list includes many offsprings of illustrious sires. St. Germans, the crack C. V. Whitney stallion that produced the great Twenty Grand, champion three-year-old of 1931, is represented by only one colt, the racer being the Greentree Stable's Tweeny.

Sir Gallahad, sire of Gallant Fox; Bostonian, a Preakness winner of a few years ago; Bubbling Over, winner of many stakes and regarded by Col. E. R. Bradley as the greatest thoroughbred he ever bred and owned; Ladkin, conqueror of Epinard in one of the international specials; Master Charlie, a Hopeful and Futurity winner, are some of the other stallions with representatives in the mile-and-a-furlong event.

An international touch is provided by two of the nominees for the $10,000 stake number. Heroville, owned by David Jay Ely, and Scotch Gold, the Howe Stable's standard bearer, are British importations and both are winners in the United States as two and three year olds.

BURROUGHS 'B' FIVE BEATS PRINCIPIA, THEN PRINCIPIA 'C' WINS

In two "ABC" League basketball games yesterday the John Burroughs "B" team defeated Principia, 25-22, while the Principia "C" five trampled the Price Roaders with a 23-14 count. This was the second time this season these aggregations had met and in their first clashes the results were exactly the same.

In the "B" game the Burroughs five gained a slight lead early in the first half, and when this period was over the score stood Burroughs 12, Principia 8. However, this margin was lost when Whapple of Principia in the final half scored six points. In the last quarter Burroughs rallied and managed to nose out the Page Avenue Cadets by three points.

In the 'C" fray, Principia gained a lead early in the game and held it throughout the contest. Robert Stitt was high point man with eight points.

COTTON MARKET SCORES FURTHER PRICE GAIN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The more optimistic view of general business prospects inspired by the proposed banking legislation in Washington, was reflected by a further broadening of interest and additional advances in cotton today.

May contracts sold up to 6.97c or 20 points above Thursday's closing quotations and $1.70 per bale above the low price of last Thursday morning. May closed at 6.91c, or about 6 points off from the best under realizing and the final tone of the market was barely steady at net gains of 12 to 16 points. Spot steady, meds. 6.85c.

The market opened very steady at an advance of 13 to 16 points on an active general demand, partly reflecting a sharp over-holiday advance in Liverpool.

The early action of the stock market seemed to increase confidence and buying included a considerable demand from the trade as well as a further broadening of commission house interest and active covering. March contracts sold up to 7.77c and October to 7.34c, with active months generally showing net gains of about 16 to 20 points, but these prices attracted realizing and Southern selling coming partly through brokers, who are supposed to have represented the co-operative interests. This was sufficient to supply the demand and closing quotations showed reactions of 4 to 6 points from the best.

The trade buying was said to come partly through houses with Liverpool and continental connections and there was rumor during the morning that some continental interests who had been holding off in the hope of lower prices were among the early buyers.

Brokers who sometimes operate for Japanese account were credited with buying early but later were said to be selling.

The report of the Census Bureau placing domestic consumption for January at $435,337 bales, compared with 450,117 last year seemed about in line with expectations and without appreciable effect on the market.

Liverpool cables reported covering with Bombay and continental trade buying and good trade calling in that market supplied by realizing at the advance. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 196,000 bales against 82,000 last year.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Until today, the Mercantile Exchange of New York has allowed 41 different grades of classifications for hen eggs, but beginning Monday the hens will have only 23 grades to strive for.

The new classifications provide for nine grades of mixed colors: standard, rehandled receipts, undergrades, special packs, mediums, dirties and checks. In addition there are refrigerator standards and undergrades. For white eggs, there are 11 grades: Jersey, Atlantic Coast heavyweights, Atlantic Coast and Mid-Western hennery specials, Atlantic Coast and Mid-Western standards, Atlantic Coast and Mid-Western lower grades, Atlantic Coast and Mid-Western mediums, Pacific Coast specials, Pacific Coast standards, Pacific Coast lower grades, Pacific Coast mediums and Pacific Coast marked pullets. Next come the refrigerator whites. Brown eggs are classified into nearby and Western special packs and Western standards.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Copper remained dull and easy. Custom smelters reduced asking prices without stimulating domestic demand, while foreign buying was restricted by a widening parity over easing local quotations. A limited quantity of copper was offered for export on special terms at ⅛c below last week's quotations.

Tin was easier. Buying was still limited to small lots with occasional pressure to sell prompt tin. A report that one of the largest pig tin consumers in the country placed a large order for tin plate had little apparent effect.

Lead remained quiet. The demand from consumers appears limited to February requirements, with any disposition to anticipate needs checked by easiness in other metals and reports of slight concessions available in Western markets.

Zinc rallied following the recent decline owing to an advance in the price of zinc concentrates, but a moderate demand for February and March needs was supplied and the advance was not fully maintained.

Antimony was quiet. Recent sharp advances were followed by partial reactions. Consumers withdrew from the market and offerings from the Far East increased slightly.

American Can Report

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The American Can Co. today reported net income for 1931 of $15,529,579 after interest, depreciation and Federal taxes, compared with $22,883,940 in 1930.

Last year's profits were reported equal to $5.11 a share, contrasted with $8.08 a share in 1930. The earnings were substantially in line with Wall street's expectations.

WATCH FRANC REACTION TO GLASS-STEAGALL BILL

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Foreign exchanges were closely watched today for changes that might reflect Europe's attitude toward the Glass-Steagall bill, but quotations fluctuated in a routine manner.

Particular attention was paid to the French franc which after a rise of ⅛ of a point settled back to the Thursday close. There was special interest in this currency not only because of possible French reaction to the proposed liberalization of the Federal Reserve act, but because the point at which gold can profitably be shipped from the United States has been automatically changed by the doubling of the Bank of France's minting charge and by the forthcoming increase in gold shipping charges.

The gold point of entry, on the French end, will be lowered two or three points by the rise in costs of shipment, effective Feb. 22, and will be cut still further by the new minting regulation at Paris.

In dollar terms the franc must advance to about 3.944 cents before gold can be shipped, whereas the recent rate has been approximately 3.939 cents. The closing rate for cables today was 3.94 9-16 cents.

An early advance in sterling was also listed. Other quotations were slightly mixed, with net variations nominal. The yen eased.

OSAKA, Japan.

HAVING thoroughly absorbed such essentials of American culture as baseball, derby hats and advertising, the Japanese have now enriched their national life with the beauty contest. The Yankees of the Orient at last have seen the necessity of publicly recognizing female pulchritude, and that sightly sisterhood made up of Miss America, Miss France, Miss Germany, Miss Texas, Miss South Hackensack, etc., now includes Miss Nippon.

In a nation-wide competition which attracted a thousand entrants and aroused eager interest throughout the Island Empire, Miss Nippon of 1931 was chosen. Preparations already are under way for the selection of the representative Japanese beauty of 1932, and indications are that henceforth the choosing of Miss Nippon will be an annual event.

A newspaper, the Weekly Asahi, sponsored the contest which gave Japan a beauty queen last year. The competition was part of the paper's celebration of its five hundredth edition. It was open to all Japanese girls over 15 years old, except professional beauties. The judging was done by a committee of 10 men, which included a sculptor, painters, professors, a photographer and the editor of the Weekly Asahi.

There were certain features of the contest, however, which must cause the question to arise as to whether the Japanese, although indubitably a capable people, are yet completely Yankeeized. For example, the contestants merely submitted photographs of themselves instead of appearing in person to roll their eyes and glance with feminine sweetness at the judges; it seems that Japanese girls are still shy. And they were photographed, not in the conventional one-piece bathing suit, but in unrevealing kimonos.

Miss Kazuko Kita.

More than 2800 pictures of the thousand contestants were sent in. The editorial staff of the newspaper weeded out all but 100. The photographs of these survivors of the first elimination were then published, without identifying names, in the paper, and its readers were invited to try to pick the winner; prizes were offered to the readers who would select the beauty chosen by the judges.

When the pictures of the hundred girls were turned over to the judges, the latter first narrowed the field down to 10, then from this number selected Miss Nippon. The nine others in the final consideration received the title of Jun-Miss Nippon.

The young woman selected as Miss Nippon is Miss Tsuneko Tawara, daughter of a doctor who lives in Tokuyama, a town in the Yamaguchi prefecture. She is 22 years old, 159 centimeters (about 5 feet 2 1-2 inches) in height, and weighs 52.4 kilograms (about 115 pounds). She is more than 6 inches taller and 7 pounds heavier than the average Japanese woman. But she is regarded as thoroughly Japanese in beauty and culture—an excellent representative of the womanhood of the Flowery Kingdom. Since graduating from a girls' school she has been assisting her father in his work and making a study of the tea ceremony; in the latter activity she has been so successful as to have become qualified as a teacher. Miss Tawara is a healthy girl, a vegetarian and a believer in plenty of sleep as a beauty preservative.

As prizes, Miss Tawara received an oil portrait of herself by the painter Sanzo Wada, a nickel mirror made in the style of the Fujiwara period and a kimono specially designed for her by Wada; the kimono was the gift of a department store.

The nine runners-up received similar mirrors and portraits printed on silver plates. There were prizes also for the persons who sent in the names of the 10 winners and for those who photographed them.

Three of the Jun-Miss Nippons are shop girls in Osaka, but graduates of girls' schools. One, Miss Miyoko Tsuji, 18 years old, ran Miss Tawara a close race for the beauty crown. The others of the trio are Miss Miyoko Kuromatsu, 20, and Miss Hideko Awagami, 20.

One of the others in the first 10 is Miss Kazuko Kita of Kyoto, who has a wide acquaintance among visitors to Japan, due to the fact that her father is manager of a curio shop. Another is Miss Michiko Kawahara, 20, daughter of the director of a land and building company in Hyogo prefecture. The remaining four are members of middle class families. They are: Miss Kimiko Otsuka, 21, and Miss Kikuye Suda, 19, of Tokio; Miss Mikiko Kotera, 20, of Saga prefecture, and Miss Yoshiko Minoda, 19, of Osaka.

Miss Nippon was formally introduced to the world and the prizes were awarded at a meeting in the auditorium of the Asahi plant in Osaka. Miss Nippon was there, of course, with an escort of relatives, and six of the lesser winners also were on hand; three of the runners-up, it was explained, had other engagements.

The beauties appeared on a platform before an audience which greeted them, according to a press report, with "thundering cheers and hand clapping." After the prizes were awarded, one of the judges, who was also a member of the newspaper staff, delivered an address in which he explained how his committee selected Miss Nippon. Then there was dancing by a group of actresses, and the program concluded with the showing of a movie.

How well the judgment of the committee coincided with public taste is revealed by the votes of newspaper

BOSTON.

THE difficulties which beset a high and noble purpose in this modern world are illustrated by the recent experience of Senor Mariano Laos Lomer, Peruvian Consul-General for New England. Senor Lomer sought to promote cordial relations between his country and Greater Boston and to that end labored unceasingly for three days and nights, entertaining lavishly, making speeches, listening to speeches, exuding good will and thinking lofty thoughts. His reward was to be "insulted" about a hotel bill, imposed on by recipients of his hospitality and denounced by men of substance as an infernal nuisance.

It was the Consul's 4 o'clock breakfast at the Copley-Plaza Hotel which changed a festival of comity into an international episode. To Senor Lomer it may have seemed a graceful diplomatic gesture to have certain municipal officials, clergymen and Harvard professors awakened in the middle of the night and invited to hurry to the hotel for his breakfast party. But to these notables, who had to interrupt their sleep to refuse the invitation, it was, to say the least, annoying; in a less cultured community it undoubtedly would have been a pain in the neck. Approximately the same attitude was taken by the hotel management after a rather undistinguished looking lot of men had been brought to the hotel and presented as the notables who had been invited. The breakfast party was proceeding in a very jolly and high-spirited fashion when the hotel stopped it, demanded that the Peruvian host pay his bill forthwith, and locked him out of his suite until it could be satisfied his check was good.

The indignation of Senor Lomer may be imagined—by persons living outside of Greater Boston; the residents of that district don't have to imagine for the dynamic Peruvian made no secret of his feelings. He threatened to sue the Copley-Plaza Hotel, loosed crackling manifestoes, called on all the Boston newspapers and on Mayor James M. Curley, threatened reprisals against American citizens and sent a cablegram about the outrage to the President of Peru. And how it can be smoothed out, goodness knows.

Senor Lomer began his mission in Boston under a handicap. When he appeared here, installed himself in the Copley-Plaza Hotel and announced that he was Peru's new Consul-General for New England, he had no credentials to prove he held the position. But Senor Lomer was not deterred by that.

Feeling, apparently, that no time should be lost in cementing the bonds of friendship between Peru and Boston, he set about it without waiting for his credentials, relying on his winning personality, the merit of his cause, the stability of his credit—and that hardy Bostonian, Hughie Kelleher.

Early in the Peruvian's good-will campaign in Boston Mr. Kelleher became attached to him in some rather nebulous capacity. On one occasion he termed himself "attache extraordinaire" to the visitor. On another, the senor said he was going to appoint the Bostonian Assistant Peruvian Consul-General for New England. It was generally understood that he was Senor Lomer's publicity agent and informal adviser. At any rate, he seems to have been the South American's constant companion during the brief but intense period of activity in the interest of international comity which culminated in the 4 o'clock breakfast. And in that unfortunate affair the helpful Mr. Kelleher is reported to have been the guiding spirit.

SENOR LOMER began his public appearances as Consul-General by addressing a luncheon of the Mayors' Club of Greater Boston at the Parker House. Later that day he learned that La Argentina, the Spanish dancer, was in town, performing at Symphony Hall, and he thought it would be pleasant and not inconsistent with his official duties, to give a luncheon for her. She was invited, and informed, according to report, that the Governor of Massachusetts, the Mayor of Boston and the president of Harvard University would be among the other distinguished guests. La Argentina appeared at the luncheon, but the Governor of Massachusetts, the Mayor of Boston and the president of Harvard University did not. Her fellow guests were all newspaper men—plain reporters and a few journalists with walking sticks. There were pieces in the papers about the luncheon.

For the remainder of a 72-hour space Senor Lomer and Mr. Kelleher devoted themselves energetically to fostering cordiality between the land of the llama and the bailiwick of the bean. It kept them so busy that there was no time for sleep.

Then came the ambitious idea of assembling some of the political, religious and educational leaders of the Boston district for a before-dawn breakfast, at which, with minds stimulated and hearts ennobled by the fresh morning air, the participants could establish between the United States and Peru a mighty friendship that would be above such considerations as defaulted bonds and the commissions of Wall street bankers. It was far into the night when the idea was born; it was hastily acted upon. Some 40 citizens—Mayors of the various communities of Greater Boston, police and fire chiefs, clergymen and three Harvard professors—were aroused from slumber and informed over the telephone that they were to have the privilege of fostering friendship between Peru and the United States by eating breakfast with Senor Lomer that morning; the breakfast would begin at 4 a. m.

Bostonians are rather peculiar about some things. They like to sleep at night without interruption. They think they should be roused by telephone calls in the small hours of the morning only in great emergencies. The men who were thus invited to the Peruvian's party did not feel that the relations between their country and his were such as to constitute an emergency. Furthermore, the thought of breakfasting at 4 o'clock—even at the Copley-Plaza—was a repulsive one.

THE distinguished Bostonians refused to leave their beds to attend the party. The refusals were emphatic, some of them profane. There were remarks reflecting on the gentility and mentality of anybody who would get a person out of bed for such a reason. Receivers were hung up with a bang to cut off persistent urging.

But there was determination back of that good-will breakfast. Despite the refusals, taxicabs were sent out to bring the chosen guests to the party. And some of the representative citizens who had managed to calm themselves enough to get back to sleep were awakened again by strident taxi horns outside their homes.

The taxis returned to the hotel bearing guests—willing, even eager, guests. They were presented to Senor Lomer as the distinguished gentlemen who had been invited by telephone. But the distinguished gentlemen say they were not there. Mayor Curley, for instance, denies he attended the breakfast, although someone who was addressed as "Mayor Curley" was there; this person, according to a story that is being told here, in his less festive moments works as a taxicab starter at a local hotel.

Chief Henry Fox says he was fighting a ship fire at the time the breakfast was taking place, but has heard that an employe of the Boston Elevated Railway answered to his name at the party and promised Senor Lomer that the next convention of the International Association of Fire Chiefs would be held in Lima, Peru. Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville says he understands a police reporter doubled for him and delivered an address which was considered a brilliant contribution to the occasion.

Cornelius Reardon, secretary to Mayor Curley, reports that he was at home in bed while the senor and his guests were promoting international accord, and that the man introduced as the secretary was a member of the Fire Department who was enjoying a day off duty.

Police Chief Edward J. Tighe of Revere says he was bothered for two hours by telephoned invitations to the breakfast, and finally was impersonated at the function by "a bum from Bowdoin Square."

The three Harvard professors, teachers of foreign languages, who declined to go to the breakfast, even when a taxicab was sent for them, have heard that their substitutes were the chief engineer and second mate of a British freighter and the cook in a cheap restaurant.

But, whoever they were, it appears that the guests were accepted by Senor Lomer as the persons they purported to be or that someone said they were. And for a time the manufacture of international good will went on at a merry, even a dizzy, clip.

THE staff of the Copley-Plaza, however, was not favorably impressed by the looks of the senor's guests. And the party itself was regarded by these keepers of New England's ritziest inn as a strange and reprehensible Andean antic. This feeling grew as persons whose night's rest had been disturbed by invitations to the breakfast and by the squawking of taxicab horns called up the hotel to inquire who was responsible for the disturbance and what kind of a rumpus was going on there, anyway. And finally the management decided it was time to act.

The good-will breakfast, by that time going like a four-alarm fire, was halted. Senor Lomer was invited to pay for it at once, also to settle the rest of the hotel bill he had contracted in a week's occupancy of a suite, and then to move his breakfast party elswhere. It was made clear that cash was required to liquidate the indebtedness.

Of the painful scene that followed, it is enough to say that despite the vehement protests and warnings of Senor Lomer and Mr. Kelleher, the hotel stood pat, and in the end the Peruvian wrote a check; he was told that if it proved to be good, he could then return to the hotel and get his belonging out of his locked suite. His good-will ardor thoroughly soured, Senor Lomer cabled to President Sanchez Cerro of Peru, in care of El Commercio, Lima, a newspaper which Lomer said was his. The cablegram read:

"Mr. President: My appointment as Consul-General for New England has not reached Washington State Department yet. I am not recognized by Peruvian Embassy at Washington, nor by New York Consulate-General. Am indignant over incident occurred at Hotel Copley-Plaza, where I am suing Arthur I. Race, president of N. E. Hotel Association, and manager of Copley-Plaza of Boston, for reparations, damages, reputation your honor and our country suffered by distrust of my official word as Peruvian Consul-General to New England. Mayor Curley of Boston appreciates deeply my condition; has expressed sympathy of City Hall on my behalf. Tomorrow, a. m., our friend, Governor Ely of Massachusetts, will welcome me at Statehouse and will explain circumstances to his honor."

ACCOMPANIED by the faithful Kelleher and trailed by reporters and photographers, Senor Lomer called at the eight newspaper offices in Boston and told about his grievance.

He issued statements. In one he said: "My brother, who is a graduate of Harvard, is a power in Peru. He is Peruvian Ambassador to Spain. If I find out that it is the fault of anyone that my credentials have been purposely sent astray, I shall see to it that the one responsible is punished. If the Government does not heed by brother's instructions and send me my documents post haste, he will resign as Ambassador to Spain and go back to Peru, and then you shall see some fireworks down there."

A short time after his departure from the Copley-Plaza Senor Lomer told of the reprisals that were to be made against Americans in Peru. "My Government," he declared, "has already informed me by wire that retaliation for the gross insult has been ordered. From now on Americans, every one of them, including President Hoover, Chief Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court, Mayor Curley and all the other big people who come to Peru from the United States, will have to pay cash in advance for anything they

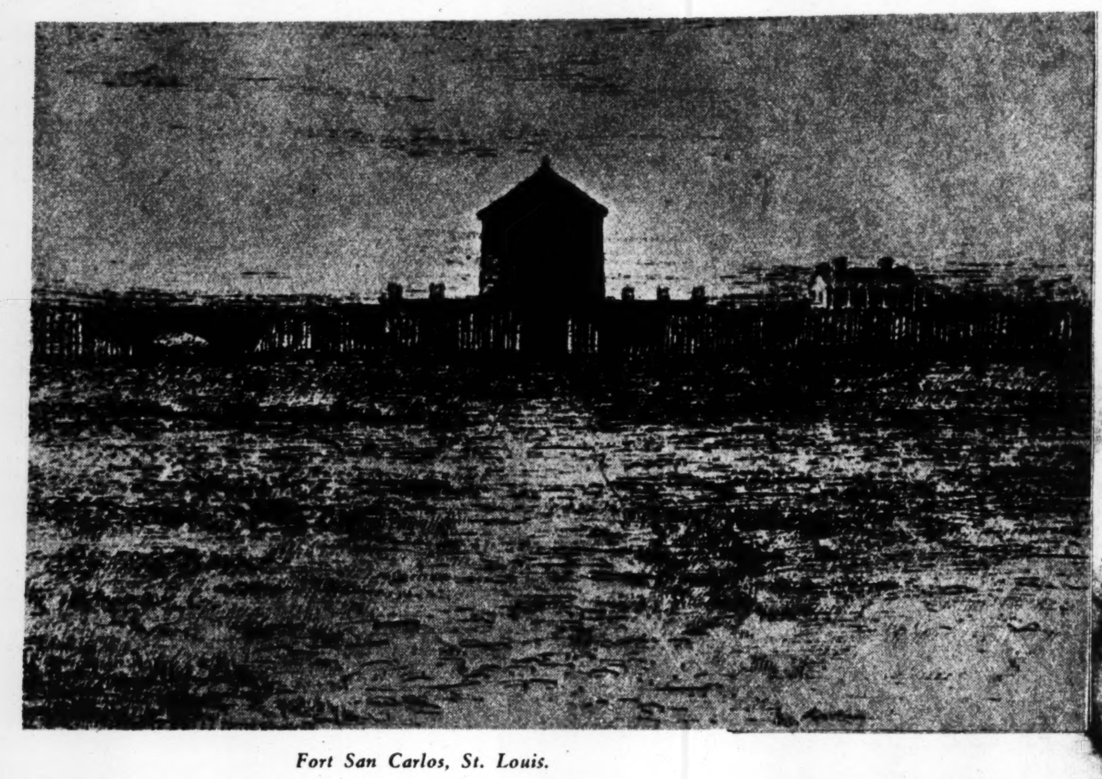
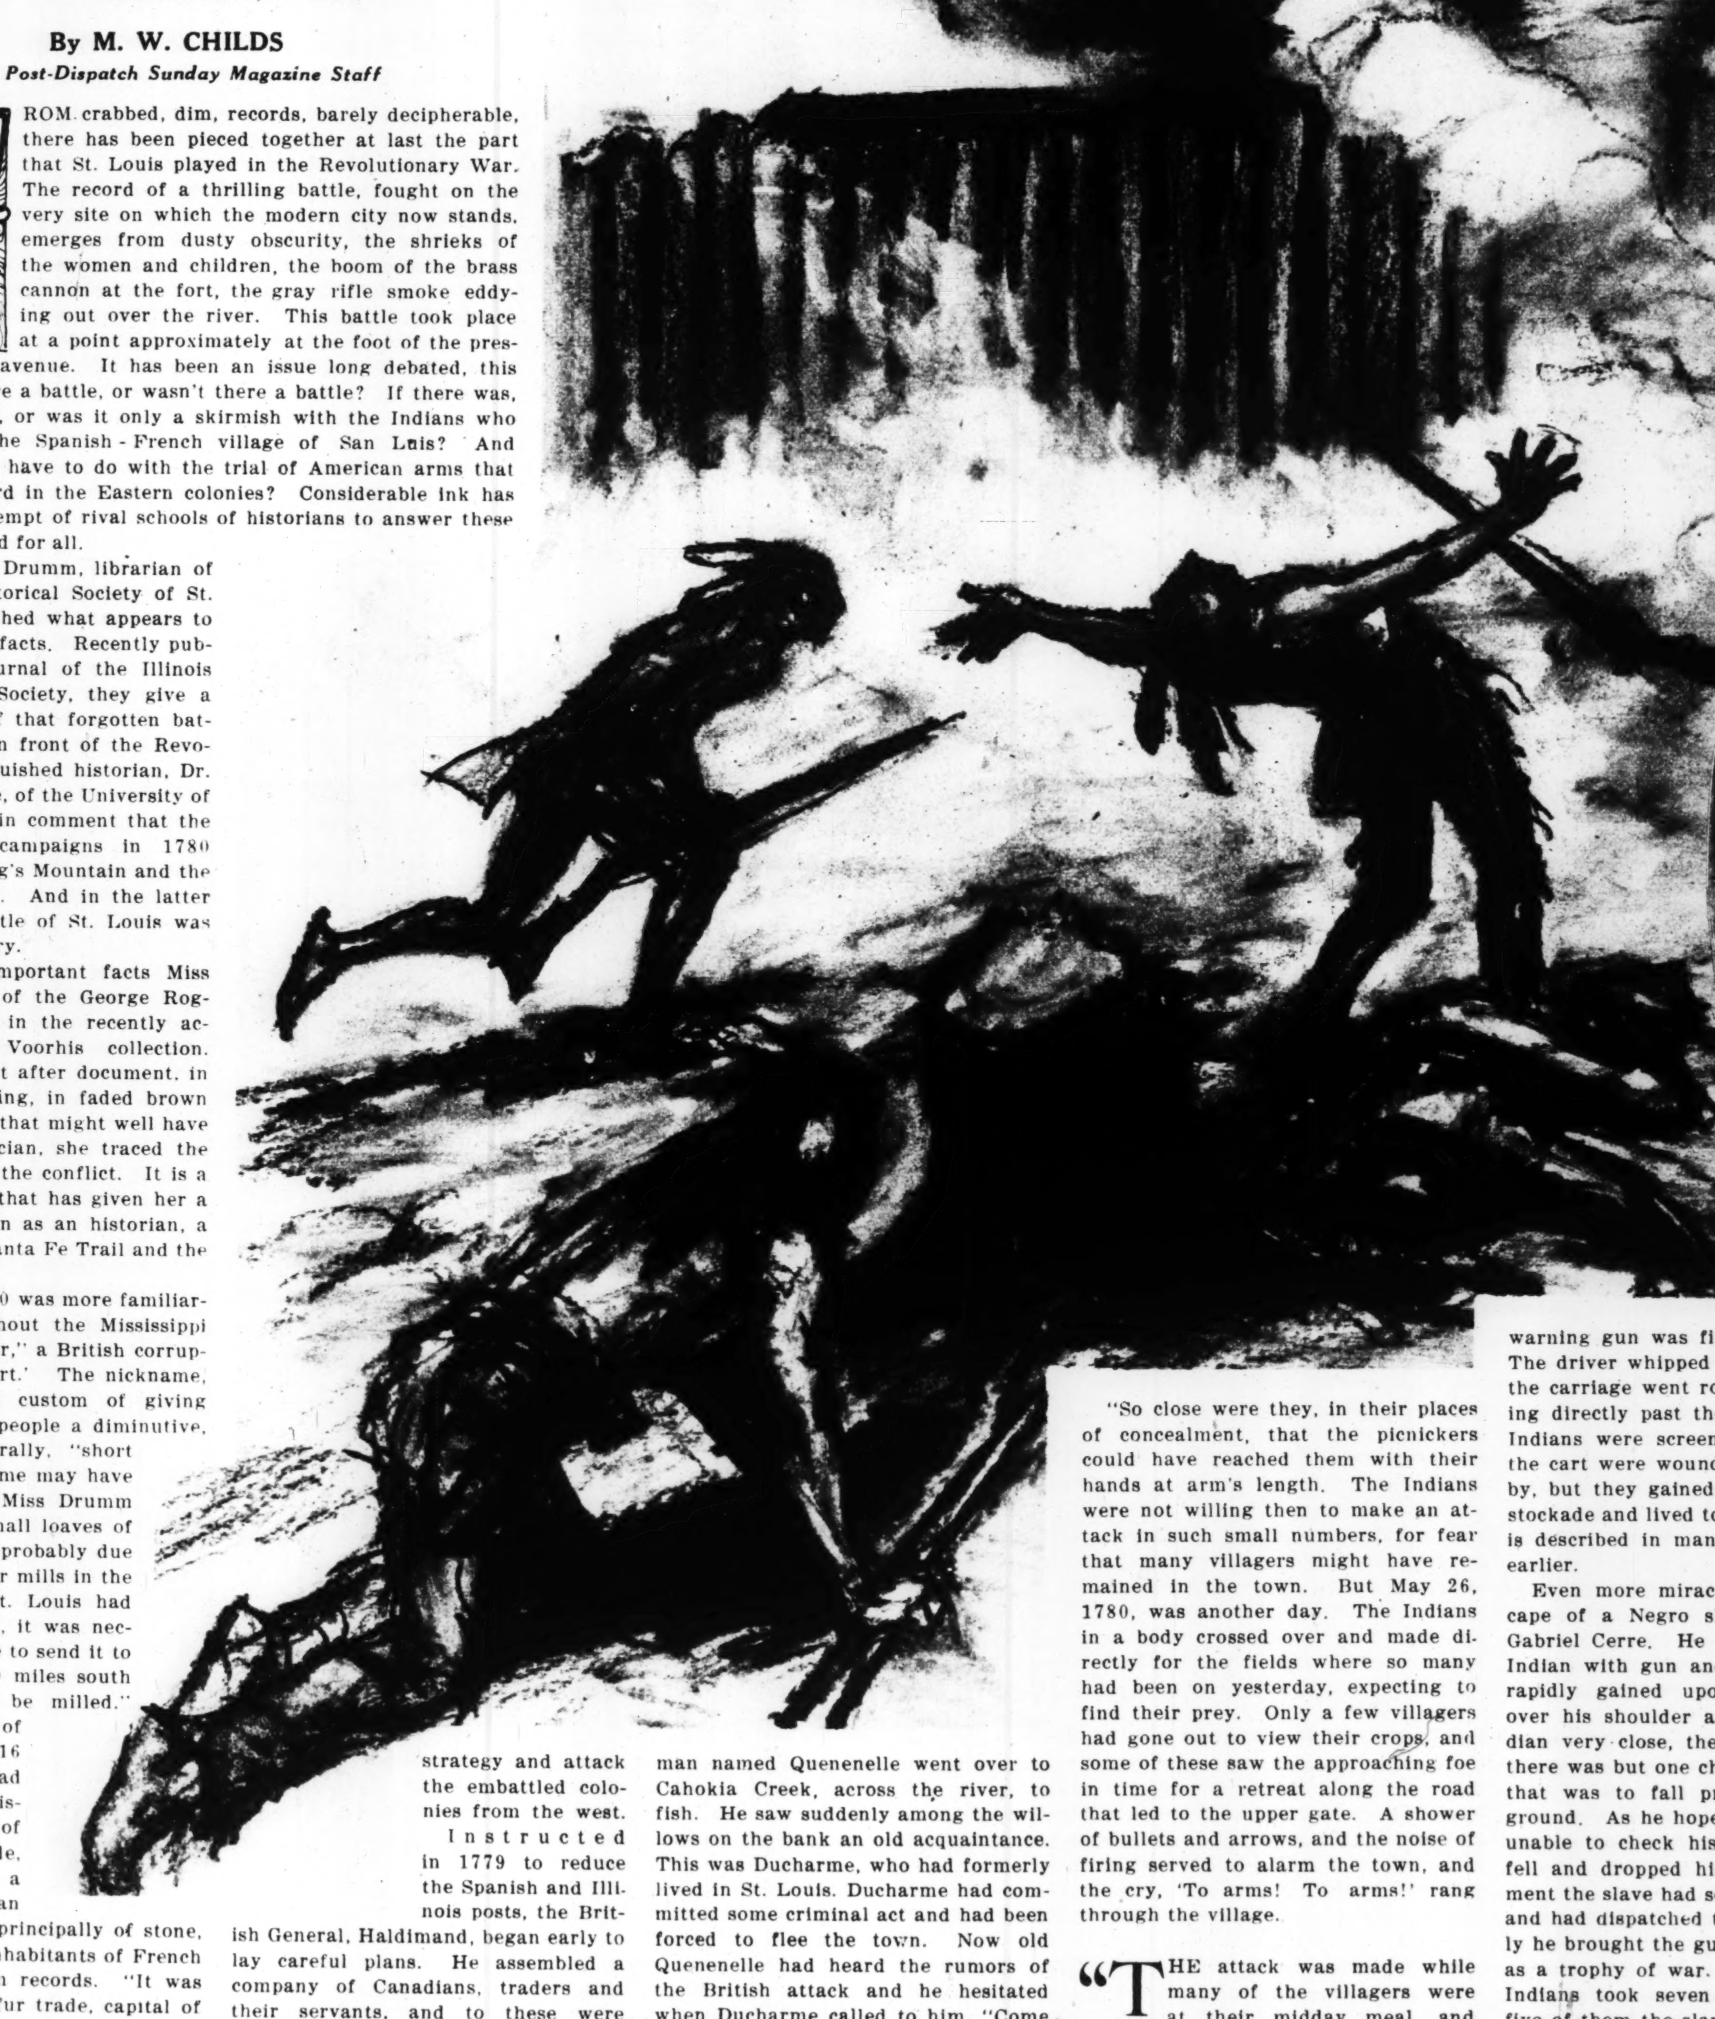
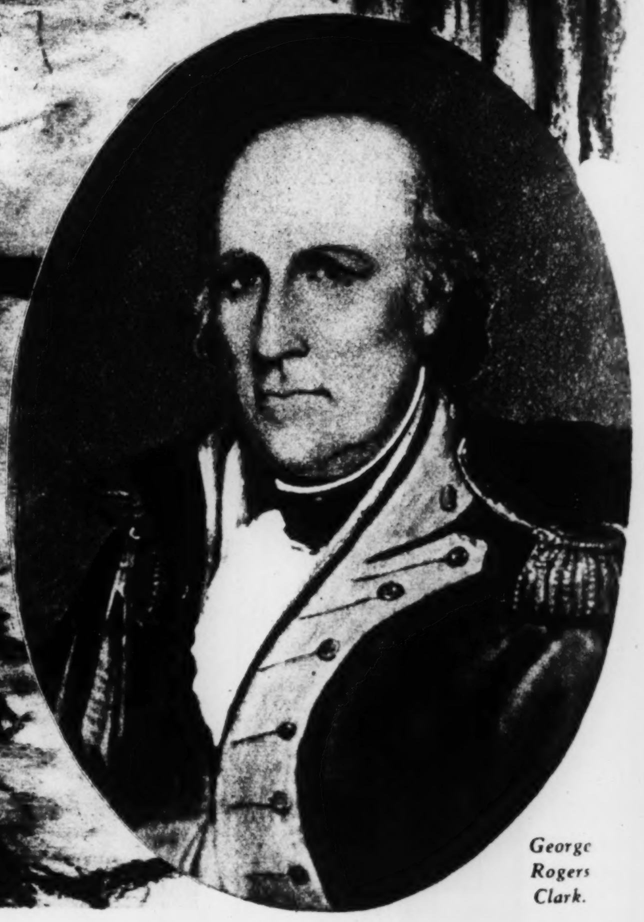
The Part St. Louis Played in the American Revolution



Fort San Carlos, St. Louis.

Recently Deciphered Records Place a New and Important Emphasis on the Battle Fought Here Against the Indians and the Brit





George Rogers Clark.

FROM crabbed, dim, records, barely decipherable, there has been pieced together at last the part that St. Louis played in the Revolutionary War. The record of a thrilling battle, fought on the very site on which the modern city now stands, emerges from dusty obscurity, the shrieks of the women and children, the boom of the brass cannon at the fort, the gray rifle smoke eddying out over the river. This battle took place at a point approximately at the foot of the present Washington avenue. It has been an issue long debated, this battle. Was there a battle, or wasn't there a battle? If there was, was it important, or was it only a skirmish with the Indians who often harassed the Spanish-French village of San Luis? And what did all this have to do with the trial of American arms that was going forward in the Eastern colonies? Considerable ink has flowed in the attempt of rival schools of historians to answer these questions once and for all.

Miss Stella M. Drumm, librarian of the Missouri Historical Society of St. Louis, has unearthed what appears to be the conclusive facts. Recently published in the Journal of the Illinois State Historical Society, they give a curious picture of that forgotten battle on the western front of the Revolution. A distinguished historian, Dr. Theodore C. Pease, of the University of Illinois, has said in comment that the only successful campaigns in 1780 were those of King's Mountain and the Mississippi Valley. And in the latter campaign the battle of St. Louis was the decisive victory.

Most of the important facts Miss Drumm dug out of the George Rogers Clark papers in the recently acquired Eleanor Voorhis collection. Through document after document, in crooked handwriting, in faded brown ink, with spelling that might well have baffled a phonetician, she traced the major outlines of the conflict. It is a part of the work that has given her a national reputation as an historian, a specialist in the Santa Fe Trail and the fur trade.

St. Louis in 1780 was more familiarly known throughout the Mississippi Valley as "Pencour," a British corruption of "Pain Court.' The nickname, after the French custom of giving towns as well as people a diminutive, is translated literally, "short bread." "This name may have been suggested," Miss Drumm writes, "by the small loaves of bread used there, probably due to the lack of flour mills in the village. While St. Louis had a plenty of wheat, it was necessary at that time to send it to Ste. Genevieve, 70 miles south on the river, to be milled."

The village of Pain Court was 16 years old and had suffered but one disaster—the death of its founder, Laclede, in 1778. It was a town of less than 120 houses, built principally of stone, with most of the inhabitants of French birth, Miss Drumm records. "It was the center of the fur trade, capital of Upper Louisiana and a prosperous community.

"Other villages within a radius of 20 miles—Carondelet, St. Charles and St. Ferdinand, were offshoots. It was defended by a Spanish garrison under Captain Fernando de Leyba, consisting of 50 men, or less, and 280 townsmen, although this force had been augmented before the attack by reinforcements from Ste. Genevieve. According to Navarro, the Spanish Intendant stationed at New Orleans, a wooden tower had been built at one end of the town, on which five cannon were placed, and two other intrenchments were built and manned by 25 veteran soldiers and 280 militia."

The British eyed this rich prize from the distance of Fort Detroit. In a sense it was the key to the Mississippi Valley. With St. Louis in their control, Cahokia and Kaskaskia would easily succumb and the way would be open to New Orleans. Should this initial campaign be successful, it would be possible to try an entirely new strategy and attack the embattled colonies from the west.

Instructed in 1779 to reduce the Spanish and Illinois posts, the British General, Haldimand, began early to lay careful plans. He assembled a company of Canadians, traders and their servants, and to these were added, by order of Lieutenant-Governor Sinclair, a number of Indian bands, Menominee, Sauk, Fox, Winnebago and Sioux. The latter were under the command of a fur trader named Emanuel Hesse.

NEWS of this proposed attack spread rapidly through the valley. Rumors came from Vincennes and Kaskaskia to St. Louis. On April 11, 1780, Charles Gratiot was sent out to warn Colonel George Rogers Clark of the impending attack. And there are letters in the Voorhis collection from John Montgomery, Valentine Thomas Dalton and Richard McCarty, telling him of the approaching enemy. It was apparently Gratiot's desire to anticipate the attack by an offensive expedition against the British. Slowly, plans were formulated for such an expedition. Cahokia and Kaskaskia were to send men. But before this force could be assembled the blow fell.

There was some warning. An old man named Quenenelle went over to Cahokia Creek, across the river, to fish. He saw suddenly among the willows on the bank an old acquaintance. This was Ducharme, who had formerly lived in St. Louis. Ducharme had committed some criminal act and had been forced to flee the town. Now old Quenenelle had heard the rumors of the British attack and he hesitated when Ducharme called to him, "Come on over." Quenenelle looked again and saw in a hiding place among the bushes the eyes of several Indians. He told Ducharme that he still valued his scalp, even though there was now no hair on it.

"The Commandant might well have taken warning from Monsieur Quenenelle, for soon there assembled on the eastern shore of the Mississippi, a short distance above the village, several Indian bands and a goodly number of British Canadians. They were awaiting the day, May 26, appointed for the attack on St. Louis. The feast of the Corpus Christi was celebrated by the villagers on May 25, and happily for them, the attack was not made on that day. It would, perhaps, have found them scattered in the prairie outside the town, where they went after church services and procession, to gather strawberries and flowers, and make merry in picnic fashion. Unguarded, these unsuspecting people would have been massacred and the village captured.

"So close were they, in their places of concealment, that the picnickers could have reached them with their hands at arm's length. The Indians were not willing then to make an attack in such small numbers, for fear that many villagers might have remained in the town. But May 26, 1780, was another day. The Indians in a body crossed over and made directly for the fields where so many had been on yesterday, expecting to find their prey. Only a few villagers had gone out to view their crops, and some of these saw the approaching foe in time for a retreat along the road that led to the upper gate. A shower of bullets and arrows, and the noise of firing served to alarm the town, and the cry, 'To arms! To arms!' rang through the village.

"THE attack was made while many of the villagers were at their midday meal, and came as a surprise in spite of many warnings. The enemy expected feeble resistance, but was repulsed by the milita. Vigorous firing was kept up by both sides during the whole afternoon. Commandant de Leyba was in the bastion, from which cannon did good service. Urged on by the cries of the women and children, shut up in the house of the Commandant, the spirit of the defenders was raised to a frenzy. Despairing of conquest in this quarter, the enemy scattered over the country. They found several farmers with their slaves working in the fields. Upon these unarmed and innocent victims they satisfied their thirst for blood and their cruel impulses. They also destroyed the crops and killed all the cattle they could not take with them."

There were several hair-breadth escapes among those who were caught outside the fort. The Indians had ambushed themselves along the road leading to the town. There were seven villagers in a cart at the time the first warning gun was fired from the fort. The driver whipped up his horses and the carriage went rocking and careening directly past the point where the Indians were screened. All seven in the cart were wounded as they passed by, but they gained the safety of the stockade and lived to tell the tale. This is described in manuscripts published earlier.

Even more miraculous was the escape of a Negro slave belonging to Gabriel Cerre. He was chased by an Indian with gun and tomahawk, who rapidly gained upon him. Looking over his shoulder and seeing the Indian very close, the Negro concluded there was but one chance for him, and that was to fall prostrate upon the ground. As he hoped, the Indian was unable to check his speed, stumbled, fell and dropped his gun. In a moment the slave had secured the weapon and had dispatched the Indian. Proudly he brought the gun back to the fort as a trophy of war. The British and Indians took seven Negro prisoners, five of them the slaves of M. Cerre.

"The importance of the British defeat at St. Louis may have been underestimated," Miss Drumm writes. "It was certainly followed by great demoralization among the British allies, and the furious Sinclair even charged that treachery of some of his own men had caused the defeat. This demoralization and delay permitted George Rogers Clark, who was in the vicinity, to organize a force of 350 men, including men collected from the French posts of Illinois and the Spanish at St. Louis, and to send them, under Colonel John Montgomery, against the Sauk and Fox Indians. All these happenings, coming as they did in direct succession, broke up the expedition and the program of the British for capture of the Spanish possessions. It was not only of value to the Spanish, but kept the British from menacing the American colonies from the west."

A sentence or two from one of the manuscripts Miss Drumm has included in her article will show what difficulties in spelling she encountered:

"Sir as the Bad nues of the Enemy Aproching in our Villiges encites me to Exert My Self with the hand full of Trupes I have to trey to prevent there desines I thot it of An advantage to trey to corperate with the Spanish trupes Which desine I put in practus By Going over & consulting With the Commander."

Add to this an almost undecipherable hand and ink faded by 150 years of time, and it is seen that Miss Drumm's task is something like that of the detective.

She also explored the old French records at Ste. Genevieve and St. Louis.

ONCE she almost had a misadventure that might have ended tragically. She was working in the basement of the old courthouse, examing some records of the fur traders. A trap door in this basement vault had been left open onto a great sewer that flowed beneath. In moving a heavy dusty volume, she made a careless misstep, and it was only by grasping the upraised door that she saved herself.

Most of her adventures in her work are of a less dangerous nature. They have to do with the discovery of old records in the period in which she is particularly interested. Some years ago she edited for the Yale University Press the diary of Susan Shelby Magoffin, which was published under the title, "Down the Santa Fe Trail and Into Mexico." Earlier she had edited John C. Luttig's "Journal of a Fur Trading Expedition on the Upper Missouri, 1812-1813." And editing in this case does not mean merely seeing that the commas and periods are where they belong. It means tracing down and identifying each name and place that come into the record.

The collections at the Missouri Historical Society are widely known. Each summer a stream of scholars comes to the library of the society from colleges all over the country, as far away as from Oregon and New York. But Miss Drumm finds time, nevertheless, to pursue her own researches.

IT IS hard enough for most men and women to live up to the famous and long-standing Ten Commandments, but when a young bride draws up a long list of 47 rules by which her husband must abide in order to be allowed the privilege of living with her, married life becomes well-nigh insufferable.

This was the plea of Albert K. Ross, 36-year-old railroad employe of Gloucester, New Jersey, and his lawyer, Wilbert K. Pike, of Camden, in contesting the annulment asked for by s. Rebecca Roddy Ross, 28-year-old school teacher and daughter of the Rev. J. Stover Roddy of the First Presbyterian Church of Gloucester.

"When a woman who has known married life for only six months," Mr. Ross said, thinks up 47 rules for her husband, writes them down in cold blood, sends them to him in a carefully mposed letter, and asks him in all seriousness to sign them in the presence of a notary public, threatening to dissolve the marital ties otherwise, can anyone blame him for considering her an inhuman iceberg?

"Surely, a loving wife could not found her marriage on rules which winds up by stating that if her husband breaks only three of the 47 written conditions, she will have the right to break up the marriage and he will have to pay the cost of a divorce.

"THE one commandment she didn't write down, and the one which she enforced most rigidly, was Thou Shalt Not Kiss. Could a marriage be happy on such a basis?"

But the story which Mrs. Rebecca Ross told in court was an altogether different one. The Court, in the per of William J. Kraft, special master in chancery, granted her an annulment decree, which will become final about April 1, provided Albert K. Ross does not appeal the case.

A slender young woman, becomingly dressed, attractive looking, her face le and her eyes red from crying, rs. Ross sat in the office of her lawyer and adviser, Frank Nelson Jess, in Camden, and told her full interpretation of the story of her marriage.

About seven years ago, Rebecca Roddy, who had been graduated from the Normal School, and was teaching first-grade children in Gloucester, became acquainted with Albert K. Ross. He was eight years older than she, with graying hair and what seemed to her a loving heart. He lived with his family in the same town.

"We were very good friends for several years," Rebecca Roddy Ross explained. "And then three years ago we became engaged. Although we loved each other, my family did not approve of Ross from the start.

The Strange Case of the Kissless Husband

THE 47 COMMANDMENTS

4. That you will refrain from criticism of my family and all unkind and unpleasant remarks of any nature whatsoever.

36. That I shall never be unreasonable in our personal relations.

37. That you will always have peaceful relations with all of my family and my friends.

38. That you will never again try to separate me from any of my family or my friends.

39. That I will do the same both as in 37 and 38.

40. That if either of us shall depart from any of these conditions, we shall report the offender to the lawyer who draws up this contract, and the offender shall be fined a sum to be set by said lawyer.

41. That such offense may be committed by you only three times. If three such offenses have been committed, you will have to forfeit our marriage, and pay all expenses of a divorce.

42. That you can never divorce me for any cause whatsoever unless I give my consent.

43. That you can never threaten me for anything that displeases you; that such threats will constitute a serious offense.

44. That I shall have the full right and utmost freedom in telephoning to my family, and in going to see them at any time I wish.

45. That neither of us shall be compelled to account to the other for our hours apart from each other. That we shall both be entirely free to come and go as we please without explaining our actions to each other.

CAMDEN, New Jersey.

IT IS hard enough for most men and women to live up to the famous and long-standing Ten Commandments, but when a young bride draws up a long list of 47 rules by which her husband must abide in order to be allowed the privilege of living with her, married life becomes well-nigh insufferable.

This was the plea of Albert K. Ross, [illegible]-year-old railroad employe of Gloucester, New Jersey, and his lawyer, Wilbert K. Pike, of Camden, in contesting the annulment asked for by Mrs. Rebecca Roddy Ross, 28-year-old school teacher and daughter of the Rev. J. Stover Roddy of the First Presbyterian Church of Gloucester.

"When a woman who has known married life for only six months," Mr. Ross said, thinks up 47 rules for her husband, writes them down in cold blood, sends them to him in a carefully composed letter, and asks him in all seriousness to sign them in the presence of a notary public, threatening to dissolve the marital ties otherwise, can anyone blame him for considering her an inhuman iceberg?

"Surely, a loving wife could not found her marriage on rules which winds up by stating that if her husband breaks only three of the 47 written conditions, she will have the right to break up the marriage and he will have to pay the cost of a divorce.

"THE one commandment she didn't write down, and the one which she enforced most rigidly was Thou Shalt Not Kiss. Could a marriage be happy on such a basis?"

But the story which Mrs. Rebecca Ross told in court was an altogether different one. The Court, in the person of William J. Kraft, special master in chancery, granted her an annulment decree, which will become final about April 1, provided Albert K. Ross does not appeal the case.

A slender young woman, becomingly dressed, attractive looking, her face pale and her eyes red from crying, Mrs. Ross sat in the office of her lawyer and adviser, Frank Nelson Jess, in Camden and told her full interpretation of the story of her marriage.

About seven years ago, Rebecca Roddy, who had been graduated from the Normal School, and was teaching first-grade children in Gloucester, became acquainted with Albert K. Ross. He was [illegible] years older than she, with graying hair and what seemed to her a loving heart. He lived with his family in the same town.

"We were very good friends for several years," Rebecca Roddy Ross explained, "and then three years ago we became engaged. Although we loved each other, my family did not approve of Ross from the start.

"They did not like his superior attitude toward them and all my relatives, nor did they like his dominating ways with me. They saw from the first what a jealous nature he had, and they warned me time and again.

"However, I did not listen to them. I was an individual, and I thought I knew what I wanted. I thought that after we were married everything would be all right and his jealousy would subside into lasting affection.

"By November, 1930, Ross' pleas for marriage became more and more frequent and demanding. I finally gave in. It was against my better judgment, because I knew he was not making enough money at his job to support a wife, home and children.

"Besides, I had persuaded him to take a course in certified public accounting at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania at night. I was taking some courses there, too, for extra teaching credits.

"My idea was that we should wait until he finished the course and then get married and have our own home, but I gave in to his wishes in this matter and we were married then."

On November 29, 1930, the bride's father married the couple. They went to New York on their honeymoon, and then she went up to Teaneck, near New Brunswick, New Jersey, and he came back to live with his family in Gloucester. At the beginning of the school year in 1930, Rebecca Roddy had signed a contract to teach first grade in Teaneck, and she saw no reason why she should break this contract.

During the winter she came home on alternate week-ends and she and her husband lived on the third floor of the manse. Every other week she stayed in Teaneck and Albert Ross went up there to spend the time with her in the private home where she was living.

"I was helping him with his school work all the time," Mrs. Ross continued. "He grasped mathematics very well, but he could not understand the other subjects which came up in his course. I read to him and explained many things to him.

"He began talking about having children, but I told him time and time again that I refused to have them until we had enough money of our own to support and educate them properly.

"Last spring he demanded that I give him all my salary. When I wanted to know what he wanted it for, he told me that he was using it to buy furniture for the home we would soon have. I gave him the money he wanted, and then I was amazed to see that the bills for the furniture came in with not a cent paid on them.

"Then he began writing me crude letters. I never asked him to account for his time away from me. But he did not seem to trust me. His jealousy was overpowering.

"He wrote me again and again, demanding that I give a full account of my time while we were separated. He wanted me to tell him what I did every minute of the day. He demanded that I give him the name of every person with whom I spoke or called on the telephone.

"He was always dissatisfied with the amount of money I was giving him. He objected to my raising any questions about the unpaid bills and he was very angry when I was not pleased with a totally inadequate apartment he had picked out for us to live in.

"When I did come home week-ends, he often made disgraceful scenes in front of my relatives and friends, scenes that were humiliating for them as well as for me.

"Finally, last June, I realized the full extent of his extremely dangerous nature. I determined to do something about it. I sat down and wrote my 47 commandments, as they have been called.

"I thought that if he signed them and really meant to keep them, our marriage might be put on a reasonable basis. I still hoped that we might live together happily as man and wife should, and as I have been taught they do.

"I see now that I was foolish to expect anything from the rules. I wrote in the letter that if he agreed to abide by the commandments, I would resign my teaching position and come to Gloucester to live with him.

"Some of the rules were meant in sarcasm; others were in earnest. For instance, when I stipulated that I wanted him to earn $10,000 a year by the time he was 50 I was being ironical. I hardly expected that to come true.

"But I did think that if he promised to go to church regularly, it would help him to be a kinder and gentler person in his relations with me and with my family. I felt that if he continued at the university it would be of as much benefit to him as to me.

"Of course, I meant all I wrote about my freedom. I merely demanded the freedom which every intelligent wife desires. I considered that if he signed my rules, he would no longer be consumed by his impossible jealousy and would realize that marriage is a partnership where both parties are equal and must compromise with the other."

Mr. Ross never signed the commandments, nor did he return them to his wife. He merely kept them for future reference and proceeded to break every one of them, except the one about not having children for two years. He told persons in Gloucester that he had a cold and frigid wife who was his mate in name only.

IN SEPTEMBER she wrote to him again. This time she repeated that she was willing to be a devoted and faithful wife to him if he would understand that marriage requires something from the husband, too, and that he must compromise as well as she.

But it was no go, and a year after they were married Mrs. Rebecca Roddy Ross went to her father's friend and lawyer, Frank Nelson Jess, told him that her marriage with Albert K. Ross had never been consummated, and said that she wanted to apply for an annulment.

Much to the surprise of Mrs. Ross, her husband filed a protest to her plea. He stated that it was not his fault that the marriage had never been consummated, as he could prove by reading her 47 commandments, which only a human iceberg and not a loving spouse could pen.

"On our honeymoon," he explained, "she was as cold as ice. In fact, ice water, not blood, ran in her veins. During the wedding trip, she began a voluminous correspondence, writing letters of thanks to all her cousins and aunts who had sent us wedding presents. She kept up this kind of attitude whenever we were together.

"How could any man live with such a frigid woman? She made a stipulation that we were not to have children for two years. Why? Because she liked children in the classroom only. She wanted to live only in Gloucester if she resigned her position. Why? Because she cared more for her family than she did for me."

But Special Master Kraft, on hearing the case, disagreed with Ross. In his mind there was nothing wrong with Mrs. Ross, except that she was unhappy in her choice of a husband. He gave the bride an annulment and made her a free woman once more.

The PERFUMED DOG

By

JOSEPH FAUS

A GREAT many people have asked me how it was the phenomenal canine entitled Lightning Flash lost the famous greyhound Derby last winter racing season in Miami, and I am taking this means of answering them.

I worked for the Bob Chauncey Kennels and led the dog to the post for that fatal race, and I can therefore give the real lowdown on this important matter that has long been a sore puzzle to all. It is a sorrowful fact to add that I have been accused of feeding the animal hamburger before the race, of doping him, and also of sticking a cockleburr into one of his delicate forefeet.

These aforesaid accusations, however, are a gross libel, for wherever greyhounds are known the name of Eddie Botts, trainer and post boy, which is myself, is respected and admired. In brief, no amount of money could tempt me to doublecross the public.

I will also say at this point that there was no more bitterly disappointed person in the crowd of 20,000 spectators that witnessed the defeat of the dog in question than was the writer of this truthful document. The fact is, I myself lost a century note on the race.

To get to the core of the tragic situation, the reason the phenomenal canine entitled Lightning Flash was a mere also-ran in the Miami Derby was because Fifi Marcelle, the famous actress of the films, had a perfume for every mood. This statement needs some explanation, and I will explain as I go along.

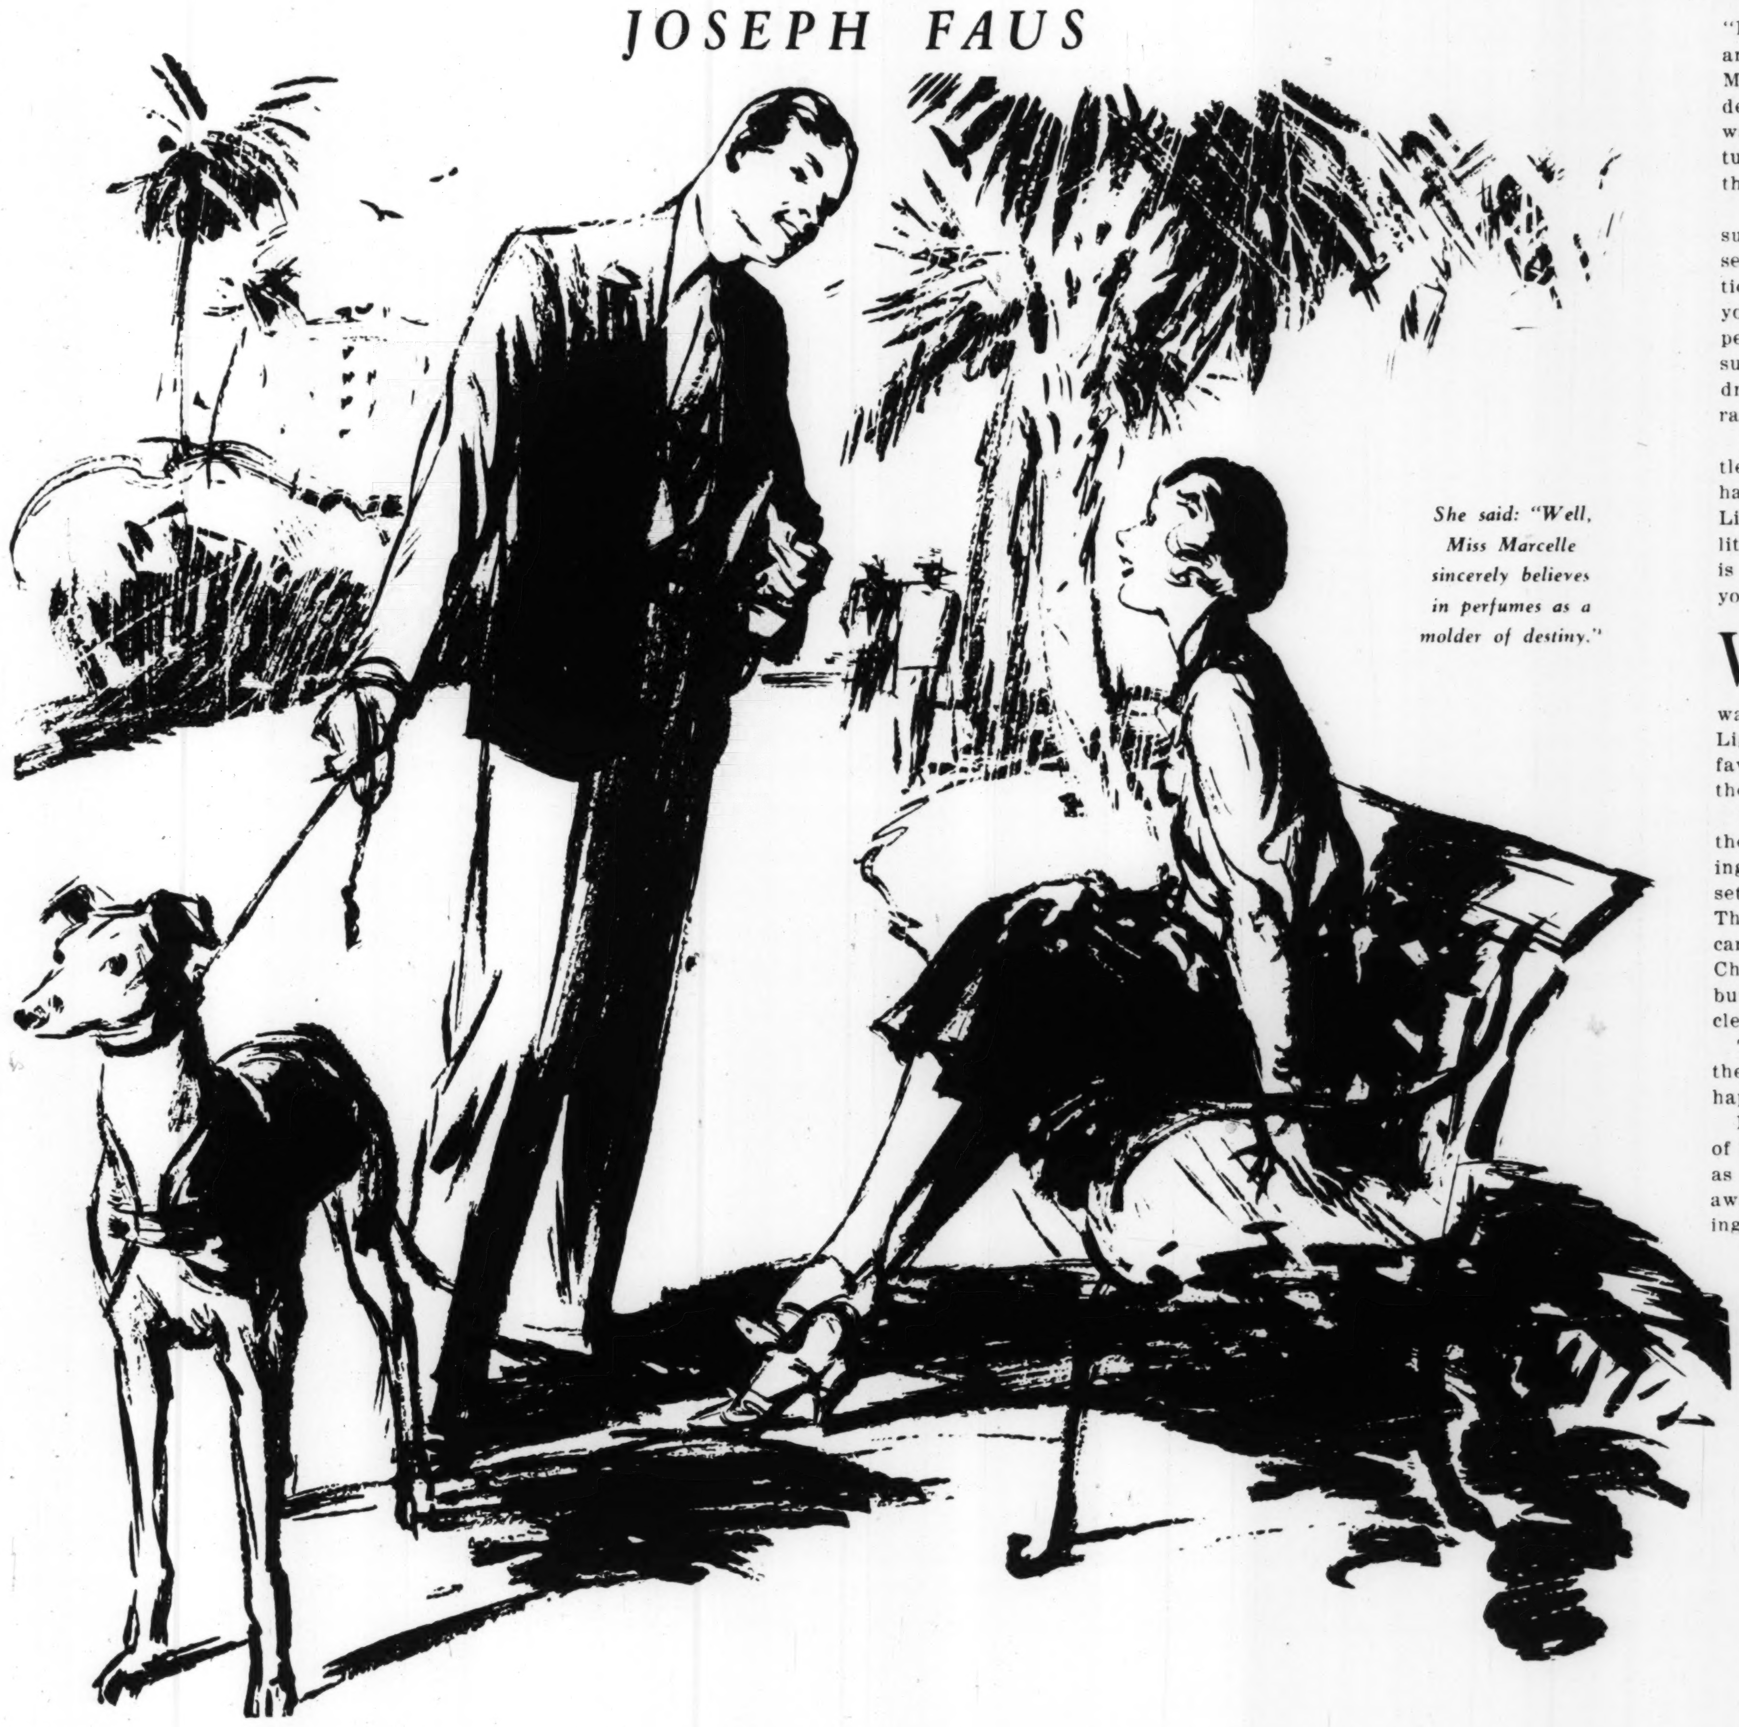
Mr. Bob Chauncey, my boss, obtained the animal later known as Lightning Flash two years ago. His parents were just weinies, and Mr. Bob never expected much of the pup. He turned him over to me to train, lightly suggesting I make another Cool Caress or Mission Boy out of him.

I could see I had some good material to work on. The pup was strong and healthy and had an unusual good pair of hind legs. I soon had him breezing after the bunny like a veteran, and when I put some other pups in the starting trap with him he seemed right away to know the secret of "breaking the box."

He quickly picked up the wise habit of forcing his practice rivals to the outside, himself clinging to the inner rail. He refused to let the pack bunch him in, and he never stopped to fight when some sore mutt would nip him on the hip.

In brief, I decided he was a born racer.

Here, at the well-known Floral Park plant, Lightning Flash won every event in which he was entered. He literally took the racing fans by storm.



She said: "Well, Miss Marcelle sincerely believes in perfumes as a molder of destiny."

AS APPROACHED the Derby, in which ran the best weinies in that section, it was generally admitted that he had the edge on them all, and the betting odds skyrocketed to two to one in his favor to win, four to one to show and six to one to place.

I myself was told this by Mr. Chuck Conners, a well-known gentleman gambler who followed the dogs; and it was common knowledge that the only contestant that stood a chance to beat him was one Pinkie Lad, a sickly looking weinie that every now and then could be coaxed into thinking he wasn't going to a funeral.

One nice sunny morning I was walking with the champ in the park on Biscayne Bay when an elderly gentleman, whom I later found out was a Mr. McDougal, a snuff manufacturer from Ohio, stopped me.

He said: "That is a handsome dog you have there."

I politely said: "Yes, sir. Thanks, sir. He is Lightning Flash, the well-known phenomenal canine of the Bob Chauncey Kennels."

The elderly gentleman seemed somewhat puzzled. He said: "Well, he looks like a good dog, anyway. I believe he would make a nice companion for my little boy, Clarence, aged 8. Tell you what I'll do—I'll give you $5 for him. That's a good, generous offer."

I laughed forgivingly and said: "It may surprise you, sir, to hear that no more than a week ago the owner of this dog was offered a cash sum of $500 for him."

The gentleman said: "That is outrageous. No dog in the world is worth $500. Well, I am staying at the Roney Plaza on the beach, and if ever you change your mind, let me know." He then thrust a card in my hand and walked on.

At this point a girl sitting alone on a nearby park bench spoke up. She said: "Some persons cannot appreciate the unusual in a dog. May I ask, sir, if that fine looking animal is truly Lightning Flash the famous racing greyhound about which the papers have printed so much these past few months?"

I admitted modestly it was none other, for I could see right away the girl was no nominal girl and knew real dog flesh when she saw it. Also, she was pretty and had a nice figure. I may say at this point I am unmarried, although not much of a hand with the ladies.

We naturally got into a conversation, and I told her the history of Lightning Flash, and when this was done, two hours later, we went to a cold drink stand and had a drink.

She then informed me her name was Lillian Smith, and that she was the personal maid of Miss Fifi Marcelle, a famous actress of the films, who was then sojourning in the city.

During the drink I politely said: "It must be very interesting to work for a movie queen, Miss Smith."

She said: "If you don't mind, please call me Lillian. And I'll call you Eddie."

She blushed, and I may say at this point, if there is any girl I am partial to, that girl is the girl who blushes.

"Yes, Eddie, it is indeed very interesting to work for a movie queen. Miss Marcelle, luckily for me, is as kind and considerate as she is rich and lovely. She has had a remarkable success—a success, I may mention, that is largely due to perfumes."

This naturally made me curious, and I politely asked what she meant.

She said: "Well, Miss Marcelle sincerely believes in perfumes as a molder of character and destiny. She maintains their influence is all-powerful. She has a perfume for every mood known to mankind

"SHE even has a good luck perfume, and when she uses this she says some good luck is bound to happen to her—and it always does. I well remember the time she put some of this perfume on her negligee, and the very next hour a special delivery letter arrived that contained a check for overdue alimony from her third husband.

"But do not let me talk forever on this boresome subject. Please tell me what is the best time in which Lightning Flash has made the three-quarters hurdle?"

I told her this, as she plainly was a true dog racing fan, and also took the opportunity to add some of his other marvelous achievements. At my polite suggestion we then walked to her hotel, and there I made a date with her to go to a movie the next night, after which I shook her cordially by the hand and made my departure.

The next night we enjoyed the movie, but when we came out of the theater lobby onto the street I could see Lillian was quite anxious about something. I politely asked her what was the trouble.

She said: "Well, Eddie, to tell the truth, I put some of Miss Marcelle's good luck perfume on my handkerchief, and so far no good luck has happened to me."

I naturally started to kid her by asking what more good luck could she want than to know Eddie Botts himself, but just at that moment she stooped down quickly, and when she straightened up there was a crumpled $20 bill in her hand.

She excitedly said: "Look what I found! Oh, I just knew I would have some good luck tonight. Come on, Eddie, we'll take a ride."

I thereupon hailed a taxicab, of course saying I would not permit her to pay for it, and we then proceeded to enjoy a nice ride in the moonlight. During the ride, Lillian leaned close to me and said: "Say, Eddie, how would you like to have some good luck happen to you?"

She then opened a bottle which she had sneaked out, containing the good luck perfume, and sprinkled a few drops on my cheek. It smelled sweet and tickled a bit, but soon dried up.

Lillian carefully placed the vial back in her purse and seriously said: "Now you will have some good luck pretty soon, Eddie. Believe me, the perfume never fails."

An hour later, when I arrived in my room near the race track kennels, I saw a small package on my dresser. Immediately thinking of the good luck that was supposed to happen to me, I eagerly opened it and saw inside a fine new gold watch, costing at least 50 cash dollars. There was a note also.

The note said: "Dear Eddie old boy, I have been in on the money so much since you have handled Lightning Flash that I am more than grateful to you. Please take this modest gift as a slight token of my professional esteem. Respectively yours, Chuck Connors. P. S.—I am putting all I got in the world on L. F. for the Derby. He is a sure winner, thanks to you. C. C."

IT SEEMED that everybody in Florida came to the Derby next night at the Floral Park track. By 8 o'clock the grandstand and bleachers were crammed. The band played, everyone talked and laughed, and it was a real gala night.

Mr. Bob, as the time for the mile Derby approached, came into the paddock and asked me about the condition of the pup. I truthfully said he could not be in better condition. He said that was fine, as he had placed a tidy sum on the canine.

At 10 o'clock I got one of the boys to watch over Lightning Flash, so that no crazy punk could come up and annoy or hurt him, and I then hastened to the side entrance of the grandstand, where I had promised to meet Lillian.

She was there, all right, and with her was a very beautiful young woman whom I at once realized must be none other than Miss Fifi Marcelle, the famous movie queen herself.

When I came up to them, Lillian said: "Hello, Eddie. Miss Marcelle, this gentleman is Eddie Botts, the famous greyhound expert. Eddie, meet Miss Marcelle."

I politely said: "It is a pleasure and an honor to meet Miss Fifi Marcelle, the well-known actress of the silver screen." And I bowed.

Miss Marcelle then sincerely said: "I assure you it is also a pleasure and an honor to meet a real dog trainer, Mr. Botts. I just want to say I suddenly have the desire to place a little wager—say $10 or so—on this creature of yours called Lightning something-or-other.

"Lillian tells me he is reasonably sure to win, but I must admit I am selfish enough to want that supposition guaranteed. I wonder, then, will you take this little bottle of good luck perfume and satisfy the whim of a superstitious woman by spraying a few drops on his head just before the race?"

She then wistfully handed me a little bottle, the same bottle that Lillian had had the night before, and, while Lillian looked appealingly at me, I politely said: "Well, Miss Marcelle, this is a bit unusual, but I will do it for your sake."

WHILE no one was looking I took out the vial and emptied a few drops of its sweet and watery contents on the forehead of Lightning Flash, the overwhelming favorite in the great Derby, and then the first bugle call sounded.

The great throng watched tensely as the race began. The dogs ceased baying and, packed together like sardines, settled down to the grueling grind. Then the crowd cheered lustily as the canine with the colors of the Bob Chauncey Kennels spurted from the bunch and took the lead, holding it clear to the stretch.

Then as Lightning Flash came into the home stretch, a very strange thing happened.

He suddenly slowed down, and one of his forefeet went swiftly to his head as though to scratch it or to knock away some bothersome flies. Following this, he stopped altogether, put his head down on the ground and quickly rubbed his two forepaws over it.

He was there when the tape was broken by Pinkie Lad, and was still there a few minutes later when the judges presented the silver cup and the winning purse to his gleeful owner. In fact, I had to go out and get him.

I may say at this point it was quite a sad task, and I got the Bronx cheer while I was doing it.

By the time I got him back to the paddock, however, the dog seemed quite nominal again. Mr. Bob was waiting for me and hopping around as sore as a boil.

Just at that moment Mr. McDougal, the snuff manufacturer from Ohio, came shoving his way into the paddock and walked up to us. He said: "Well, my offer of $5 for the dog still stands. He will make a nice playmate for my little boy, Clarence, aged 8. What do you say?"

Mr. Bob looked up and bitterly said: "Take him, mister. He will make a fine playmate for your little boy, Clarence, aged 8. He can teach him how to stand on his head."

The next morning I went to Lillian's hotel and asked at the desk for her. The clerk said: "Miss Smith checked out late last night."

I was surprised. I politely said: "Well, then, please call Miss Marcelle."

The clerk said: "Sorry, but there is no Miss Marcelle registered here. Perhaps you confuse her with Mrs. Chuck Connors, the recent bride of Mr. Chuck Connors, the well-known sportsman and man-about-town.

"I understand Mr. Connors and Miss Smith's gentleman friend made a killing last night on the Floral Park Derby, and the four of them have gone to Cuba to celebrate."

Feeling like a man in a bad dream, I sat down in a chair. After some minutes I managed to get up and go out. I hocked my new watch for $10, and, following this, I went to a chemist and gave him half of the cash money to examine the good luck perfume.

He told me it was composed of equal parts of oil of cloves and carbolic acid. He said it made a very itching solution, capable of creating excitement on even the toughest epidermis.

THE LOGBOOK That MIGHT HAVE SAVED the R-101

LONDON.

IT HAS just been disclosed that during the last two years of the World War an English squire had in his possession information which would have been of first importance in the defense of his country. Ignorant of its value the squire kept tucked away in a drawer a book containing secrets priceless to the British Government.

It was the logbook of a German Zeppelin and in it were data concerning the construction and operation of these airships—data which British aeronautic experts were frantically trying to discover. With this information in the hands of the British Government it might well have put an end to German superiority in lighter-than-air craft and lessened the menace to English towns of the ghostly raiders. Furthermore, had the British Government possessed the logbook when the R-101 was built, the tragedy which befell that ship in 1930, when it and most of its passengers and crew met death, might not have occurred.

But during all these years from September 23, 1916, until a few weeks ago, the book with such great potentialities rested quietly in a drawer in the home of the country squire, regarded merely as a souvenir.

THE logbook came down out of the sky in a flaming Zeppelin that September night in 1916. That afternoon a fleet of ten Zeppelins had left their station at Friedrichshafen to strafe England. Over Yarmouth, three of the raiders left the rest of the fleet and headed for London. They were the L-31, the L-32 and the L-33, airships of the then latest type, having 2,000,000 cubic feet capacity and carrying six tons of explosives.

They arrived over London about midnight—and the L-31 was the only one of the three that ever returned to Germany. Under the skillful management of Captain Mathy it eluded the fire of anti-aircraft guns, laid a line of bombs across the middle of London from north to south and got away safely.

The L-32 and the L-33 were hit. The latter, its gas cells badly damaged, fell near Colchester. The L-32, under the command of Captain Peterson, was struck by an incendiary shell and caught fire forward. The flames spread quickly as the airship fled from London, and near Brentwood, which is close to London, the raider plunged to earth.

An English squire — whose name has not been disclosed— was standing on the porch of his home at Brentwood, and saw the blazing Zeppelin falling. He ran toward it and was close when it struck the ground. Out of the burning wreckage leaped a man whose clothing was afire. He ran a few feet and collapsed almost at the squire's feet. As he fell, he cried, three times, "Dreizehn!"—"Thirteen!"—and from under his arm a scorched black book fell to the grass. A few seconds later he was dead. This was the L-32's thirteenth voyage.

The squire grasped the book and took it home, put it in a drawer and kept it as a souvenir. It was the L-32's logbook, the Ballastverteilung. It contained construction drawings, told of the ship's armament, and, most important of all, described in detail the arrangement of ballast. It was this information about ballast that the British authorities particularly wanted. It was still lacking when English experts, after careful study of wrecked Zeppelins brought down during the war, designed the R-101.

AN OFFICIAL in the Air Ministry said after the book was brought to light: "There is a possibility that had this document been available to us at an earlier date, the terrible disaster to the R-101 might never have taken place, for it may be possible that on this difficult point of ballast the calculations erred."

But the squire did not know all this, of course. And it was only after his death, recently, that the logbook came into official hands. The widow turned it over to Captain Crossley of the Ninth Lancers, and he, although his ignorance of German did not permit him to grasp its full significance, gave it to the Air Ministry, with an account of how it came into the squire's possession.

Book collectors have made offers for the volume with the black, scorched covers, but the Air Ministry is preparing, after completing arrangements with the owner, to place it in the British Imperial War Museum.

Despite this, Mayor Curley rallied to the defense of the South American. In a public statement he said:

"I received a visit from Mr. Mariano Laos Lomer, Peruvian Consul-General of New England, and have learned, after a short conversation with him, that he had been imposed upon by certain unscrupulous individuals who have brought to him, through no desire of his own, notoriety of an unfavorable character which he does not deserve.

"I have known Mr. Lomer for the past 12 years and have found him at all times to be a dignified, talented and eminently capable gentleman, and a worthy representative of his country. It is unfortunate that he was duped by unscrupulous, designing, self-seeking notoriety adventurers, who led him to believe that he was entertaining the Mayors of Massachusetts, when in reality the recipients of his hospitality were simply the boon companions of the adventurer.

"Mr. Lomer now has a true appreciation of how difficult it is to avoid a situation of an embarrassing character, and it is certain that occurrences such as have been reported in the press in the last few days will not again occur."

While Curley apparently credited Senor Lomer with official standing, a dispatch from Washington about the same time quoted the Peruvian Embassy as follows: "The embassy here has not been officially advised of Mr. Mariano Laos Lomer's appointment as Consul-General in New England. He was at one time commercial attache."

The question of Senor Lomer's official standing has since been cleared up by the arrival of his consular credentials. It is thought here they may have been delayed by disturbed conditions in Peru which followed the election of Sanchez Cerro as President last fall.

In the matter of the hotel bill, also, part of the difficulty has been removed. It is understood that the Consul-General received a loan of $1000 from Mrs. Alice B. Keith, a woman socially prominent in Brookline, who had long been a friend of his, and that he took up the check he had given the hotel before it was deposited. Since then Senor Lomer has appeared to have plenty of money, which presumably has come from his family in Peru.

After Mayor Curley issued his statement, Senor Lomer turned a critical regard on some of his recent companions, including Mr. Kelleher. He said Mr. Kelleher had done things which he had not authorized, and intimated that the issuing of invitations to the 4 o'clock breakfast was one of them. Mr. Kelleher, meanwhile, had vanished from the scene, due, it was said, to his wife's telephoned threats that if he didn't quit monkeying with international affairs and come home there were likely to be some very unpleasant domestic complications.

Shortly after his good-will breakfast Senor Lomer was still insisting that the guests were what they purported to be. "Fourteen Mayors from Massachusetts, prominent police officials and fire-brigade commanders and college professors," he said, "came to my breakfast, pledged me their co-operation in my work to further good will between Peru and New England, and had a glorious time. Didn't Mr. Kelleher introduce them and tell me who they were?"

Perhaps he has changed his mind now, and is satisfied to consider his Boston breakfast party, if not as historic as the Boston Tea Party, at least more spectacularly historic.

readers. There were 56,264 of these votes cast, divided among the 100 girls whose pictures were published early in the contest, and Miss Tawara, the winner, received 6375, or more than one-ninth of the total number.

There is a strong feeling in Japan that its girls should resist the tendency to adopt Western standards of beauty; that they should recognize the physical differences between themselves and their Aryan sisters of Europe and America, and strive for a beauty that accords with the ideals and culture of their own country. To an unprejudiced observer, the beauty contest which resulted in the selection of Miss Nippon of 1931 must seem to weaken this nationalistic position. For, with due respect to the theory that East is East and West is West, it is hard to see how the Japanese beauties pictured here can be considered anything but peaches in any hemisphere.

MOSUL INLAID BOX

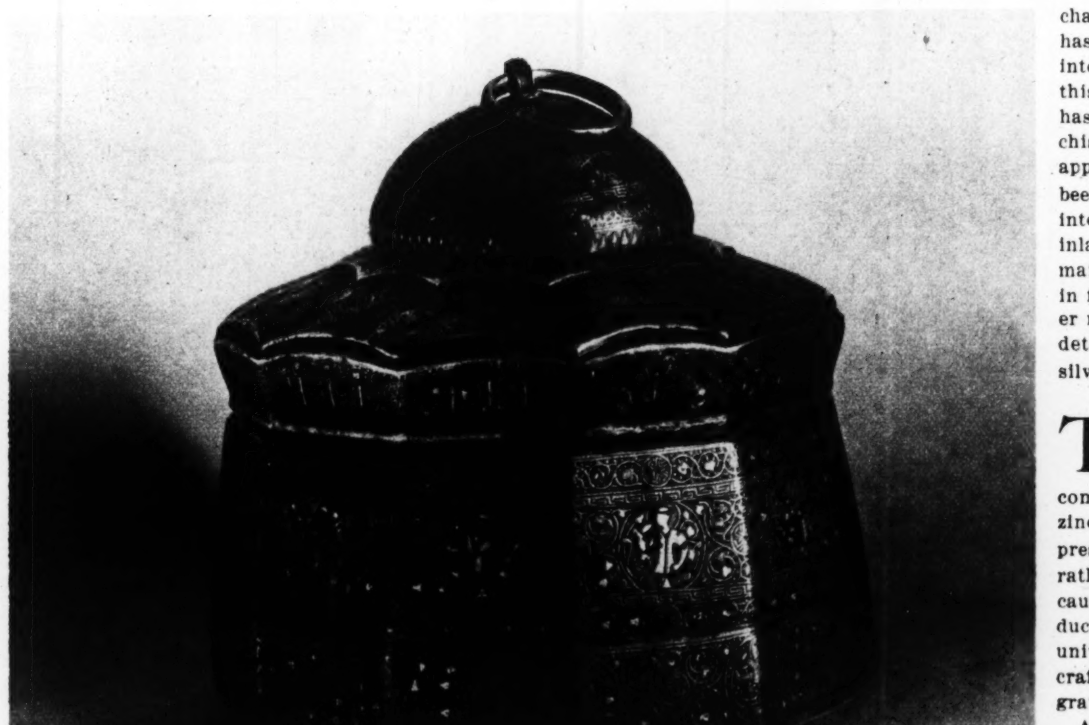
THIS Oriental box is the twentieth in a series of masterpieces which are being prominently displayed at the City Art Museum by Director Meyric Rogers. Each week one of the museum's rarest treasures is placed in the alcove to the left of the entrance. Each masterpiece will be reproduced in the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch, with an account by museum authorities of its history. The complete series will serve as an excellent guide to the most precious possessions of the city's museum. The story of this metal box follows:



Prominent among the many Oriental crafts which reached a high state of development under the domination and patronage of the Mohammedan Princes, was the art of metal work. During the fourteenth century, under the rule of the Attabegs of the Zangid dynasty, the city of Mosul, in Mesopotamia, was an important center for the manufacture of fine metal work. Encouraged and protected by the Mohammedan Princes the Mosul craftsmen produced an endless variety of basins, boxes, candlesticks and other metal objects, characterized by rich ornamentation in chasing and inlaying.

The box which forms this week's exhibit is a typical example of the fine craftsmanship ascribed to the workshops of Mosul. Of an unusual and handsome architectural form, its entire surface is richly engraved in characteristic Mohammedan pattern, over much of which inlays of silver and gold have been applied. The designer of the piece was clearly inspired by the form of the Mohammedan domed mosque and, following this architectural model, has produced a shape of dignity and grace. The 12 sides converge slightly toward the top, where they are surmounted by the lower edge of the lid, which corresponds roughly to a frieze. Above this the top is shaped to represent two lapping scalloped edged layers corresponding to the tiers of a roof, surmounting which is the dome.

Practically the entire surface is chased with bands of the scrolling vines and leaves which constitute the typical arabesque pattern of Mohammedan art. The bands of arabesques are interrupted by large medallions bearing the figures of musicians and smaller medallions with a geometric pattern. Along the edge of the lid may be seen the vertical shafts of the characters of an inscription which has here apparently degenerated into illegible ornamentation. All this wealth of decorative detail has been formed in low relief by chiseling away the background. At appropriate points the design has been heightened by hammering into the depressed sections a thin inlay of silver, much of which remains. Gold has also been used in fine lines on some of the smaller medallions. The more minute details are engraved upon the silver inlay.

THOUGH called bronze, it seems probable from its color that the metal is composed largely of copper and zinc, an alloy which in the present day would be termed brass rather than bronze. Brass, because of its luster, softness and ductility, was the metal almost universally used by Mohammedan craftsmen for hammered and engraved vessels of this character.

A piece requiring so large an amount of skilled labor as the present one was a costly object and was probably made for a luxury-loving Prince or noble, as its decorations of human figures, interdicted by the Mohammedan code, made it inappropriate for religious uses. The nobility, however, frequently disregarded this prohibition in the ornamentation of their palaces and the objects with which they were furnished. The present box is said to have belonged to a Sultan of Yemen.

PEEP CUPID—St. Valentine's day, eh? This is usually my busy day. Well, I don't mind, I have a lot of arrows and it is a lot of fun shooting them to make folk fall in love. (Freddie Mouse enters.)

FREDDIE MOUSE—Are you Peep Cupid?

PEEP CUPID—Yes.

FREDDIE MOUSE—And if you shoot anyone with one of your arrows, do the fall in love?

PEEP CUPID—Yes, that is what happens.

FREDDIE MOUSE—Well, I wish you would shoot a girl for me. You see, I wa her to be my Valentine.

PEEP CUPID—Very well. Who is the girl?

FREDDIE MOUSE—Margy Mouse. Come with me and I will show you where sh lives. (They leave stage and a moment later Sally Pig enters.)

SALLY PIG—They told me to go to the Valentine if I wanted to find Peep Cupid. This looks like the place, but I don't see Peep Cupid. (Leaving stage.) I'll com back later. (Freddie Mouse enters.)

FREDDIE MOUSE—I hope Peep Cupid is successful. It certainly is taking him long time. (Peep Cupid enters and passes Freddie Mouse.)

FREDDIE MOUSE—Did you do it?

PEEP CUPID—Yes, I shot arrows at her and a lot of other people since I saw you. Haven't you seen her?

FREDDIE MOUSE—No, I haven't. You don't think that you might have missed do you?

PEEP CUPID—Not a chance. I never miss: my aim is perfect.

FREDDIE MOUSE—(Leaving stage.) I hope nothing went wrong. (Sally Pig enters.)

SALLY PIG—Oh, Mr. Cupid! Maybe you could do something for me!

PEEP CUPID—What do you want me to do?

SALLY PIG—I want Hee Haw to be my Valentine. But he won't even look at m Do you think that if you shot him with one of your arrows he would change?

MARGY MOUSE—Tra-la-la. I'm so happy, Mr. Cupid, will you tell me where can find Freddie Mouse?

PEEP CUPID—Just keep on going. He is down there somewhere. He is looking for you.

SALLY PIG—She certainly is happy.

SALLY PIG—You did?

SALLY PIG—How wonderful. Will you shoot Hee Haw for me?

PEEP CUPID—Yes. Just show me where to find him. (They leave stage and moment later Sally returns.)

SALLY PIG—I wonder how long I will have to wait. (Peep Cupid enters.)

SALLY PIG—Did you find him?

PEEP CUPID—Umm hum. He should be here any moment.

SALLY PIG—(Leaving stage.) I'll wait down here. (A moment later Hee Haw rushes on stage.)

HEE HAW—Have you seen Sally, Peep Cupid?

PEEP CUPID—She was here a minute ago. If you hurry you will catch up with her.

HEE HAW—(Rushing off stage.) Thank you.

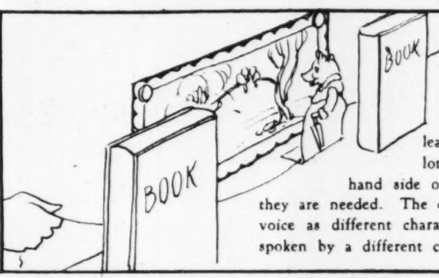
PEEP CUPID—My, this was a very busy day. Freddie Mouse was the only boy had to help, but I surely helped a lot of girls. Well, this is leap year. Ha, ha, ha (Leaves stage.)

CURTAIN.



DIRECTIONS: Cut out back-drop and pin it a wall near the floor. Next, take two books and stan them at each end and about 5 inches in front of back-drop. Then take characters, cut them out, and paste them on thin cardboard, folding flap at bottom so they wil lean back a little. Attach a piece of thread about 15 inches long. Place the characters back of the book on the right-hand side of the stage and draw them on the stage with thread as they are needed. The operator may talk for the characters, changing his or her voice as different characters go on the stage, or each character's part may be spoken by a different child. A flashlight can be used as a spotlight.

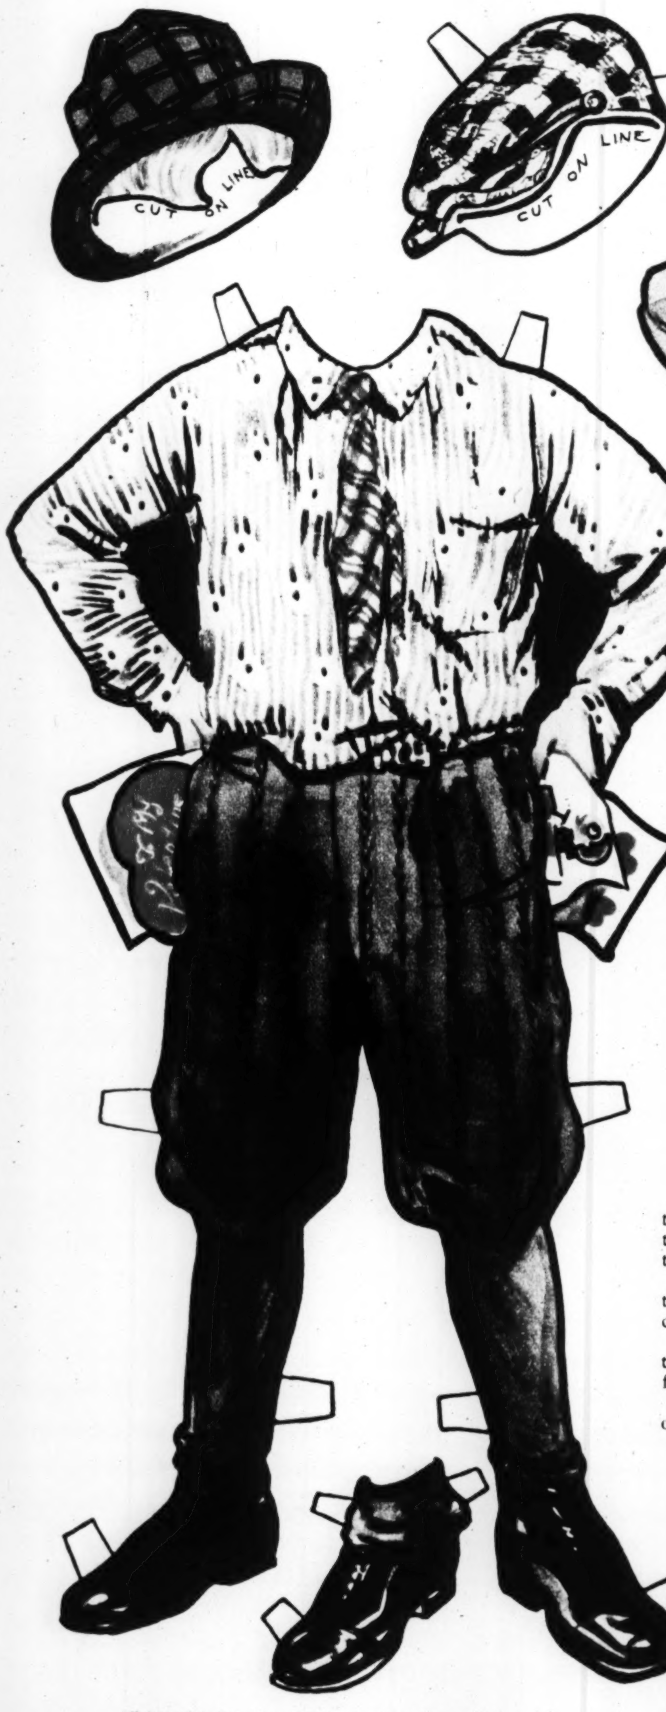
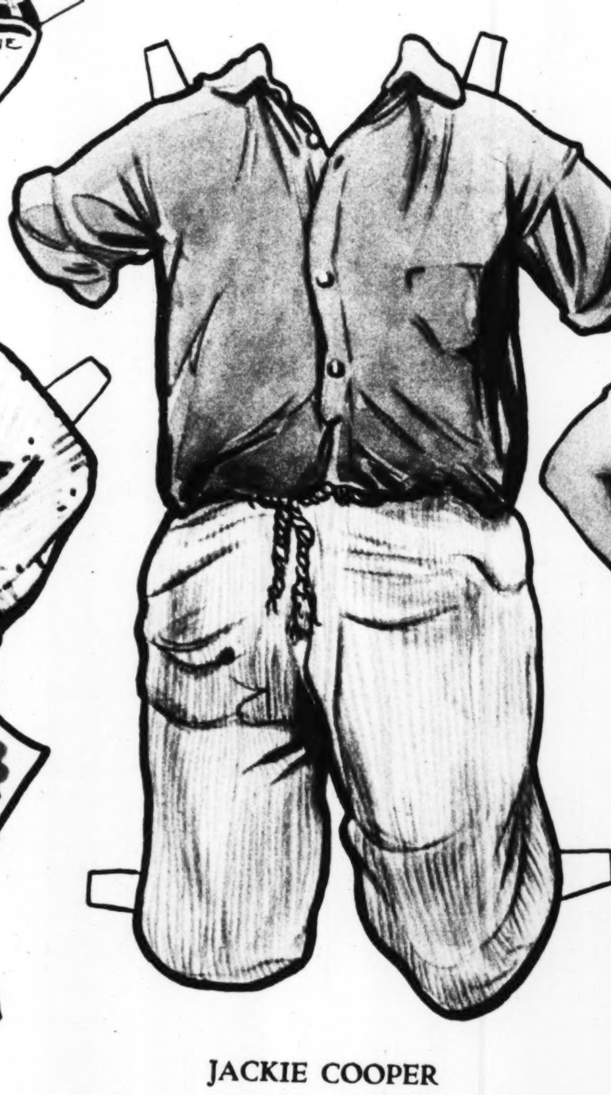
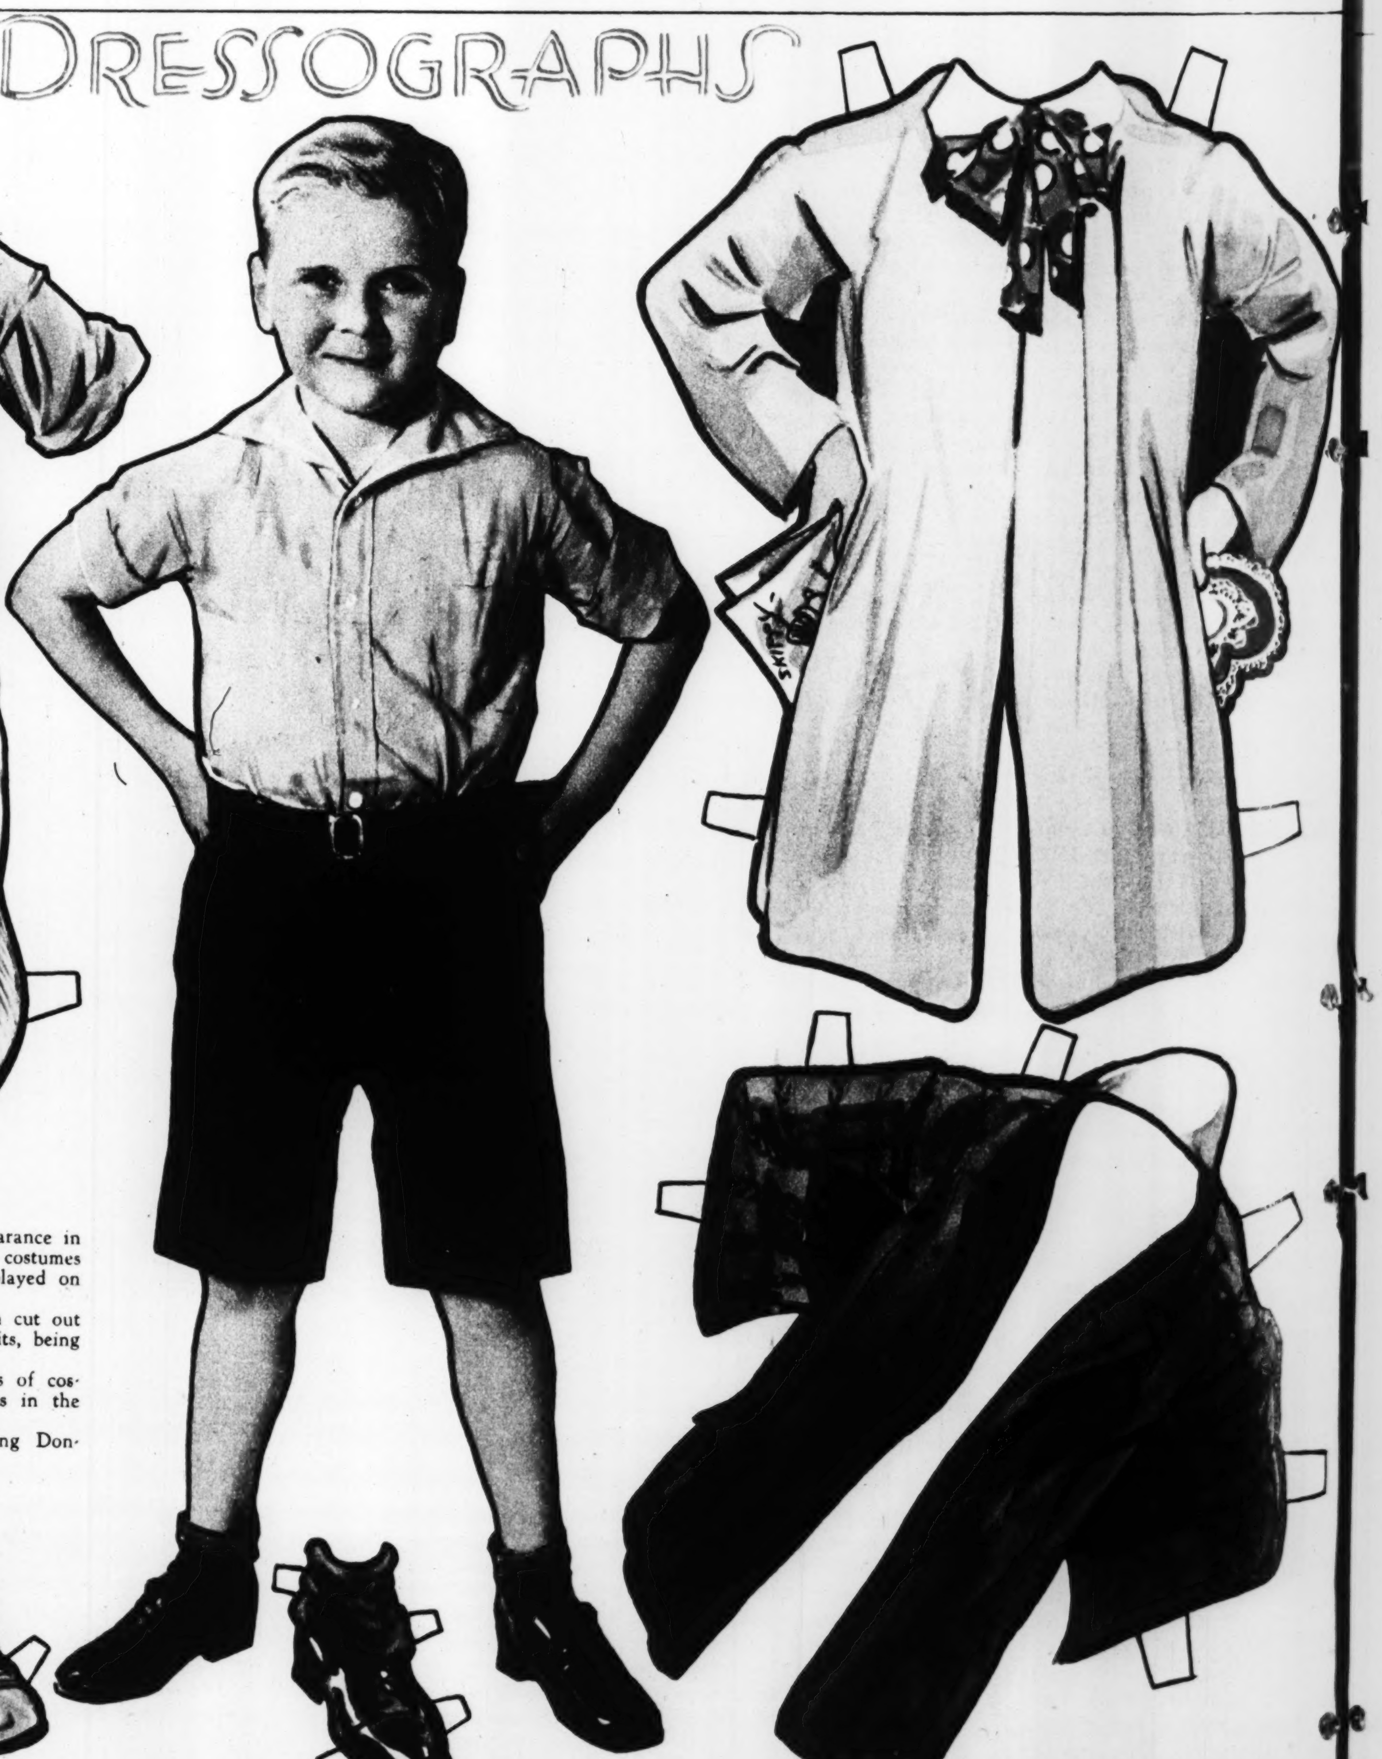
MOVIE DRESSOGRAPHS







JACKIE COOPER

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles he has played on the screen.

Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in his proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

This week's star is Jackie Cooper. The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by him in these roles in the following movies:

SLEEP TONIGHT WHEN YOU GO TO BED

WHAT'S THAT NOISE?
I'M ALL ON EDGE
WHY DOESN'T JUNIOR COME HOME?
THERE'S THAT GNAWING IN MY STOMACH
I'VE GOT TO GET SOME SLEEP!

Fall Asleep at Once This Natural Drugless Way

New Energy Tomorrow

Do you lie awake and toss at night? Do you turn and thrash, with nerves unstrung before you fall asleep?

And do you pay the price next day, with overwrought nerves—a head that aches—or a mind that's logy and dull?

If you do, take heart. For 20,000 doctors will tell you that there's now a drugless way to bring you sleep—naturally, quickly.

Deep sleep! Sound sleep! Sleep that rebuilds fagged-out minds and bodies in a most amazing way.

It's a delicious food-drink you take before you go to bed. As free from drugs as the bread you eat—or the milk you drink.

You fall asleep almost the moment you close your eyes. Nerves calmer—mind clearer by far.

For this new way does more than induce sound sleep. It rebuilds your body, your tissues, your nerves while you rest. So try it without fail.

What It Is—How It Acts

It is called Ovaltine—a pure food-drink you take at night with warm milk. During the World War, medical authorities made it a standard ration for invalid, nerve-shattered soldiers. They found it does 3 things no other food in the world will do.

First, it induces sound, restful sleep by a wholly natural process.

Second, it rebuilds worn-out nerve and muscle cells. For, in addition to other valuable food elements, Ovaltine contains (in concentrated form) a natural vital property called "lecithin" which is an important part of nerve and brain tissue. And these valuable food properties rebuild worn-out nerve, brain and body cells as you sleep.

Third, Ovaltine aids digestion. This is because it contains a high proportion of a food element known as diastase—an element which has the power to digest the starch content of other foods in your stomach. Thus it lifts a great burden from your digestive organs—helps your stomach "rest." And in this way combats digestive unrest—one of the main causes of sleeplessness.

At the same time—by stimulating and aiding digestive processes—Ovaltine tends to draw excess blood away from the head. And helps reduce the congestion that is present in brain capillaries when a person lies awake at night thinking and worrying instead of sleeping.

You'll Sleep Tonight

If you're troubled with sleeplessness, don't suffer longer. That's simply folly now. Try Ovaltine this very night. See for yourself how quickly your nerves calm down—how swiftly you fall asleep.

Don't judge Ovaltine merely by what users claim for it. Even disregard, if you wish, the fact that it is endorsed by 20,000 doctors. Forget the fact that its use has spread to 54 different countries . . . Try it and see for yourself.

'Phone your druggist or grocer for a tin of Ovaltine. Mix 2 to 4 teaspoonfuls in a glass of warm milk and drink it just before you go to bed. You will sleep more soundly than you have, probably, in weeks and months.

You'll be delighted with the sound, refreshing sleep this pure food-drink brings you—and the extra energy that's yours next day.

NOTE: Thousands of nervous people, men and women, are using Ovaltine to restore vitality when fatigued. It is also highly recommended by physicians for nervous, underweight children—for nursing mothers, convalescents and the aged. 876

OF COURSE, IF YA REALLY WANT TO BUY THE SKATES OFF OF YACOB, THEY AIN'T NO REASON WHY YA SHOULDN'T.
BUT SUPPOSIN' THEY'RE RUSTY
AN' EVEN IF THEY AIN'T RUSTY-
THEY MIGHT NOT BE HOLLOW GROUND.
THEN THINK OF THE STRAPS.
SUPPOSIN' THE STRAPS WERE WEAK OR ROTTEN MAYBE YOU'D BE SKATIN' ALONG AN' ONE OF 'EM WOULD BREAK—THEN WHERE WOULD YA BE?
SAY- COME TO THINK OF IT—
